STATE NEWS.

The Catholic fair held last week at McMinnville netted $350.
Newberg has contributed $19 75 towards the Good Templar's orphan's home.
Through our various exchanges, we learn that a wet Fourth of July was the rule all over the State.
The new academy building at Drain is now under cover, and will be ready for use in time for the fall term.
There are 50,000 head of sheep pastured within a radius of ten miles of McCoy's ranch, all owned in Umatilla county.
Prospect Hill farm in Eastern Oregon, will raise 20,000 bushels of grain this season. The grain is fall sown, hence the very good crop.
Mr. Schoeps, sheriff of Clackamas county, has appointed Mr. Frank Capps of Marshfield his deputy. Mr. Capps was recently candidate for county clerk on the democratic ticket.
Henderson Simpson and John Johnson had an altercation at Dallas on the fifth which resulted in the latter receiving a pistol shot in the hand. Both were arrested, and Johnson, upon examination, was bound over to await the action of the grand jury in the sum of $250.
One hundred and fifty men are employed in burning coal for the Oswego Iron Works. They burn 50 loads per day averaging 200 bushels to the load, to do which takes 200 cords of wood. The daily output of iron is 18 to 20 tons. Over 4000 tons have been made on the present hearth.
On account of cold winds and drought most of the oats and barley in the region of Bake Oven, Wasco county, will be cut for hay. Farmers propose to remedy this matter another year by plowing deep and using seed drills instead of harrowing the grain in broadcast.
Independent. The farmers of Washington county are getting thoroughly awakened to the importance of proper drainage, as the product of the land depends greatly upon a dry soil. Many farmers in the lower end of the county have increased the producing quality of their soil at least 25 per cent, by a small outlay in this wise.
The crop outlook in Jackson county is improving. The late rains, while doing some damage to hay, have been most opportune for late sown grain, and there is now a prospect of an abundant harvest. In some localities there will be a fair peach crop, in others none to speak of, and it is generally conceded that it will be a failure, but other fruits will be gathered in abundance.
The two horse thieves who stole the horses from Gore and Payne at Phoenix one night last week were captured at Adis, Cal., on the 29th by Deputy Sheriff Webb of Jackson county. They resisted arrest when the officers overtook them, when the latter commenced shooting, which was returned by the robbers. During the fight the officers shot fifteen times and the other side nineteen times, resulting in the death of one of the robbers and seriously wounding the other.
Jacksonville Sentinel: On Saturday morning last three masked men suddenly appeared at the house of H. C. Laws, the murderer of the boy Calavan, in Lake county, and commenced shooting at his son, Lee Laws, who was prominently connected with the tragedy last winter. Lee was shot twice and instantly killed, and another shot, probably intended for him, took effect on his younger brother Joseph, whose hip was shattered by the ball. H. C. Laws was absent in this valley at the time, and was warned by telegraph not to return to Linkville, but he did so, and reached there in safety. His son was buried on Monday, but the father prudently absented himself from attendance at the funeral. Joseph is not expected to recover, and there is much apprehension in Lake county that trouble will ensue. This murder, we understand, was committed in Modoc county very near the state line, and of course will be nobody's business in particular.

Minnie Myrtle Miller.

The Port Orford Post has the following interesting particulars in connection with the recent death of this notable woman, so well known here. "Minnie Myrtle Miller," first wife of the poet Joaquin Miller, died in New York on the 15th ult., after a lingering illness. Inasmuch as this was the early home of Mrs. Miller, her father, Mr. Dyer, having taken under the donation law the place at the mouth of Elk river, now owned by Robert McKenzie; that it was here that Joaquin wooed and won her, and that a sister still is a resident of this place, a few lines relative to her somewhat eventful career may not prove uninteresting reading just now. Mrs. Miller, prior to her marriage with Joaquin, acquired some little reputation as a writer for the press of this State, and it was through this means that her acquaintance with the then embryo poet sprang up, he knowing her as 'Minnie Myrtle,' her pseudonym. After a brief correspondence a meeting was arranged which took place here and a very few days thereafter they were one. That much success of many of his poems was due to her ability and taste Joaquin has often admitted, but it is too often the case where the aspirations of both are to reach a common goal by a common route, their domestic relations were not the happiest, and a divorce was obtained by Joaquin by some hocus pocus, though Mrs. Miller first applied for and was on the point of receiving one. Three children were born to them, one of whom is at Marshfield with Mrs. Hilborn—Mrs. Miller's sister—another is at Eugene City with Joaquin's father, while the third and eldest, Maud, has been in a convent in Canada for the past two years, to secure her release from which institution having been the object of her visit East, her efforts proving fruitless, as the young lady was placed there by her father and she had not yet attained her majority. Mrs. Miller did something in the poetry line after the separation, but it was in the lecture field that she was at her best; at one time espousing the cause of woman suffrage, which she abandoned, however, in a short time as decidedly non-productive in a financial point of view. She married a man named Logan in Portland, but they soon parted, she resuming her first husband's name. At her death Joaquin was present, as also Maud, who arrived too late, however, to find her mother conscious.

