

Somewhat Salutatory.

A Nebraska editor who had been summer following himself on a stock ranch for a couple of years, suddenly assumed control of a country weekly, and in the first issue after he struck the quarter deck of the concern, he published a small and unpretentious card in which he said:

"The former editor of this sheet is practically and politically dead, but the Sausage still survives. It is just as well though, and a mighty sight better, as I am a boss at editin and sling one of the fluentist quills west of the Missouri river. I have a record behind behind me that doesn't need a new coat of whitewash every spring like that other editor which peyunked recently and drew out of the game. At gitten up olituaries I'm a tossel top and if there's any hitch in the program I can generally furnish a fresh corpse on short notice, and at the usual slight advance on cost of first insertion. I merely throw this out as a feeler to the opposishun, which, I hear, is massing its forces against me and my paper, and by the freckled-faced, bow-legged, cock-eyed gods of war, there will be a power of high priced opera music floating in the air if any of them try to clime me. If there is any cote house ring in this sweet-scented locality, I'll get on it sure as you're a foot high. If there is any monkeying with the free-born, untrammelled county delegates to the next county convention, I'll be there with my face washed and my hair combed back of my ears. I've licked many a good man, and been liked once or twice in my variagated career, but I have always noticed that them fellers who whipped me were not the same fellers afterwards, and drooped around for awhile like a sun-struck tomato vine, and finally dropped into the grave with a dull thud, having kinder outlived their usefulness. If I make any miscues it will be more an error of the head than the heart, but for all that, I propose to run a jam-up, sizzling-hot, nifty little paper, and move along with the best kind of harmony; but if harmony bucks, harmony will have to git off the track and let me glide into the confidence of the people. If this journal says anything out of the way and grieves any mottle-faced tenderfoot remember I'm the man he wants to see about it. There ain't no back stairs or back windows in this sanctum sanctorium I'm always in; I'm ever on the tripod, and now with these few preliminary remarks, I cordially invite everybody's co-operation and subscriptions. The tone of this paper will be pure in sentiment, chaste in expression and typographically, bang up and delirious."
