General Keifer, speaker of the lower house of congress, arrived at Topeka on the 6th, and addressed the old soldiers on the reunion camp grounds.

A meeting was held in Philadelphia on the 5th to make arrangements to give Chief Engineer Melville, of the Jeannette, a proper reception on his arrival.

"Sacramento Bob," who recently completed a term of 17 years in the penitentiary of California, was picked up by the police and brought back on the 6th.

The condition of stock in Nebraska was never better than now. The mild weather of last winter and fine pasturage this summer, with good care, has done wonders for cattle.

Mrs. Sarah J. Young, a respectable woman, aged 46, was outraged on the 2d near Union City by a negro, Winston Wade. On the night of the 5th a mob of 100 men hung him to a tree.

Prof. Gremley and J. Creelman, of the Herald, made an ascension in the balloon Columbus at the Polo grounds at N. Y., on the 6th. At 6:15 the balloon was making toward Sandy Hook.

Henosay, an Indian, who has been in nearly all of Victoria's raids, was captured on Mesalero reservation on the 6th and had been placed in the guard house at Fort Leavenworth.

At a meeting of the tariff commission at Louisville, Ky., on the 7th an argument in favor of the removal of the tax on alcohol used in the arts and for other industrial purposes was made.

Some scalawag is making life a terror to a young widow named Annie Scanlon, of New York, by ordering all sorts of goods to her residence. The police have been called upon to stop the annoyance.

The Chickasaw Indian legislature is organized and Governor Overton declared elected. He delivered a message dwelling strongly on the necessity of schools, a penitentiary, and a tax on cattle going through.

Three thousand merchants from Colorado, Nebraska, Wyoming, Kansas, and New Mexico attended a barbecue given by Denver merchants on the 6th. Four thousand guests were seated at the first table. In the evening a grand display of fireworks was made. The whole was a grand success.

A Chicago dispatch of the 7th says: Yesterday and to day the wreckage of an unknown steamer came ashore. It consisted of part of the upper cabin, painted white, and containing three state room windows, with painted blinds, a door or two and some miscellaneous parts of the upper works.

Miss Phillipina Fregel, of North St. Louis, for the last three months has not taken a bite of solid food nor been able to retain liquids. She has been treated by several physicians who introduced food into her stomach with a tube but it was immediately ejected. She is not confined to bed but helps a relative with whom she lives in light household duties.

The New York sick exchange is about establishing a colony for the cultivation of silk in New Jersey. It has not yet been fully determined where this will be done, but it will be done within 25 miles of New York. Six families, composed, with one exception, entirely of women who have been teachers in public schools, have already expressed their intention of joining the colony.

A special train bearing the Marquis of Lorne, Princess Louise and party arrived at Chicago on the 6th. They visited Pullman early in the morning and reaching the city were driven direct to a hotel without ceremony or reception. At the hotel twenty-one rooms were reserved for them. They have arranged to spend the day quietly in the city and proceed to San Francisco via the Rock Island road at once.

A special from El Paso says: Three young men have discovered a gold mine sixty miles north of this place in the Organ mountains. News of the discovery is fully confirmed, and a piece of ore weighing two pounds contained $150 worth of the precious metal. A shaft has been sunk seven feet to the vein, which is three feet wide. A ton of such ore would be worth $10,000. Every one is wild with excitement.

A Cleveland special gives the following story of the owner of a new fast horse developed there recently: "I'll show you fellows that I have got no dollar horse," said Ritchart, owner of the brown gelding, St. Louis, at the race track. His tone was that of virtuous indignation. Ritchart is a sport-loving farmer who lives two miles and a half out of Foster, Iowa. Some time ago he went down into Kentucky and bought this piece of horse flesh. He entered the 2:22 class, and as he was a stranger here the turf sharps were inclined to laugh at Ritchart for a greeny. Pools on St. Louis were slumped by the regulars at one dollar against the field in which wore such horses as Mollie Middleton, Alleghany Boy, Fanny Wilkes, Ben Star and others, to the number of 12 starters, but as pool selling proceeded, Ritchart was observed filling his pockets with slips, buying his own horse at one dollar, which against the field made an average equal to $1 against $150. Ritchart took all he could get and the race began. It was for three out of five. The first two heats were won by Fanny Wilkes, Ritchart's horse, St. Louis, lagging away in the rear, scarcely saving his distance, but he won the last three with the greatest ease in remarkable time and leaving the rest way behind.

