STATE NEWS.

Several cases of scarlet fever at McMinnville.

Ducks and geese are numerous in Lake county.

The Wasco county court house will be finished in a short time.

Barley 90 cents and oats 75 cents per bushel at Cove, Union county.

The road from Alsea to Monroe, Benton county, is now open for travel.

The new charter makes the town of Ashland one mile wide and two miles long.

A good sample of sorghum made from cane grown in Wasco county has been shown in The Dalles.

A five-inch vein of coal has been struck in tunnel No. 1 on the Oregon Pacific railroad in Benton county.

The Albany saw mills are now engaged in sawing timbers for tunnels on the southern extension of the O. & C. R. R.

The recent term of the Circuit Court in Yamhill county was the least expensive of any that has yet been held there.

A man named J. Meiligh, residing at Coquille City, committed suicide last Saturday by hanging himself. Family trouble was the cause.

A sulphur spring at Cove, Union county, keeps the water in the mill race warm, and enables the millers to keep the wheel going even in the coldest weather.

Nearly all the pack trains that transport goods from Crescent City to Josephine county, are owned by Chinamen, who understand the business thoroughly.

Jacksonville is improving rapidly and a healthy growth pervades the entire place. There is a good demand for houses, notwithstanding there are very few, if any, to rent.

Montgomery station, on the O. & C. R. R., in Douglas county, contains 35 houses including several stores, saloons and boarding houses, all doing a thriving business.

Comstock & Miller have completed their contract with the O. & C. R. R. Co., of clearing the right of way as far as Cow creek tunnel, with the exception of 1900 feet which will be completed next spring.

On the road from Pendleton to Centerville, says the Tribune, several log houses are being erected by Indians or half breeds, who have picked out their 160 acres and will commence farming a la white man.

The large tunnel at Cow creek hill, one and one-half miles east of Montgomery, is being rapidly pushed forward night and day. On the south side the tunnel entrance has been effected 300 feet, and on the north side 150 feet. Contractors complain of not having reached a solid formation as yet, much to their dissatisfaction.

The Umatilla Indians expect to put under cultivation next year over 16,000 acres of their reservation. They have a saw and flour mill, thrashers, headers, and in fact everything they need. The more industrious of the tribe are getting wealthy. Chief Homily informed the Walla Walla Democrat that fifteen or twenty of the Indians are worth $10,000 each.

The company engaged in the construction of the military telegraph line between Astoria and Cape Hancock, have finished the land line to Fort Stevens. The Washington Territory side next receives attention. The line is to be built from Chinook point westward, following the course of the bay, after which the cable will be laid and Cape Hancock will be in communication with the world.

A suit at law is pending in Ohio against a telephone company which removed a telephone from plaintiff's premises "because of the use of profane language." We had supposed that it was a well-recognized fact that telephones and profanity were one and inseparable. It the telephone is to be withdrawn from all premises where profane language is used, then good-by to the telephone; its days are numbered.

Adam Kirpen's Beard.

Adam Kirpen, of Chicago, who possesses the longest beard in the world, is sixty-four years of age, is five eleven inches tall, and a perfect specimen of a robust but aged German. By means of his beard he has amassed a considerable fortune, but, notwithstanding, he endeavors to sell his photographs on the plea of poverty. The beard which he wears at present has attained the wonderful length of nearly twelve feet. He disposes of his rather unwieldy appendage when walking on the street by rolling it around a leathern belt suspended about his his neck. The length of the beard is such that he can place both feet upon it, and the other end, upon being lifted, reaches a few inches above his head. The beard, which is of a dull gray color, is quite thick, and is the result of twenty-two years uninterrupted growth. From his youth Kirpen gave evidence of becoming as bearded as Esau. At eleven years of age he was under the necessity of shaving, and at fourteen had a large bushy beard, which, added to his robust frame, caused people to frequently confound him as being his father's brother.

When he entered the German army as an artillerist his mustache was three feet in length, and he experienced about as much trouble in partaking of his meals as Victor Emanuel, of whom it is related that he tied his mustache behind his ears when about to eat. He was the wonder and delight of the other sex, and received innumerable privileges from the officers on account of his appearance. It was not until he came to America that he allowed full sway to the growing properties of his beard. When the beard was five feet long he sold it to a Chicago museum for seventy-five dollars. From that time, twenty-two years ago; no razor has been applied to his face, and the beard has steadily grown and is still growing, having increased two feet since 1878. The hair branch out like a tree, some having as many as a dozen splits. The old man has one son, but the beard does not seem hereditary, as he found it a difficult matter to raise a beard previous to his thirtieth year. His grandfather was remarkable, however, in having limbs and body covered with hair nearly twelve inches long.—Republican Sentinel.

Petroleum in Missouri.

Very promising discoveries of petroleum are reported in Vernon county, Missouri, where shallow wells have been sunk by persons prospecting for asphaltum. The supposed asphaltum, which in places covered the ground to a depth of four or five inches, has been pronounced by oil experts to be heavy petroleum. It is described as of a blackish green color, and of the consistency of thick molasses. The region in which petroleum is supposed to exist in quantity is a plateau about 5,000 feet above the level of the sea, lying near the center of a spur of the Ozark Mountains and between two arms of Clear creek. The soil is of a silicious nature, yet so finely decomposed that it is admirable for farming purposes. Beneath the soil there is a thin stratum of clay which rests on a layer of argillaceous rock. Underneath this rock is a stratum of porous sandstone from 20 to 40 feet thick. Next comes a thin vein of coal, and beneath this is the oil deposit. The wells that were sunk in the search for asphaltum are from 25 to 40 feet in depth. Arrangements are making for the sinking of deep wells.

Never forsake a friend. When enemies gather round, when sickness falls on the heart, when the world is dark and cheerless, then is the time to try true friendship. They who turn from the scene of distress betray their hypocrisy, and prove that interest only moves them. If you have a friend who loves you—be sure you sustain him in adversity. Let him feel that his former kindness is appreciated, and that his love was not thrown away. Real fidelity may be rare, but if it exists—in the heart. They only deny its worth and power who have never loved a friend, or labored to make one happy. The good and kind, the affectionate and the virtuous, see and feel the grand principle.
