NEEDS LEGISLATION.—One of the most trying evils of the times is the slaughter of deer for their hides. WAREHOUSE BURNED.

The Luper Warehouse Burned. Loss, about $4,500; Insurance, only $2,500.

Much speculation was indulged in by our citizens last Wednesday night on account of a very bright light northwest of this city. Many supposed it to be at Junction City, but luckily for our sister city, our speculations were false. The fire proved to be the Luper warehouse, on the O & C R R, about 9 miles from this city, and owned by the Luper Bros. The following are the losses, and amount of insurance.

Luper Bros.—Warehouse and machinery, loss, $1,500; insurance, $1,500. Insured in Hartford Insurance Co, by George S Washburne, of Junction City.

Samuel Meek—2,000 bushels of wheat; no insurance.

W H Esber—400 bushels of wheat; no insurance.

S H Friendly—900 bushels of wheat; fully insured.

Messrs. P B Dunn and L Solomon also lose a small amount of wheat.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. We are unable to state whether the warehouse will be rebuilt or not. Mr. Friendly had two cars loaded with wheat the day of the fire, and placed on a switch, which were saved.

Bamboo for Oregon.

The American Consul-General at Shanghai has lately sent twenty boxes of bamboo cuttings for transplanting in Oregon. He writes to the State Department that in the Chinese Empire, South of the Yangtze, about sixty varieties of bamboo are said to grow, although five or six furnish the principal materials used. At Fochow and Swatow the large size grows 40 to 50 feet high and 6 and 7 inches diameter; on the island of Formosa it is found even larger.

The bamboo serves at least five hundred different purposes in China. The roots are carved into images, lantern handles, and canes; the tapering culms are used for every conceivable place where poles and ribs can be put; the leaves are worked into thatches, umbrellas and screens; cut into strips, the wood is woven into baskets, plaited into awnings, and twisted into cables; the shavings stuff pillows; other parts supply chopsticks for eating, beds for sleeping, brooms for sweeping, pipes for smoking, fuel for cooking, skewers for the hair, paper for writing, rods for whipping, tables to eat on, buckets for water drawing, and the tender shoots are highly esteemed as a vegetable to be eaten.

The Consul-General urges the naturalizing of the bamboo in the Southern States and on the Pacific coast.—Scientific American.

There will be four tunnels between Corvallis and Newport, and it is said that the entire line from the bay to Corvallis will be ready for the graders by the middle of Feb. The gap between Corvallis and Albany will not be surveyed until it is determined where the bridge is to be located. A surveying party, 24 strong, in charge of Engineers McAllan and Brown, are surveying from Albany east, and another party, under Mr. Piehl, will start for the Cascade mountains next week to find a route into Eastern Oregon.

Robeson, found guilty of murder in the second degree, on his second trial in the State Circuit Court for Clatsop county for the murder of J W Robb, was sentenced on Thursday evening January 12th, by Judge Stott to imprisonment in the State penitentiary for life. The jury in the case were out 14 hours. It is understood that they stood nine for murder in the first degree, and three for the verdict finally brought in. These three holding out rendered a compromise necessary and saved the prisoner's life.

MURDERED BY HIGHWAYMEN.

The Assassin Promptly Hanged by the Citizens of Seattle.

A special dispatch to the Oregonian from Seattle, dated Jan 17th, contains the following: "About six o'clock this evening Geo. B Reynolds, a clerk in the store of D A Jennings, and in every respect a most worthy young man, was coming from his supper at home to complete his day's service in the store, when on the corner of Third and Marion streets he was stopped by two foot pads, who ordered him to throw up his hands. Instead of complying he reached for a revolver, seeing which, one of the two fired at him. The ball entered his side and inflicted a wound from which he died two hours later. The murderers without stopping to rob their victim fled. A feeling of the fiercest indignation took immediate possession of the community. Business was suspended, and a few minutes a vigilance committee was in process of organization. In a short time the organization was completed and squads of sworn in men were patrolling the streets in every direction. They and the officers of the law are united in hunting up suspicious characters. A number of such were locked up in the county jail for the night, though whether or not any of them were the offenders in this particular case cannot yet be positively asserted. Two persons saw the shooting, but it was so dark that it is doubtful whether they can identify the perpetrators. The murdered man was a son of Capt. Reynolds, of the ship Topgallant, and he has another in San Francisco and a wife and brother here."

LATER.

The following we clip from the Oregonian dispatches from Seattle of Jan 26th, which is but a continuation of the above: James Sullivan a one armed man and Wm Brown were found late in the night in the hay on a wharf, and were given into the hands of the sheriff. On one of them a pistol was found with one chamber empty, evidently being recently fired. The men answered the description of them given by Mr Reynolds on his death-bed. They also answered the description given by Rev J C Fair and Capt Week, of a couple who demanded them to throw up their hands the evening previous. When these facts became known, excitement was intense, and about 300 men started for the jail, but were prevailed upon to return and await the examination the next morning at 9 o'clock. Before the committee separated they took the shoes of the prisoners, for the purpose of comparing them with the tracks known to have been made by the murderers. Plaster of paris casts were made and the shoes were found to correspond in every particular.

This morning the court assembled, Justice Coombs presiding, Justice Cann and Chief Justice Green having seats with him. The testimony of Messrs. Fair and Weeks was positive that they were the men who stopped them, also swearing that the revolver leveled on them was the one taken from the prisoners. Mr Meydebauner, a brother-in-law of deceased, identified the two men as having run past him after the shooting, going through the muddy alley, thereby leaving the tell tale tracks.

While the evidence was being given preparations was being made in the public square for their execution. The justice remanded the prisoners to jail to await the action of the grand jury next April. He had hardly uttered the words before strong men seized every officer in the room and tightly held them, and other men seized Sullivan and Howard, and starting on a run for the place set for the execution. Nothing could have been done quicker, for in less than five minutes to write-it the unhappy men had been taken into a wagon, the nooses were tight around their necks, the wagon drawn from under and Sullivan and Howard were suspended between earth and heaven. Their struggles were few and short, and in ten minutes both men were dead, though their bodies were left hanging for an hour. No sooner was the double execution over before over 400 members of the committee of safety started for the county jail and demanded the person of Ben Payne, confined for the murder of policeman Sires in October last. The officers refused, when they tore down the fence and beat in the three doors and took the assassin. They soon had him at the place of execution, a third rope was thrown over the beam and he was drawn up between the others. They were left hanging about an hour.

The expedition used by the committee may be inferred when it is stated that though they were strangers in the place, Sullivan and Howard were hunted up within four hours of the murder of Reynolds, and within two hours of the organization of the committee, and that within twenty-four hours of the commission of the crime they had been tried, hanged and buried. The first two made no denial of guilt, but Payne denied the killing of Sires. The proceedings were orderly and conducted by the business men and leading citizens. It is announced by the committee that highway robbery will hereafter be punished by death. The bodies were taken charge of by the coroner.

The verdict of the coroner's jury was in each case the same and as follows: We the jury, summoned in the above case, find that they came to their death by hanging, but from the evidence furnished, we are unable to find by whose hands, and we are satisfied that in their deaths substantial and speedy justice has been served.

OREGON CLAIMS.—A careful examination of the books, accounts and records of the office of the adjutant general during the war of the rebellion, of which the Secretary of State is now the custodian, reveals the fact that accounts to the amount of $44,219 19 are for expenses incurred which are properly chargeable to the general government. Secretary Earhart has had duplicate vouchers made and proper transcripts prepared, which he will at once forward to Capt John Mullan the agent for this State in Washington City, with a view of having them properly presented, and the amount of them which has already been paid by the State refunded.
