Milmo's mesa has a repis president of the bank of Mexico, an miles. institution with powers and privileges in this country as are the banks of England in Great Britian. His fatherin-law, Santiago Vidarri, was executed for supplying money to revolutionits, and he himself narrowly escaped a similar death, though he was connected in a monetary sense with the opposing forces. Since then brigands have captured him several times and compelled him to pay from $15,000 to $25,000 ransome. These adventures taught him precaution, and he has turned the mess into a sort of citadel, accessable by only a narrow path, obstructed by an iron gate of enormous proportions. He has distilleries and several factories, in which goods are manufactured for his own use, on the mesa, and intends to retire to his mansion whenever another insurrection is imminent.

Before, however, he could call attention of the railroad officials to the error, the /baggage-room was destroyed by fire. He sued and obtained $10,000 darmges, but the court of appeals granted a new trial. The latter again resulted in favor of the plaintiff, but on appeal a new trial was again obtained. This was also unsatisfactory, and the case came up for the fourth time, with the above mentioned result. McCormick is immensely rich, but being determined to resist an unjust exaction, he carried the suit through twenty years of litigation, and it is to be hoped that the lesson will be of use to the traveling
