STATE NEWS.

Work has commenced on the new college building at McMinnville.

The Buena Vista saw mill is turning out 12,000 feet of lumber per day.

It took eleven ballots to nominate the sheriff at the Marion county Republican convention.

It is expected that the M. E. church at Glencoe will be dedicated on the fifth Sabbath of April.

The late term of the circuit court at Lafayette cost the county but $308 80. The average cost of a term is $1200.

The monument of L. L. Williams in the burying grounds of the I. O. O. F., of Roseburg is one of the finest in the state.

Wm. Baker, living four miles below Corvallis, on the Linn county side of river sold his farm of 135 acres last week for $30 an acre.

The Congregationalist church at Albany numbers 66 members. Rev. J. W. Harris was unanimously called to serve as pastor for another year.

Two plowmen, each with a two-horse team and a 14-inch plow, plowed six acres of land in one day last week, on the farm of James Martin in Benton county.

S. D. Snowden, aged 70 years, died at his home in Gervais, on the 31st ult. He was a surveyor and has probably surveyed more claims in Oregon than any other man.

An attempt is being made to build a Congregational church at Hillsboro. Dr. Atkinson is engineering the matter. The estimated cost of the building is $1300.

Miss Mary Burnett, daughter of J. D. Burnett, of Douglas county, died in Santa Rosa, Cal., of consumption on the 3d inst. She went to California in the vain hope of restoring her health.

The John Smith bridge across the Luckiamute will be built at a cost of $800; the slough between Independence and Mouth will be bridged over at a cost of $365. H. M. Stone is the builder of both.

W. R. Willis of Roseburg, has purchased a saw mill to put upon his lands on Cow creek for sawing timbers for the railroad company. The mill is one of the most complete ever brought to the county and will cost when completed about ten thousand dollars.

The following is a statement of the business of the United States land office at Roseburg for the month of March: 873 acres sold for cash; 16 homestead entries, 2342 acres; 10 final homestead entries, embracing 1440 acres; 17 pre-emption filings; 1 timber entry of 160 acres and 1 mineral entry of 20 acres.

The old Cutting mill about twelve miles east of Oregon City, on Milk creek, was totally destroyed by fire last Saturday night. It was leased for two years by a Mr. Gray, who had 60,000 feet of logs in the pond ready for the spring work. The value of the mill was estimated at about $2,000. It caught fire during the night from a burning slab pile near by while no one was around.

The following conveyances and other instruments were recorded in the county clerk's office for Douglas county, during the month of March. Thirty-four deeds, the consideration expressed therein aggregating $11,894, 37 U. S. patents, 3 leases, 1 power of attorney, 26 mining notices and 11 real estate mortgages given to secure the payment of the sum of $51,966 44. One mortgage alone amounted to $23,000.

Plaindealer: Last Tuesday evening seven families numbering about thirty-five souls, came direct from Iowa county, Iowa. They have for the present rented McClallen's old lodging house, where they mean to stop for a while, until they can find suitable lands and homes for their families. Most of them are farmers and intend to buy farms, providing those who have them for sale do not hold them too high, as is often the case when a purchaser comes around who means business. They are intelligent looking and appear to be a good class of citizens, bearing about an air of industry, just such new settlers as this county needs to aid in its development.

The Fire on the Wanlock.

The bark Wanlock, when hauled alongside the dock at Astoria a few days since, was found to have a fire in her hold. Arrangements were made for at once unloading the cargo. The Astorian says, Work went on on the Wanlock all Wednesday night and by Thursday morning all the coke was out. It was evident that the fire was amidships, and the vessel was brought up to Flavel's wharf and the work of hoisting out the coal began. Crowds visited the vessel, which smoked and smelled like an Inferno; the men that were at work were paid two dollars an hour, and they earned their money, as it was suffocating in the hold. About 6 o'clock the fire was reached, a smoldering glow of red coals being visible. Water was turned on from Flavel's force pump, when the coal immediately sprung into great sheets of flame. The alarm was sounded and the boys were on hand with the engines at once; three streams of water were soon going and the vessel was flooded sufficiently to prevent further damage from fire, at least. The tin plate which is the most valuable part of the cargo, will be but slightly damaged; the coal can stand the wetting without any injury, but the salt will, of course, be a loss. It is extremely fortunate that the vessel was in port and able to get the help of our efficient fire department so promptly. Had the catastrophe occurred at sea the result would have been fearful to contemplate.

Anti-Protection Sermon.

