Playing it on the Old Man.

[Peck's Sun.]

"What started your pa to drinking again?"

"Oh, ma thinks it was losing money on the Chicago races. He has been steaming ever since. Pa can't stand adversity. But I guess we have got him now. He is the scariest man you ever saw."

"How did you bring him to his senses?"

"Well, we tried having the minister talk to pa, but pa talked Bible, about taking a little wine for the stomach's sake, and gave illustrations about Noah getting full, so the minister couldn't brace him up, and then ma had some of the sisters come and talk to him, but he broke them all up by talking about what an appetite they had for champagne punch when they were out in camp last Summer, and they couldn't have any effect on him, and so ma said she guessed I would have to exercise my ingenuity on pa again, so I told her if she would do just as I said, me and my chum would scare pa so that he would swear off. She said she would, and we went to work. First I took pa's spectacles down to the optician Saturday night, and had the glasses taken out and a pair put in their place that would magnify, and I took them home and put them in pa's spectacle case. Then I got a suit of clothes from my chum's uncle's trunk, about half the size of pa's clothes. My chum's uncle is a very small man, and pa is corpulent. I got a plug hat three sizes smaller than pa's hat, and took the name out of pa's hat and put it in the small hat. I got a shirt about half big enough for pa and put his initials on the thing under the bosom, and got a number fourteen collar. Pa wears seventeen. Pa had promised to brace up and go to church on Sunday morning, and ma put these small clothes where pa could put them on. I told ma when pa woke up, to tell him he looked awfully bloated and excite his curiosity, and then send for me."

"You didn't play such a trick as that on a poor old man, did you?" said the grocery man.

"You bet. Well, ma told pa he looked awfully bloated. Pa said he guessed he wasn't bloated very much, but he got up and put on his spectacles and look at himself in the glass. You'd a dide to see him look at himself. His face looked as big as two faces through the glasses, and his nose was a sight. Pa looked scared, and then he held up his hand and looked at that. His hand looked like a ham. Just then I came in, and I turned pale with some chalk on my face, and I began to cry, and I said: 'O, pa, what ails you? You are so swelled up I hardly knew you.' Pa looked sick to his stomach, and then he tried to get the pants on. Oh, my, it was all I could do to keep from laughing to see him pull them pants on. He could just get his legs in, and when I got a shoe horn and gave it to him he was mad. He said it was a mean boy that would give his father a shoe horn to put his pants on with. The pants wouldn't come around pa by ten inches, and pa said he must have eat something that disagreed with him, and he laid it to watermelon. Ma stuffed her handkerchief in her mouth to keep from laughing, when she saw pa look at himself. The legs of his pants were so tight pa could hardly breathe, and he turned pale and said: 'Henry, your pa is a mighty sick man,' and then ma and a both laughed, and he said we wanted him to die so we could spend his life insurance money in riotous living."

"But when pa put on that condensed shirt, ma fairly yelled, and I laughed until my side ached. Pa got it over his head, and got his hands in the sleeves, and couldn't get it either way, and he couldn't see us laugh, but he could hear us, and he said: 'It's darned funny, ain't it, to have a parent swelled up this way? If I bust you will both be sorry.' Well, ma took hold of one side of the shirt and I took hold of the other, and we pulled it on, and when pa's head came up through the collar his face was fairly blue. Ma told him she was afraid he would have a stroke of apoplexy before he got his clothes on, and I guess pa thought so too. He tried to get the collar on, but it wouldn't go half way around his neck, and he looked in the glass and cried, he looked so. He sat down in a chair and panted, he was so out of breath, and the shirt and pants ripped, and pa said there was no use in living if he was going to be a rival to a fat woman in a side-show. Just then I put the plug hat on pa's head, and it was so small it was going to roll off when pa tried to fit it on his head, and then he took it off and looked inside of it, to see if it was his hat, and when he found his name in it pa said, 'Take it away. My head is all wrong too.' Then he told me to run for a doctor mighty quick.

I got the doctor and told him what we were trying to do with pa, and he said he would finish the job. So the doctor came in and pa was on the lounge, and when the doc saw him he said it was lucky he was called just as he was, or we would have called an undertaker. He put some pounded ice on pa's head the first thing, ordered the shirt cut open, and we got the pants off. Then he gave pa an emetic and had his feet soaked, and pa said, 'Doc, if you bring me out of this I will never drink another drop.' The doc told pa that his life was not worth a button if he ever drank again, and left about half a pint of sugar pills to be fired into pa every five minutes, Ma and me sat up with pa all day Sunday, and Monday morning I changed the spectacles and took the clothes home, and long about noon pa said he felt as if he could get up. Well, you never see a tickleeder man than he was when he found the swelling had gone down so he could get his pants and shirt on, and he says that doctor is the best in town. Ma says I am a smart boy, and pa has taken the pledge, and we are all right again.

OREGON AND WASHINGTON.

Wheat is selling at 80 cents at Albany.

Dallas, Polk county, wants a hotel badly.

J. B. Fuson, of Yamhill county, raises a nineteen pound watermelon.

Efforts are being made in Yamhill county to organize a county fair.

The Marshfield Mail says the appropriation has been exhausted and work at Rocky Point has stopped.

The Yamhill jail has four prisoners, one of whom is G. W. Smith, charged with the murder of Mrs. Petch.

Dr. C. B. Westfall, of West Chehalis, Yamhill county, received a severe stroke of paralysis a few days ago, and lies in a very critical condition.

A correspondent of the Hillsboro Independent, says Cornelius expects to become the junction of the West Side and the proposed Astoria road, and that town lots are going up with a rush.

The Lafayette Register learns that Hon. B. F. Lewis' wheat yielded about forty-eight bushels per acre. It also says that Mrs. Gibson, near Wheatland, had twelve acres of wheat that yielded 600 bushels, and her whole crop averaged forty-eight bushels to the acre.

Lafayette Register: Mr. J. B. Fuson, near Dayton, is the boss bee-keeper in this county. He has fifty hives which yielded him over 3,000 pounds of honey the present year. He says if April had been as favorable as usual, he would have taken near 5,000 pounds. The honey this year is of the finest quality.

Hepner Gazette: A couple of cougars, which have been the terror of sheepmen for some time in the neighborhood of Junction Bar, were treed by James Rhea's shepherd dog "Lum," and shot by the herder recently. They were males and evidently brothers, and measured five feet eight inches from tip to tip.

On Monday night the citizens of Lafayette met at the Court House and elected a committee to wait upon Mr. Villard, when he arrives at Portland, and endeavor to find out when the narrow-gauge railroad will be finished, if at all. The committee consists of W. D. Fenton, A. R. Burbank, H. R. Littlefield, W. M. Townsend and R. D. Bird.