Oregon Government Lands.

The choicest government lands in Oregon as elsewhere throughout the Union for agricultural purpose, have been mainly taken up. There are, however, very extensive tracts lying among the foothills of the Blue, Cascade, and Coast mountains, generally covered with forests of variable density, which will sustain a large population engaged in mixed husbandry, still open for the first applicants under the United States land laws. By the provisions of the homestead Act, every head of a family—male or female, or single man over twenty-one years of age, a citizen of the United States, or having declared his intention to become such—can enter, on payment of the registry fee from $5 50 to $22, one hundred and sixty acres of government land—excepting lands bearing gold, cinnabar or copper—and obtain a patent therefor after five years continuous residence upon, and improvement thereof.
"Col." Hawkins.
Here is how the great and only Col. Hawkins, who fought, bled and ought to have died in the "war," goes for an enemy through the Hillsboro Tribune: NOTICE.
"That cowardly scoundrel who amused himself on Sunday Evening Pasting up lying notices about me can have his bill settled by calling at my office but you wout come for your soul is so small if you have any at all, that you could put it in the hollow of a tobacco seed and it would have as much as a tadpole in Lake Superior. Kansas Jay Hawks included your villiny is all known and days numbered you say behind my back what you dare not say to my face. come out and show your hand, and I promise your miserable hide will be like a murrin. Hide all full of holes and wont pay for tanning."
R. A. H.

Fire at Salem.

Another fire occurred at the Capital city on Friday evening, July 7th. The stove foundry of W. T. Gray & Co., situated immediately south of the agricultural works, were entirely consumed. The fire was first discovered issuing from the roof near the cupola, just after the men had stopped work for the day, and is supposed to have caught from the furnaces, which had been in use the entire afternoon. The fire department was soon on the ground and worked manfully to save property, but the building being a wooden one and quite dry was soon consumed, together with the machinery and stock. The loss sustained by W. T. Gray & Co. will reach fully $7,000. Insured for $3,000. The building belonged to Messrs Wheeland and Edwards and was not insured. Their loss is $1,500.

George Washington's will is on file

in the office of the Clerk of Fairfax county, Va. Hitherto the document has been without protection, and curious persons in handling it have subjected it to a great deal of wear and tear. Now, however, the will is in a glass case, where it may be seen but not touched. It is written on heavy unruled paper, about note size, and every side is covered. There are twenty-seven pages all of which have Washington's name attached, except the twenty-third, which ended with the words, "City of Washington," and it is supposed that in looking over it Washington mistook the words for his signature and therefore failed to sign the page.

The method of voting in England is quite different from our simple and informal fashion.

A voting ticket containing the names of all the candidates of both parties is supplied by the sheriff's officer to each voter after he enters the polling booth. He must use this ticket and no other. In a private box, secured from observation, he makes a cross upon the names of the candidates for whom he wishes to vote, and then deposits his ballot in the box.

D. T. Stanley has been elected president of Christian college to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of T. F. Campbell, who will go east in the interest of the college.

To THE MAD HOUSE.—Rev. G. W. Sloan, an Episcopal minister, of Cheney, W. T., says the Standard, was brought to this city last week in charge of Sheriff's Hatton and Montgomery, of Spokane county, en route to the Steilacoom asylum. He was engaged in building two churches, when the mad spell to which he is subject seized him. He is very violent. The band tournament in Dallas last week called together by the close of the first day an assemblage of 5,000 people. There was but one entry besides the Dallas band, and, therefore there was no contest.
