Preliminary Examination.

James Todd, who is accused of robbing Wells, Fargo & Co's stage when within eight miles of Glendale, had a preliminary examination before U. S. Commissioner Lan son Friday, August 3d. From what could be learned of the nature of the evidence, it seems that Todd arrived in Glendale on the 23d of July, coming on the train that reached there at 11 o'clock at night. The next day Todd loafed around town, and during the course of that time he went into into a saloon to get a drink, saying he had no money. He was given a drink and afterward offered to sell the saloon keeper a bull dog pistol for three dollars. Failing in this, he tried and succeeded in obtaining a loan of two dollars and a half on it, promising to redeem it soon. After obtaining the money he purchases a bottle of whisky, and it seems that the bottle had some peculiar marks upon it which would identify it. The cork also contained some marks.

A witness named Nelson, who had been brought here, stated that he knew Todd in Montana, in the mines, and that he met him when he was in Glendale and asked him how he could make some money. He says that Todd wanted him to join in robbing the stage and showed him a shot gun and a pistol that he had tied up in his blankets. On his declining, Todd left him. Todd left Glendale the next day, and at 1 o'clock on the morning of the 25th the down stage was stopped on top of the hill near Glendale. The man who stopped the stage was behind a tree. He showed himself with a shotgun, and told the driver to throw off the express box or he would blow his head off; also telling the passengers to keep their heads on the inside or he would shoot them, too. The driver did as requested, and drove on. The next day a man, who it is supposed was Todd called at Anderson's ranch, and wanted to buy a horse. He finally agreed on a pony for $35, tendering in payment two $20 gold pieces, and as Anderson had no change he told him to express it to him. He got on the horse and rode off, putting up that night at the ranch of W. R. Minett near Cow Creek, which is about thirty-five miles this side of Glendale. The next morning while washing himself ex Sheriff Hogan came up and placed him under arrest, telling him he was wanted for horse stealing, this being for the purpose of throwing him off his guard. On searching Todd $1771 50 was found on him. In the express-box of the stage which was robbed there was a package containing $1810. Taking the money found on Todd at the ranch and counting the $40 he paid for his horse, just makes the amount, the $1 50 over being probably what he had left from the sale of the pistol. The package of money was sent from this city by Hop Tai. One of $10 pieces was discolored by some chemicals. A piece similarly colored was found among the money. Near the tree where the robbery occurred, the shotgun was found, also the bottle which contained the whisky purchased by Todd at Glendale, and which was recognized by the marks before mentioned. Todd has been identified by Nelson, the man he asked to join him in the robbery, the saloon keeper who sold him the whisky and bought his pistols, and others. He claims to have earned the money found on him while working on N. P. R. R. in Idaho, Dr Sharples at Eugene, and various other parties. From the facts above stated, the evidence appears to be conclusive against him. His trial will come off during the next term of court.—Standard.

Mr. Harry Poeger, of Empire City, has a watch supposed to be 451 years old, which he had lately repaired and put in running order. It is a gold repeater, and strikes the hour, quarter and half. The works are without jewels, and in the case is a metal ball with the date 1432. Henry has had the watch repaired and restored to usefulness, and is much pleased with old curiosity.

The loss to the holders of the 3,000,000 of trade dollars in circulation by the depreciation is $450,000.

On last Monday at Union, a stranger got drunk and laid down on a bridge and rolled off into the water where it was ten inches deep, and was drowned.

A man by the name of Richard Haskins, who was digging a well on Mr. Wilson's farm near Helix, while being drawn up to avoid poisonous gas, fell from the bucket, injuring himself so that he died within a few minutes afterward.

Cameron and Clark, two prisoners confined in the county jail of Marion county, came near digging out. They have probably been more prisoners escaped from that jail than any other in the State that has cost as much money in building.

What You do not Really Need for Fishing.

Did we not go fishing it would not be summer. Conversely, if it were not summer we would not go a-fishing. "We are going fishing next week," said Mr. Oldboy, "and I want to be sure we've got all our things together." "Got a tent?" asked his partner. "Yes, I've got a tent." "And a boat?" "Yes; that's engaged." "Whisky?" "Lots of it." "Some pilot biscuit?" "Yes, a whole box." "Five or six dozen of beer?" "Yes." "Cigars?" "Hundreds of 'em." "Plenty of whisky?" "Yes." "Ham and canned meat?" "Yes." "A good lot of beer?" "Yes." "You'll want some ice." "I have that, and I have lots of canned goods, plenty of beer and cigars, no end of whisky and bread, and everything I can possibly think of, and yet, it seems to me that I have left something out." "Got your tackle, haven't you?" "By George," shouted Mr. Oldboy, "you've hit it. That's just it—fish-hooks and lines; we'll need some of them won't we? I knew I had forgot something." "I do not know why it is, but for some reason nearly every fishing party carries with it a lot of hooks and lines which are only good to tangle up and catch in the drooping branches of the whispering trees.—R. J. Burdett.

The Great Racket of a Dissipated Dude.

"Oh, Tawm," said one dude to another, "I was on a great wacket lawst night." "Naw, Jack, you dawns't say?" "Yes, Tawm, and I'm so wretched to-day, you have naw ideah." "Why, my boy, what could you have done?" "Why, Tawm, I dissipated, you know, in a frightful mannah, indeed!" "Naw! What, pwa?" "Why, Tawm, I dwank a glass of Vichy and smoked two cigawettes, and called on three young ladies and their mamma, you know, and I wam, papa let me go by myself, and Twam, aftah the call I dwank another soda!" "Aw, Jack, what will evah become of you?" "Weally, Twam, I cahn't tell; but that wasn't all, for when I came mamma was waiting up for me, and she made me dwink a cup of coffee and eat a piece of angel's food, because she said she knew I was tiahed, and I didn't daiah tell her what I had been doing." "Dweadful, Jack, dweadful!" "I know it, Tawm, but what was a fellah to do? I know if I cahn't go into the country befoah a week, I shall become a total wreck. It is too tehively tehively to think of, and I so young, two! And Tawm, I am to twy on my new sunmah suits to-day, and as my Kewpay is around the cawnah, I shall have to walk cleah to the end of hall to call my valet to gaw aftah it." "Bah Jawve, Jack, you harrow up my soul so I cahn't listen longah. Good-bye old fel! I hawp you'll have better luck next time. Good-bye." "Good—," but he was unable to get out the last syllable, and sank on a sofa as the other one shut the door.