Republicans were victorious by a handsome majority in the Vermont election held on the 5th.

Arrangements are consummated for a three mile race between Courtney, Riley, Ten Eyck and Elliott for $1,000.

Cholera prevails in Manila, an official dispatch to Madrid stating that 174 natives and 1 European died there on the 6th.

A severe earthquake occurred at Panama on the morning of the 7th. Many buildings were damaged, but no lives lost.

The twenty mile race between Espinosa and Belle Cook at Minneapolis on the 7th, was won by Cook by over two miles, in 45:10. Espinosa was thrown from her horse, and considerably bruised.

The London Times in reviewing a communication from the India office in which the existence of cholera at Aden is denied, says there is no cause for cholera to be added to the enemy which the English have to contend against in Egypt.

An engine on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad struck a wagon a mile from Barnville, Ohio, on the 6th, and fatally injured Mrs. Kennard, Miss Steer and Charles Steer, and Lemuel Juest was thrown over the pilot and carried to town on the engine, and was scarcely scratched.

Mrs. Sachs, who was the victim of a murderous assault by her husband in San Francisco some weeks since left the state before the trial of Sachs was called, and the case against him was dismissed for want of prosecution. It is understood that the case has been compromised and a divorce granted.

At Minneapolis on the 7th, Judge Newcomb, a prominent citizen of St. Louis, visited a bunco shop and played away $30,000. The victim captured one of the swindlers on the street the next day and held him until the police arrived. He proved to be the notorious Doc Baggs.

The California state convention of the women's christian temperance union began on the 6th in Oakland. A large number of delegates were present and the room crowded with persons interested in the temperance movement. An opening address was delivered by the president, Mrs. P. B. Brown, of Oakland.

A fast mail train on the New York Central railroad struck the village omnibus in Hion, N. Y., on the 7th, and Albert A. Radway, a dry good merchant, was horribly mangled, being thrown 100 feet. Two other men were seriously injured and three slightly bruised. The bus driver mistook the train for the Atlantic express, which stops at the station.

The Mormon priesthood have been circulating a secret circular giving instruction to their people directly opposite to law and the rulings of commissioners. One of the circulars was unearthed recently. They have also decided to have three bishops set with precinct registrars and oversee registration. Gentiles are much incensed at the interference.

The Marquis of Lorne, Princess Louise and the vice legal suite, are expected to arrive in San Francisco on the 12th. They will have an enthusiastic welcome by the different British societies, and delegations will receive them at the depot and escort the party to the Palace hotel, where apartments have been engaged. The rooms are the finest in the building.

The report of the microscopical experts containing the result of their investigations into the condition of Griteau's brain was forwarded to Philadelphia where it will be published in the Medical Journal's report, couched in language more technical than the report of the surgical autopsy and necessarily almost unintelligible to even the average doctor.

General Sherman says that Major General John M. Schofield will be ordered to San Francisco to relieve Major General Irvin McDowell of the command of the military division of the Pacific, and that General McDowell will be ordered to his home in New York, preparatory to his retirement from active service in October next. The matter will not be acted on until the return of Secretary Lincoln.

Two car loads of sick Chinamen arrived at Bakersfield, Cal., on the 6th. Several of them in a dying condition and one dead. They came from the advance of the Southern Pacific, in Texas, and a rumor that the disease was yellow fever, caused so much excitement and fear, that a coroner's jury could not be obtained to sit on the deceased. It is not known what the disease is but the report of yellow fever is not authentic.

