SIX HOURS TO GO.
Leavenworth (Ind.) Democrat.

On last Wednesday William Elbert was hauling wood for a lime kiln in Meade county Kentucky, he was thrown over a cliff by the oxen running away. He fell twelve feet and lodged on some rocks, but before he came to be rolled over another eight feet high, both times falling on his face. He was picked up by friends at 9 o'clock, A. M., and was taken to a neighbor's house, when medical aid was sent for, which was on hand in a few minutes and pronounced him dead. Arrangements were at once made for the burial, and the supposed dead man dressed and laid out. The relatives arrived at about 3 o'clock, and the grief stricken old mother was mourning over the sad fate of her son, when all at once he raised to a sitting position, and said: "Why, mother, when did you come here?" The household was terribly excited, and it was some time ere they could be questioned enough to answer the question asked by the young man. His face was terribly swollen and bruised, and he was unable to move a muscle, but asked to be put in bed again. He described his feelings while in the trance as being that of sleeping, and tells of seeing faces of many acquaintances who have been dead for years, but could not talk to them. Young Elbert was in this place last Monday, and seemed to be getting along all right and looking well, but was terribly bruised up.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Some Outspoken Sentiments of Great Value from Parties of the Highest Standing.

When the people of America become so thoroughly aroused, and on a subject of such serious importance as the preservation of their lives and health, it is but natural that the ones who have been largely instrumental in the origin of this movement should then speak frankly and directly to the people most interested. It is for this reason that we thus come before the public and make the following revelations.

Every careful observer who has sought to keep pace with the march of events has noted the alarming increase of certain peculiar physical troubles within the past few years. These troubles have come at unexpected moments and in a most treacherous way. They have manifested themselves in innumerable forms, but they have all ways had the same cause. They have not afflicted the minor parts of the body but gone direct to the strongholds of the system and their work has usually been as prompt as it is fatal. Their treacherous and deceptive nature has often prevented a careful analysis of what causes them, and as a result, intense suffering and final disaster have usually ensued. The real cause, however, has been a derangement of the kidneys and symptoms of the terrible Bright's disease, which has cast its dark shadow over so many homes in the land and is increasing wonderfully and continually. It is now conceded by the ablest physicians in every land and by eminent scientists the world over, that this disease is the result of blood poisoning. This poisoning is brought about by wasted and unhealthy kidneys that permit the poison to remain in the blood, instead of throwing it from the system. But it is equally evident to all who have studied into the effects and have become conversant with the facts, that a disordered state of the kidneys and liver produces most of the common complaints and pains which afflict the human race, and they can be traced to this source just as certainly as can Bright's disease. To purify a stream we must go to its source, and to cure a disease, we must remove the cause. It being true, therefore, that nine-tenths of all human ailments are caused by diseased kidneys or livers the only certain way to cure these troubles is by treating the organs which cause them. How intimately the kidneys are associated with the entire system may be understood from the fact that over 1,000 ounces of blood pass through them every hour, being more than 200 gallons or nearly one ton in the course of 24 hours. This vast mass of living fluid is sent to every part of the body, and if the kidneys are diseased the impurities that are in the blood are not removed, and hence pass through the veins, carrying diseases in some of its many terrible forms. The horrors which accompany most of the diseases caused by disordered kidneys and liver cannot be described in print, while the dangers surrounding them are even greater than the agony. And yet a person may be troubled for months without knowing the cause of the diseases that have attacked him. Some of the symptoms of the first stages, any one of which indicates disordered kidneys or liver are these: Pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensations, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged) a dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling especially at night, puffing or bloating under the eyes, etc. If any of the following things are noticed about the fluids passed from the system, it shows that the kidneys and liver are out of order: A red deposit, a serum upon the surface, an unusual thickness or thinness, a very dark or a very light color, a burning sensation in passing, an unusual odor, a retention, or a frequent desire to void and inability to do so.

