Whipping in the Old-Time School.

A public school fifty years ago was a very different affair from what it is nowadays.

Upon my word, when I think of the whipping which went on day after day in the old Mayhew school, I am astonished at it. Yet, with the variety of corporal punish-ment so freely bestowed there was mingled a sort of ghastly sportive ele-ment, a grim humor which did not al-ways commend itself to the perception of him who mentioned itself to the perception of him who received the flagellation. A merry conceit, for instance, was that of Master Clough.

That ingenious person would direct a culprit to stand upon the platform, near the desk, and without bending the knees, touch the floor with his fingers. Then a smart flourish of the rattan and a sudden blow would cause the unhappy youth to involuntarily resume an upright posi-tion with diverting rapidity. It was really very amusing (to Master Clough.) Sometimes an offender would be asked by one of the masters which instrument of torture he would choose, the ridingwhip, the ruler or the rattan. Whichever he seemed to prefer was not the one used, but one of the others would make him smart. This little change would have a healthful moral influence upon the scholar, teaching patience and resignation under disappointment. A pleasant illustration (to the teacher) of the irony of fate was shown in another way. When the stock of rattans ran low (and that was not seldom) some victim in disgrace would be dispatched for a fresh supply, knowing that on his return he would feel the first stroke of the rod. With what ingenious refinement of torture the victim was thus made to find the weapon that should wound him!

There was another clever diversion of our kind-hearted masters which in summer, when the days were long, occasionally broke the monotony of the school-boy life. Sometimes, of a sultry July afternoon, a tired scholar, overcome by the heat, would find the sound of voices in the room grow fainter and fainter, his head would droop and finally sink upon his desk, and he would quickly be in the pleasant land of dreams. Then it was that the master, seizing his rattan and stealthily yet joyfully striding across the rows of desks, would give the sleeping wretch such a rousing whack as to astonish and confound as well as suddenly swake him.

I confess that these diversions of the pedagogue were not without their attraction for us who looked on and saw the comical contortions of the boys whose fortune it was at the moment to be under liscipline. The fact that our turn might come next did not prevent us from finding what entertainment we might in what our master evidently enjoyed. None of us yet read the maxims of the cynical La Rochefoucauld, but we realized that under certain circumstances there is something in the misfortunes of our friends that gives us a certain sort of satisfaction.

Those were indeed days when flogging was administered in no homepathic doses, but with a most heroic fullness of practice. I once made a careful estimate of my own experience in that way, and came to the conclusion Early impressions are very enduring, that I had averaged about a connection with the Mayhew So We became somewhat inured to this rough treatment. It was considered the proper thing to suffer with Spartan firmness, and he who while laid across the master's knee could calmly make comical and derisive faces from his ignominious position, for the entertainment of his associates, without having his attention diverted to other parts of his body, was accounted a brave fellow. Then there was a superstitutious belief that by laying one's eyelash in the hand that was about to be feruled, the accursed wood was sure to be shattered on coming in contact with the magic hair. But I never saw one shattered.

A curious plan is adopted in some parts of west Ireland with a view of keeping the "no rent" manifesto before tenants. It takes the form of a promissory note which has been circulated among farmers attending the fair. The note is a promise to pay rent on the day Parnell and Davitt and other suspects are released. It is intended the note shall be signed by tenants and sent to landlords.

Col. Watson B. Smith, clerk of the U.S. circuit court at Omaha, was found dead, lying outside the office door, where he had been shot by an unknown assassin. There is great public excitement and a mass meeting was called for this afternoon to express horror of the crime and take steps towards arrest of the assassin. Col. Smith was a highly respectly citizen and leaves an estimable family.

Prominent lawyers of Washington are unanimous in the opinion that the defendants in the star route contest will win the battle now in progress against the validity of the information. Should the present motion to strike it off the docket fail a motion to quash will follow with motion to strike off. It is alleged that perity of the country. should this occur there would be an end of the prosecution of Brady. There would remain the case against Dorsey and others of less note, but the moral effect of a failure against Brady would be to render any other prosecutions before the present grand jury exceedingly difficult of success. Lawyers think that this proceeding instead of being preliminary is the real fight. Counsel on both sides are so treating it, and the prospect is that arguments will last through the greater part of next week. Ingersoll will continue to-day and to-morrow and will occupy the whole day. Counsel for prosecution holds that should information fail entirely there would still remain good grounds for indictment against Brady, French and Turner. Ingersoll appears to be entirely confident that to win now would be decisive.

Four stowaways, soldiers, arrived at New York from Kinsale, Ireland. They were discovered when four days out, and the captain wanted to put back and land them, but the soldiers, with the aid of some sailors, shipped in Kinsale, refused to let him do so, and he was obliged to keep on his course.

der to forestall the chief danger of indoor life, make your children love-sick after fresh air; make them associate the idea of fusty rooms with prison life, punishment, and sickness. Open a window whenever they complain of headache or nausea; promise them a woodland excursion as a reward of exceptionally good behavior. Save your best sweetmeats for out-door festivals. By the witchery of associated ideas a boy can come to regard the lonely shade tree as a primary requisite to the enjoyment of a good story book. "Or, mes pensees ne voulent jamais aller qu'avec mes jumbes," says Rousseau ("Only the movement of my feet seems to set my brains a-going," and it is just as easy to think, debate, rehearse, etc., walking as sitting; the peripatetic philosophers derived their name from their pedestrian proclivities, and the Stoic sect from their master's predilection for an open porch. Children who have been brought up in hygienic homes not rarely "feel as if they were going to be choked" in unventilated to cure them of such salutary idiosyncrasies. Every observant teacher must have noticed the innate hardiness of young boys, their unaffected indifference to wind and weather. They seem to take a delight in braving the extremes of temperature, and by simply indulging this penchant of theirs, children can be made weatherproof to an almost unlimited degree; and in nothing else can they be more safely trusted to the guidance of their protective instincts. Don't be afraid that an active boy will hurt himself by voluntary exposure, unless his chances for out-door play are so rare as to tempt him to abuse the first opportunify. Weatherproof people are almost sickness-proof; a merry hunting excursion to the snowclad highlands will rarely fail to counteract the consequences of repeated surfeits; even girls who have learned to brave the winter storms of our Northwestern prairies will afterward laugh at "draughts" and "raw March winds."-Dr. Oswald.

Thrilling incident: Adolphus' courage was up. Falling on his knees he cried: "Angelina, dearest, make me the happiest of men by accepting my heart and hand." Casting one look at the great paw Angelina thrilled in every fibre as she replied sweetly: "Oh, Adolphus, this is more than I expected."

Women who love their husbands are happy and at rest. Those who do not are disturbed and restless. They are always seeking for some means of killing time. They are ready to flirt at any moment. Their children are, according to their means, either hidden in nurserooms, and I would take good care not ries under the care of French bonnes, or handed over to Sally, the slatternly nurse, to shake, and slap, and stuff with sugar, as her wisdom dictates, while society and amusements of all sorts occupy their mother's time. Home is not happy to the poor woman, because she has chosen her mate foolishly-becanse she trusted to that "love after marriage" which mercenary old people promise those who make what they call a sensible match.

Sad as a neglected wife, who loves her husband well, must be, I believe she is happier than this poor restless crea-ture, though she be worshipped. The love of one we do not love becomes a bore, especially in the close intercourse of home life, and she who does pot give her heart to her husband is not likely to care much for his children. So, girls, if you do not love your lover, don't marry him. Remember that marriage is a serious step, and that when you give him your hand that he may encircle it with a wedding ring, you seal the hap-piness or misery of your natural life Don't marry unless you are sure of your love for him, and his for you.