A Walla Walla dispatch of the 7th says: Billy Kanonth, a man well known, and a great favorite here with everybody; was found dead at 5 P. M., at the driving park. Ten minutes previously he was left by a companion putting horses in the stable, and on his return found him dead by a well. Death is supposed to have been from heart disease, as no violent marks were on the body. An inquest will be held to-morrow morning.

The Star's Guymay special of the 6th says: The powder house of Feldner & Van Barstall, at Guymay, blew up on the afternoon of the 2d. It contained upward of 10,000 pounds of Judson, Tonito and other kinds of powder. One man had his legs blown off and died from the effects. Houses and all kinds of buildings were cracked, roofs destroyed and doors and windows blown in. The damage to the city is estimated at $100,000.

Texas advices say heavy rains have fallen throughout the north and northeast parts of the state, reaching south to San Antonio, where 4 1/2 inches fell on the 6th. The Concho is out of its banks, and towns are again submerged. Floods are reported also at Eagle Pass, Stockton and Davis. The Rio Grande has spread all over the lower parts of Eagle Pass, and people are prepared to move from the side of the bluff. The river is higher now than ever before and much anxiety is felt for towns lower down.

The Nebraska greenback state convention finished its labor on the 7th, and placed the nomination of a state ticket in the hands of a committee of 35, to confer with the anti-monopoly convention on the 27th at Hastings, for the purpose of combining all the opposition to the republican and democratic parties. L. Tood was chairman. L. C. Pao was re-elected chairman of the state convention and P. P. Ingalls made a speech to the convention. Thomas J. McQuidy was unanimously nominated for governor.

Suddenly Turning Gray.

Staff-Surgeon Parry, while serving in India during the mutiny, saw a strange sight. Among the prisoners taken in a skirmish at Chandra was a sepoy of the Bengal army. He was brought before the authorities, and put to the question. Fully alive to his position, the Bengalee stood almost stupefied with fear, trembling greatly, with horror and despair plainly depicted on his countenance. While the examination was proceeding, the by-standers were startled by the sergeant in charge of the prisoner exclaiming, "He is turning gray!" All eyes were turned on the unfortunate man, watching with wondering interest the change coming upon his splendid, glossy, jet-black locks. In half an hour they were of a uniform grayish hue.

Some years ago a young lady, who was anxiously awaiting the coming of her husband elect, received a letter conveying the sad tidings of his shipwreck and death. She instantly fell to the ground insensible, and so remained for five hours. On the following morning her sister saw that her hair, which had been previously of a rich brown color, had become as white as a cambric handkerchief, her eyebrows and eyelashes retaining their natural color. After a while the whitened hair fell off, and was succeeded by a new growth of gray. This case coming under the observation of Dr. Erasmus Wilson, shattered his unbelief in the possibility of the sudden conversion of the hair from a dark color to snow-white. No man knows more about the hair than Dr. Wilson; but he is at a loss to explain the phenomenon quite to his own satisfaction. "If," says he, "it be established that the hair is susceptible of permeation by fluids derived from the blood—a transmission of fluids from the blood-vessels to the skin into the substance of the hair really occurs, the quantity and nature being modified by the peculiarity of constitution or state of health of the individual—it follows that such fluids, being altered in their chemical qualities, may possess the power of impressing new conditions on the structure into which they enter. Thus, if they contain an excess of salts of lime, they may deposit salts of lime in the tissue of the hair, and so produce a change in its appearance from dark to gray." Then he tells us: "The phenomenon may be the result of electric action; it may be the consequence of chemical alteration wrought in the very blood itself, or it may be a conversion for which the tissue of the hair is chiefly responsible." So many "may-bes" from such an authority prove that the mystery of the sudden whitening of the hair is yet unsolved. It is likely to remain unsolved, since the doctor—more modest than many of his brethren—owns that "the mysteries of vital chemistry are unknown to man."—[Popular Science Monthly for August.

Killed by a Poisoned Egg.