The above are a few of the hundreds of symptoms which indicate the beginning of aggravated cases of kidney or liver difficulties, and they require instant attention. If these symptoms are not checked at once they are almost certain to result in some of the many terrible diseases of the kidneys. But unpleasant as all the symptoms and even these diseases may be they are nothing compared to the last stages of the complaints. The kidneys waste away by degrees, accompanied by intense pain; the heart becomes uncontrollable; the lungs are oppressed; the eyeballs grow glossy, and the entire system is reduced and debilitated. For weeks before death comes the sufferer looks forward to it as a blessed relief, and anything that can furnish even temporary help is gladly hailed. Then it is that bloating begins; the face becomes puffy and pallid; the breath can only be caught in gasps, speech is impossible and muscular action suspended. The patient finally sinks into a state of unconsciousness to everything except the pains which are racking him, and death comes by certain but slow degrees. There can be but one conclusion so thoroughly aroused, and on a subject which all readers of care and judgment will draw from these facts, which is the necessity of treating the disease in time and by that means which has been proven the best and most efficient.

It has been our privilege to treat more cases of this terrible complaint than has ever been known in the world before in the history of the world. The wonderful sale which our remedies have attained is due wholly to the fact that they have cured the ones who have used them. The power and value of any remedy must rest wholly on the basis of worth, and here is just where our Safe Kidney and Liver Cure has found its wonderful power and success. But in this connection comes one important fact: It has always been true that articles of merit are subject to imitations. No one seeks to counterfeit the bills of a worthless bank. The productions of a cracked inventor or witless writer are never copied. It is just so with a healing remedy. If it possess no merit it will not be subjected to imitations which spring up on every side. While it is a tribute to the value to the value of this medicine that it has imitations, still in justice to those who are suffering these who are suffering, we feel that all should be warned against them.

There is but one known remedy that has ever been able to cure serious kidney troubles or control these great organs when once deranged, and that remedy is Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. There are numerous nostrums on the market claiming to be just as efficient and some which even claim to be the same. The test of merit, however, is in what has been accomplished, and we therefore say unhesitatingly that for all diseases of the kidneys, liver, and urinary organs Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure stands alone, not only in point of excellence, but in the wonderful results it has achieved. In order to successfully avoid the purchase of spurious and injurious medicines, observe these facts:

Our remedy is put up in dark amber glass bottles, with the safe (our trade mark) blown in the back. A private proprietary six cent internal revenue stamp is affixed to the neck and covers the top of the cork and is of a light brown color. In the middle thereof is a Safe in outline, and on it the picture of a negro gathering herbs. If this stamp is not found on every bottle of the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure or if there is any evidence that it has been tampered with, and if a Safe is not blown on the back of the bottle reject the bottle at once, and insist on having a genuine one.

We are led to publish the foregoing in order that the public may know and realize just where we stand. We have always sought to keep our personality from intruding upon the public, knowing full well that the value of our remedy was the essential thing, but the unexampled use which which has been made of this medicine, and the volumes of letters we are constantly receiving demand a personal statement from us. We are justly gratified at the confidence which has been shown, and thankful for the myriads of cures our remedy has performed, and we pledge ourselves for the future, as we have endeavored in the past to furnish the only valuable remedy that can control and cure all the many terrible troubles arising from disorders of these great organs.

Sincerely,
I. W. WARNER & CO.,
Rochester, N. Y.

There is said to be something serious with the Egyptian obelisk in New York; that lately it has been undergoing important changes, as if from atmospheric influences, which threaten to roughen if not to "chip" or "scale" its surface and obliterate its inscriptions. The rains and snow of last winter have forced into the delicate tracery of the latter millions of particles of snow which froze as they entered and melted again in a few hours, and on close inspection it would appear that by this process the surface has undergone a very marked deterioration; also, that the corners begin to exhibit decided symptoms of wearing away, threatening to change the shape of the shaft from quadrilateral to a circular. In order to preserve it from the fate which our climate threatens it with, it is proposed to take it down, and place it in the great hall of the museum just opposite, heightening the roof to make room for it.

A high protective tariff on the necessities of life, and free whisky seems to be the Congressional policy of Republican managers.
