Chanced the Hereafter.

Hon Nelson W Cole, of Columbia county, shot himself through the heart last Monday at his home near Riverside. About two years ago a cancer began to appear on his lower lip, and after various efforts to treat it, he came to this city, says the Portland Standard, and had an operation performed. This afforded temporary relief, but after while the disease broke out in a more malignant form under the jaw and grew rapidly worse until the entire left jaw bone was eaten off and the patient could only take his nourishment with a spoon. His suffering was intense and the only relief he had was through the influence of morphine. About six weeks ago his pains were so great that he attempted suicide by taking morphine, but his effort was frustrated and it was believed that the attempt would not be repeated. Last Monday was the day for the annual school meeting of the district where Mr Cole resided, and he particularly requested everybody to go, saying that he preferred to be left alone. Without thinking of any suicidal attempt, his request was complied with and his son, at whose house he was then residing, left the sufferer by himself saying that he would return immediately after the meeting. Mr Cole and his son both being widowers there were no women in the family to leave with him. On the son's return from the meeting he found his father dead on the floor with a bullet hole through his body. It appears from all that could be gathered from attendances of the room and the surroundings of the dead man, that shortly after his friends left him, at 2 o'clock, the old man must have got down a loaded rifle which hung upon the wall of a room in the house and made deliberate preparation for killing himself. He wrote a few lines on a scrap of paper saying that he had no desire to go through another such a night of suffering. He then placed the gun on a table so that by getting down on his knees the muzzle would be opposite his heart. In that position it is thought that he pushed the trigger of the gun with his cane, discharging the load into his own body. The ball entered the left breast near the nipple, and passing out at his back went through the side of the house. An inquest was held on Tuesday under the direction of Justice Wright, of that precinct, acting as coroner, and the verdict was in accordance with the above facts. Mr Cole was a man universally respected by all who knew him and a general favorite throughout the county. He was a representative in the Oregon legislature four years ago. He was a widower, 61 years old, and leaves a son in Columbia county, and a married daughter in Missouri. The place of the tragedy was on the bank of the Columbia, about 30 miles below St Helena.

Society in Washington.

Washington society, which went into mourning in a very decorous manner for President Garfield, has finally consented to restrain its grief, and is preparing to enter into the gayeties of the coming winter with a decided relish. There have been a number of fine residences built within the city by prominent and wealthy people during the past year, and many people are at present looking for houses to rent large enough for reception purposes. The capital city is fast becoming a most delightful place of residence, and will continue to improve in that respect at a rapid rate. The only drawback to the perfect felicity of Washington society at present seems to be the steady refusal of President Arthur to select a mistress for the White House among its many fair daughters. If he should conclude to make a selection some time perhaps the great mass of the unselected would not be in any more amiable frame of mind than at present; however.
Every corpse that is taken to the Paris morgue is now quickly converted into a block almost as hard as stone. This result is obtained by Carrie's chemical refrigerator, which is capable of reducing the temperature of the conservatory, where each body is laid out on something closely resembling a camp-bedstead in stone, to 15° below zero Centigrade. At the back of this room is a row of stove-like compartments, in which the corpses are boxed up and frozen hard before being exposed to public view. As an illustration of the intense cold thus artificially secured, a Paris journalist, in describing a recent visit to the morgue, says that in opening one of the compartments the attendant took the precaution to wear a glove, lest "his hand should be burnt by contact with the cold iron." The corpse which was taken out of this receptacle had been there nine hours. The doctor, who accompanied the visitor struck the dead man on the breast with a stick, and the sound was just as if he had struck a stone.