The French papers record a remarkable accident by which the Comte de Belmont has had the misfortune to lose his youngest son. The Count before his marriage had been a traveler, and from the Polynesian Islands he had gathered a remarkable collection of lethal weapons showing the ingenuity, and in some cases at least the artistic skill and power lavished on "kris" and "zagaie," on sword and dagger. In a collection of this nature intended to show the warlike methods of savage races, arrows and other weapons whose shining blades had been dipped in poison were of course conspicuous. His two sons—Albert, aged eight, and Rudolphe, aged twelve years—having been left alone for a short time in the cabinet, with the inquisitive rashness of childhood took down two of the weapons to play with. Chance placed in the hands of the youngest child one of the poisoned weapons, and a slight scratch on the wrist was sufficient to inject the fatal virus. When the unhappy father returned he saw the child writhing in agony upon the ground, a prey to frightful convulsions, from which death alone relieved him. The medical man who was called in was unable to save him, and could not even recognize the poison on the dagger blade. That most commonly used for such purposes is derived from the "strychnine toxifer." The "woorai" is said in some cases to have retained its poisonous activity after being kept dry for five years.—[Manchester Guardian.

A Photographer with a Good Job.

The trials of the photographer who takes babies are light in comparison with those of the sufferer who has the contract for photographing 364 wives of the Sultan of Morocco. A great many of these ladies wanted their pictures taken. The mighty potentate who enjoys the situation as husband to them, consented to have it done, provided the whole party would agree to be put on an equal footing, and all alike submit themselves to the gentle influence of the camera. Thus the older and uglier ones, as well as the young beauties, are to have their likenesses handed down to posterity. These 364 ladies are not to be taken in a group, like a general assembly or an agricultural convention, but each one on a plate by herself. It is understood that the French photographer who has the job is to take each beauty until she or the Sultan for her shall be satisfied with the likeness. It is easy to see that this gives the Frenchman a prodigious job, for there is no probability that the ladies will be satisfied with less than two or three dozen sittings apiece.

Love, But No Pie.

"Do you think so, darling?" "Yes," said the girl, passing her plate for more pie and smiling archly as she spoke, "kisses and embraces and fair words are very pleasant things—sweet lips and warm arms and loving eyes—but truth and sincerity and loyalty and purity are very much fairer and rarer."

"You are right," replied her husband, looking at her with loving tenderness; "you are right, sweetheart, and I will not deceive you any longer."

"What do you mean?" she asked, a look of horror passing over her face.

"There is but one piece of pie left," said George W. Simpson, "and I shall tackle it myself."

Some men are like oil poured on the troubled waters of life, and other men are like oil—the oil of vitriol.

A Fable.

One day, while an old goose sat fanning herself on the side porch, along came a fox who was lame and dirty and badly knocked about. Trying to look as humble as he could, and throwing all possible pathos into his voice, he began:

"Ma'am, for heaven's sake take pity on me!"

"La, sakes! but what a distressed object you are!" she replied with swelling heart.

"I am lame and hungry and desire relief," continued the fox.

"And you shall have it, my dear animal. Mr. Goose has worked hard all his days, and has managed to get a few dollars ahead. It is my duty, therefore, to divide with you. I shall not ask for your past. You may have been a lazy loafer all your life, but that is nothing to me. You may have received that lame foot and black eye while trying to enter some farmer's hen-roost, but that is none of my business. Charity says I must succor you."

"Yes'm."

"It is, however, my duty to hope that you desire to be good."

"Oh, yes."

"And that you will begin now to think seriously of the future?"

"You bet I will."

Then she took him in and gave him a square meal and bound up his hurts, and presented him with a shilling testament and sent him on his way with:

"Remember that charity is the greatest of all virtues."

"Just so," said the Fox, as he slid out. The words made a deep impression on his mind, and as he passed the hen-roost he came to a halt and remarked:

"By hard work and plenty of cheek I have discovered a coop full of fat-hens. Over in the swamp are dozens of poor Foxes who are obliged to eat Rabbit for want of something better. Charity compels me to give this thing away."

That night the coop was raided and the poultry devoured, and as the last leg disappeared, the old Fox who had worked up the job, was heard saying: "Chicken covereth a multitude of sins."

