A WORD TO PATRONS.

We shall soon commence sending out bills to delinquent subscribers, which we hope will meet with a prompt response. It costs money for paper, ink, material, help, and the other numerous expenses connected with a printing of fice, and to meet our obligations our subscribers must settle up. Those who have ran so long without paying, some of them several years, will have their part of the paper stopped, and the accounts placed in attorney's hands for collection in case they fail to respond. We mesa business and are determined to have the money that is dueus. Let back one owing pay up. The amounts individually are small, but in the aggregate are considerable.
