STATE NEWS.

A tax of $900 has been levied for the benefit of the Union public school. An addition, costing $500, will be made this spring to the public school building at Forest Grove.

The Dalles military reservation will be sold at public auction in the Dalles, sale to begin on the 10th day of May.

John Newberry has purchased in Umatilla and grant counties, for a cattle firm in the east, 23,000 head of cattle and is still buying.

H. L. Whitehead, agent for Frank Bros. at Island City, will offer premiums amounting in value to $100 for the best plowing in a match at the Union county fair grounds the coming season.

Abraham McCubbin, one of the early pioneers of Clackamas county, but for several years a resident of Wasco county, died on the 12th ult., aged 70 years. A wife, one son and three daughters survive him.

L. D. Gilbert, who settled on his donation land claim in Benton county, in 1847, died at the home of his son, near Eugene City, on the 27th ult., aged 70 years. His aged wife and a large family of children survive him.

Up to March 21st the snow and cold weather continued in Wallowa valley. Up to that date the mercury stood at 18 degrees above zero. Stockmen report everything lively on the winter range. A large number of cattle have been sold to be delivered about May 1st.

The Wooley bridge, near Hillboro, gave way a few days ago, letting two men and a team and wagon into the gulch below. A severe fright and a demoralized team were the only results. It will necessitate the building of a new bridge before travel can be resumed.

The rights, water privileges, and franchises of the old Willamette Woolen Manufacturing Company were Monday sold at public auction by W. B. Gilbert, master in chancery of the U. S. Circuit Court, in pursuance of a judgment in favor of the Bank of British Columbia and against W. C. Griswold.

A Wallowa correspondent says: Ben Davis lay out in the hills intervening between his stock ranch on the Imaha and his home near Alder, last Friday night. The night was a fearful one a terrific storm of wind and snow prevailing all through. The snow was so deep his horse could not make the journey with him in a day, forcing him to make the best of his surroundings without wood, shelter or provisions.

The will of the late S. G. French of Union, was opened and read last week by Rev. Thomas Smith and Mr. Holmes. It leaves $1,000 to Wm. Holmes, $3,000 to Mrs. Kay, $5,000 to the Episcopal church at Cove, to be used for the support of the minister; a span of horses, harness and new buggy to Rev. Thos. Smith; the dwelling, improvements and 100 acres of ground at Cove, valued at $25,000, for the purpose of establishing an Episcopal school for young ladies; the estate was valued at about $150,000.

The Albany Farmers Company will construct their flouring mill so that it will be ready for the Fall grinding. It will be built near the warehouse and in direct communication with it. It will be three or four stories high and probably forty-two by sixty feet, making it a large structure. Its cost will be between $8,000 and $12,000. The latest machinery will be introduced of the most approved kind. There will be three run of burrs, which will give it a large capacity. Withal it will be one of the finest mills in the valley.

Another and important use for the eucalyptus tree, besides that of counteracting malaria, is said to have been discovered. Reports from Australia say that its leaves are the special abhorrence of all insects which prey upon fruit trees, against whose depredations they furnish complete protection if only the ground beneath be strewn with them. These are the reports, and experiments now going on in Australia and South Africa will soon determine whether they are true or not.

Row in a Printing Office.

SPokane Falls, W. T., March 29.—A. M. Cannon and Bascom H. Bennett, of the bark in this city, called at the residence of Francis H. Cook, editor of the Times, last evening. Finding that he had not returned from town, they wanted to know where he was, saying they might meet him. The visit was occasioned by articles in the Times which Mr. Cannon took exception to. At 10 o'clock to-day Cannon and Bennett entered the office of the Times on the second floor, while none were present but Mr. and Mrs. Cook with a babe in the cradle. Cannon demanded a retraction, and swore that Cook must sign papers not then shown or he would kill him. The editor did not do so. Cannon drew a revolver to carry out his threat. Cook took up an iron "stick" used in the office and induced Cannon to put away the revolver; whereupon Bennett drew a revolver stating that he was going to take part in the affair. As Bennett was trying to shoot, Cook took up another side-stick and knocked the weapon out of his hand. Cannon's aim was again being taken, with Mrs. Cook in range when Cook knocked the weapon out of his hand and across the room. Bennett by this time had regained his weapon, but his left hand was stricken down by Cook. Cannon, who had regained his deadly weapon on the opposite side of the room, raised it to fire, but Cook threw a missile that hit him just as he was pulling the trigger, the weapon discharging and the bullet passing through the stovepipe, glancing to the ceiling. After this blows fell rapidly and blood was soon drawn. A case of type was "pied" and the men closed in close embrace. Mrs. Cook had rushed down stairs and a crowd began to gather. By this time Cook had regained his feet and the assaulting party had ceased their efforts. After regaining his feet, and after Mr. Cook had given up his iron "stick," Cannon again threatened to kill Cook, but bystanders interfered. Warrants for the arrest of Cannon and Bennett have been issued, but neither will be able to be out perhaps for four weeks. Both are under the care of physicians, and scalp wounds they received, which are very severe, have been sewed up. Cook was not injured.