MORAL.

He who strikes a beggar with a club in place of a cold dinner will hit the place oftener than he misses it.—[Detroit Press.

Pigeon Shooting.

It is not generally known that pigeon-shooting is due to Spain, and that for more than two centuries this miserable slaughter of tame birds has been in vogue in that benighted country. Pigeon-shooting is not a sport, for, as the word is understood, sport means something where endurance is called into play. The birds in a great many matches are subjected to a great deal of cruelty. It is a well-known fact that pigeons are doctored on certain occasions to meet the requirements of the so-called sportsmen. To make a bird turn to the right the left eye is put out, or to cause an unsteady flight half the tail feathers or portions of the pinions are plucked. The greatest rascality takes place in pigeon matches, which the knowing ones take advantage of. In England some years ago ladies were sometimes present at pigeon-matches, but of late public opinion has been so strong that they have been shamed out of witnessing such cruelties. Rat catching as an amusement is coarse and degrading enough, but if a comparison be possible between it and pigeon-shooting; the first is by far the nobler sport, for though the man sets on the dog to catch the vermin, in pigeon-shooting it is the man and not the dog that undertakes the business. A bill to put a stop to pigeon-shooting in Great Britain is to be presented to Parliament by Mr. Anderson, and consists of two provisions. In the Cruelty to Animals Prevention act, Mr. Anderson wishes that the word animal should "mean and include any vertebrate animals, whether of domestic or wild nature, kept in confinement or captivity," and that in the definition of cruelty, "the shooting of birds liberated from any trap or other contrivance or from the hand" should be included. When the skill of the marksman with his hammerless gun can be conclusively shown by the shattering of glass balls or clay pigeons, why should people who assume to understand the decencies of life wish to inflict death and torture on poor birds? Can there be any pleasure in going to a coop full of pigeons and cutting the throats of the birds? Such a nasty business is delegated to the poultry man, who is paid for his trouble.—[N. Y. Times.

The Little Boy who Lacked Faith.

"Pa," said a little boy, "what makes people pray?"

"Why, my son, they pray for—they pray for—that is, they ask the Lord to save their souls."

"And if I pray will the Lord save my soul?"

"Yes, when you pray with faith your prayers will be answered."

"How with faith?"

"Why, if you pray, believing at the time that your prayer will be answered."

"But how can I pray that way if I don't know. If I knowed that I could get what I pray for, then I could believe that I would get it and could pray with—that do you call it, pa?"

"Faith."

"Faith," repeated the child. "If I was to believe that by praying for a goat that I could get him, and he was to pray, would I get him?"

"No."

"But I want a goat, and if I was to pray I'd have to pray for one. Pa, what makes men groan when they pray at church?"

"They groan as a kind of amen."

"Do they like to groan?"

"I don't know."

"Do you groan?"

"Sometimes."

"Do you like to groan?"

"No."

"Then what makes you groan? You don't have to, do you?"

"That'll do now, hush."

"But if you didn't want to groan, they couldn't make you, could they?"

"I'll box your ears, sir, if you don't hush. Go on away now. I'd rather be questioned by a prosecuting attorney."—[Detroit Free Press.

It may sound paradoxical to say that a man may lose his sight and yet be a seer.

MORSELS OF GASTRONOMY.

Banana pie is now included among the alleged delicacies of the season.

It is now the proper thing to see how many fish can be served at one fish dinner.

So-called aesthetic youths at the seaside make a breakfast of iced tea, fruits and oatmeal.

Sheepshead, pompano, sea bass, red snapper are now the fish in highest favor.

Woodcock is now in season, and tastes fine enough for any game-lover, whether on toast or not.

There were eighteen courses and ten wines at the dinner in Paris to open the Hotel de Ville.

Now the epicure says and says that salt pork ruins any article of food with which it is cooked.

Young duck, with apple sauce, would seem to be a favorite course at Newport dinner parties just now.