The following from the Astorian is a complete sermon against the Republican protective tariff and says a great deal in a very small space. It says: A well known protectionist, in a recent lecture in Brooklyn, declaring that the American farmer "produces four per cent more than enough for us," asked "where would the farmer be if we did not have a manufacturing population?" The answer is that he would probably be in the same place with more than forty per cent of his productions for sale abroad. But one question suggests another. What would become of the American farmer if England should impose a prohibitory tariff on American breadstuffs? Free trade England is the best customer we have, buying two-thirds of what we sell abroad, but as she buys three times as much from other nations, she could drop us entirely at less cost to herself than to us. It is very pleasant to be protected at home from foreign competition and at the same time sell to a free trade nation, thereby occupying a sort of "heads I win, tails you lose" position, but it may not last forever. A little application to us by England of a dose of our own medicine would soon open the eyes of the farmer when, in addition to paying exorbitant prices for the coat which covers by day and the blanket by night, he finds himself cut off from an open market for his surplus breadstuffs and provisions.

The Scandalous Funeral Excursion.

A Washington dispatch says: "It seems probable that the attempt to suppress the items of expense incurred for the Garfield funeral on the part of the House of Representatives will not succeed. Two reports, one in lump, another in items, are likely to be the consequence. Claims have been audited amounting to over $8,000, while bills to more than an equal amount were unadjusted. One item of expense is $1,700 for liquors, wines and lunches at Wornley's, $300 being for "whiskey cocktails" alone. Twelve hundred gloves is another item, and authenticated reports are in circulation that the excursion was more like an unlicensed pleasure party than a formal journey of respect to the late President."

The Democratic County Convention of Polk county has placed in nomination the following ticket: Representatives, N L Butler, Dr W D Jeffries and E D Fenton; County Judge, I F M Butler; Sheriff, J W Kirkland; County Clerk, George Townsend; Commissioners, Jos Graves and Henry Byerly; Assessor, W J Mulkey; School Superintendent, P C Sears; Treasurer, E L Miller; Coroner, Dr J M Conaway.

Longfellow.

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, one of the most popular of modern poets, died at his home in Cambridge, Massachusetts, on the 23d ult. He was born in Portland, Maine, February 27, 1807. He was educated at Bowdoin College in which institution he was some years professor of modern languages, and subsequently was professor of belles lettres in Harvard University, Cambridge, for some twenty years. He visited Europe and spent a number of years there, and had an opportunity of gratifying his literary taste by a familiarity with the choicest productions of continental literature, which enabled him to collect the materials for his beautiful compilation, entitled "The Poets and Poetry of Europe." In 1854 he retired from his professorship in Harvard University, after which he was left in uninterrupted enjoyment of his literary pursuits, and has interested and delighted the refined and literary circles in both Europe and America with his famous poetical productions. And it was said of him in the "Standard Dictionary of Authors," that what the University lost by his withdrawal the world at large gained by his retirement, in "the autumn fruitage of a mind eminent for the fragrance and luxuriance of its early blossoms, and whose golden summer has not unbenes'd the promise of its spring." A mind, richly endowed and fully stored with all the attainments and beauties of the literature of our age, has departed from this material world for a higher and purer sphere; but he has left "Footprints on the sands of time" to interest, instruct and delight mankind, and give immortality to his name.

A Triple Tragedy.

LEWISTON, I. T., April 9.—A triple murder, robbery and arson occurred at Camas creek, Nez Perce county, Idaho, on the 2d inst. The discovery was made on the 5th. Three Chinamen were engaged in mining at a remote place on the creek and were known to have in their possession about $700. On the 5th the cabin was found burned with the charred remains of two of the Chinamen. In the claim was found the body of the third, shot through the head and his throat cut from ear to ear, and with his mining rig upon him, long gum boots and everything indicating that he was killed while engaged at work. The supposition is that the two in the cabin were first killed and then the one in the claim, after which the villain returned and robbed the cabin and then set fire to it. The body on the claim was buried in snow. A young white man in the neighborhood has exhibited considerable gold dust, evidently such as was taken from the claim, and there also was found upon him a pair of boots belonging to one of the murdered men. He has since been arrested. The remains of the murdered men were brought to Lewiston this evening and a post mortem will be held upon the man found in the claim to-morrow. The ball will also be taken from the head; and it is hoped a clue will be found therefrom to further identify the murderer. The name of the arrested man is Gamoway, a young man of unenviable reputation—Oregonian.

The railroad surveys on the extension of the O. & C. Road south of Roseburg are progressing with amazing rapidity. The line is already permanently located beyond the forty mile post in Cow Creek canyon where Mr. Volk and an able corp of engineers are diligently at work pushing the line forward as fast as the nature of the ground will permit. Mr. Habersham's party is camped near the crossing of Cow Creek on the stage road, and they are diligently at work locating the line from the tunnel down the creek, to connect with Mr. Volk. Mr. Dolson is on the mountain beyond Grave Creek, and Mr. Harburt is at present in the Siakiyou mountains near the state line. It is also understood that two more fully equipped parties will soon take the field aside from the engineers on construction.—Plaindealer.