Who Represent the People.

FATAL MODESTY.

A very modest young lady, who was a passenger on board a packet-ship, it is said, sprang out of her berth and jumped overboard, on hearing the captain, during a storm, order the mate to haul down the sheets.

Another Ship Enters Yaquina Bay.

The unmitigated falsehood of the Oregonian in its statement made some time ago in reference to the depth of the water in Yaquina Bay is being proved most conclusively every day. We are informed by private letter and also by our correspondent at the Bay, as will be observed in another column, of the entry of the Sea Foam, Capt. Winant, very heavily laden, into Yaquina Bay, going over the bar at ebb tide in a heavy fog. How does this sound to the narrow minded editor of the "only" (!) paper in Oregon? Some idea of the water the Sea Foam was drawing can be obtained from the load she carried. She was laden with car-wheels, iron and fittings, complete for two construction trains; two complete sets of cars, and other material for rock working; an assorted cargo of iron, steel and other railroad material; and a quantity of oats and feed for the teams on the grade.

The Sea Foam was received at the Bay with great demonstrations of joy, for it was not only an evidence of the fact that business is meant by the R. R. authorities; but it exhibits the possibilities of the Bay, and is the best evidence to prove that no great expenditure is needed to make Yaquina Bay the best harbor between Puget Sound and Golden Gate. While the Columbia is filling constantly no such drawback can be traced to this Bay. In a short time the very largest steamers will be able to enter with far greater ease than they ever have the Columbia River. The future of Yaquina Bay and the success of the O. P. is becoming fast an established fact, and the arrival of the Sea Foam is a strong point to prove it.—Allany Democrat.

Sayings of Eminent Men.

Just before Blucher came to the assistance of Wellington, an aid-de-camp rode up, and saluting the Iron Duke, said: "What is your grace's opinion of advertising?" "I think replied the conqueror of the little Corsican, "that an advertisement is a good thing. Let the battle go on." The battle did go on, and Napoleon was defeated.—Vide Great Battlefields of the World.
Keep your name constantly before the public if you wish to have a prosperous trade. An inch of advertising is worth a mile of waiting for customers.—Hannibal to his soldiers before crossing the Alps.
An advertisement works for you both when you are awake and when you are asleep. It is a friend which is constantly extolling your merits and and those of your goods to large numbers of people at the same time. No merchant can afford to be without it.—From Achilles oration on the death of Hector.—Louisville Courier Journal.

A SAD AFFAIR.

On Thursday evening, March 30th, a man apparently in a state of intoxication, was arrested at Albany and committed to jail. The next morning when the jail was opened he was found to be in a dying state, and notwithstanding all the efforts to resuscitate him, in a short time he breathed his last. The coroner summoned a jury and held an inquest during which the fact was developed that deceased had purchased laudanum at one of the drug stores of that city. The jury returned a verdict of probable suicide. The unfortunate man was a stranger and nothing was found on him to identify him, except some letters addressed to a person by the name of Wilson.

They have a way of letting a man down easy in Chicago. When a prominent citizen got drunk at a wedding, and being called on for a speech, rallied the father of the bride because he didn't have his other family residing on the east side present at the wedding and so kicked up a perfect hades of a time, the papers said merely that "the remarks of Mr. Jowles were somewhat inappropriate."
A story comes from Garfield county saying that John Dodd and wife have just become the parents of their 20th child, a boy weighing 12 pounds. The ages of the prolific couple are 83 and 79 years respectively.