Some of our would-be epicures now have Madeira with the fish—or what they declare is Madeira.

Among the good soups of the hour should not be forgotten puree of crab and bisque of crawfish.

We used to call them chicken croquettes, but now on the menu they are styled "croquettes de capon."

Artificial mushroom sauce one gets at some hotels and restaurants is a good thing to let severely alone.

A nice and reasonable entree at this time is chicken cutlets with freshly picked "field mushrooms."

Deviled clams in the shell are a great dish at Coney Island, where some of the cooks know how to prepare it properly.

Wise people will let veal severely alone, especially in hot weather. To eat of it in large or small quantities not only means veal but wool.

Blackberries are vastly improved and benefited by being covered with cracked ice and powdered sugar for some little time before being served.

Cosmopolitan stock is the foundation for more than half the soups of different names enumerated on the bill of fare at European plan hotels and restaurants.—[N. Y. Express.

USEFUL RECIPES

To remove ink stains from printed books procure a pennyworth of oxalic acid, which dissolve in a small quantity of warm water; then slightly wet the stain with it, when it will disappear.

Ready-Made Glue.—A good glue ready for use is made without the application of heat by dissolving the glue in common whisky instead of water. Both are put together in a bottle, which is then corked tight and allowed to stand for three or four days. If prepared in this way it will keep for years and always be ready for use, except in extremely cold weather when it will be necessary to set it in warm water before using. A strong solution of ising ass made in the same manner is an excellent cement for leather.

An Excellent House Plant.—Chinese primrose is one of the best blooming plants we can get in winter flower-both single and double varieties. They require when growing, plenty of moisture at the roots and shaded from the direct rays of the sun. When watering, however, do not allow the water to fall on the leaves, as it is liable to cause them to rot. A soil suitable for this plant is sandy loam and good mixture of leaf-mold and thoroughly rotted manure. Do not put into too large pots as the soil is apt to sour before the roots pass through it sufficiently to use up the moisture.

A Strong and Handy Cement.—One of the strongest cements, and very readily made, is obtained when equal quantities of gutta percha and shellac are melted together and well-stirred. This is best done in an iron capsule placed on a sand bath, and heated either over a gas furnace or on the top of a stove. It is a combination possessing both hardness and toughness, qualities that make it particularly desirable in mending crockery. When this cement is used the articles to be mended should be warmed to about the melting point of the mixture, and then retained in proper position until cool, when they are ready for use.

Kerosene Stains Upon A Floor.—A correspondent writes from Pilot Mound, Minn., that the breaking of a kerosene lamp has caused a "frightful spot" upon the floor, and wishes to know how it can be removed. Good kerosene has a boiling point of 880 degrees, considerably above the melting of lard—hence in order to drive it completely from any fabric, from paper or from wood, it must be heated high enough to form a vapor, when, if pure, it may be completely removed. Heat may be applied to the floor by using flatirons sufficiently hot, first placing a piece of paper over the spot. It may be that, after the oil is driven from the surface by heat, the stain will appear; some of the oil remaining in the wood will be brought to the surface by capillary attraction. In such a case it will be necessary to repeat the operation as often as the stain appears.

Benefit of Langster.

Probably there is not the remotest corner or little inlet of the minute blood vessels (life vessels) of the body that does not feel some wavelet from that great convulsion (hearty laughter) shaking the central man. The blood moves more lively—probably its chemical, electric, or vital condition is distinctly modified—it conveys a different impression to all the organs of the body as it visits them on that particular mystic journey, when the man is laughing, from what it does at other times. And so, we doubt not, a good laugh may lengthen a man's life, conveying a distinct stimulus to the vital forces. And the time may come when physicians, attending more closely than at present, unfortunately, they are apt to do, to the innumerable subtle influences which the soul exerts upon its tenement of clay, shall prescribe to torpid patients so many "peals of laughter," to be undergone at such and such a time, just as they do now that far more objectionable prescription, a pill or an electric or galvanic shock; and shall study the best and most effective method of producing the required effect in each patient.—[Good Health.
