Seattle Chronicle: In the case of this ex parte temporary injunction granted Wells, Fargo & Co's. Express-company vs. the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, restraining the railroad from ejecting Wells, Fargo & Co's. agents from the trains, the motion to dissolve has been overruled by Judge Greeney. By this important modification, that Wells, Fargo & Co. are enjoined from establishing agencies after the first day of September. Thus the matter stands in Washington, Idaho and Montana.

A Great Sleeper.

Sherman W. Platt, residing at Newton, Con., fell asleep last December. From Christmas till March he scarcely moved in bed, and took no nourishment except what was forced into his mouth. In May he showed signs of returning animation, and like an infant, was put in his clothes and led to a chair. In June hunger asserted itself, and during his brief wakeful moments he daily found his way, unassisted, to the pantry to appease the same, his eyes all the while closed, and, returning to his chair, resumed his sleep. He continued thus until July 10, when, seated in a chair on the veranda, he heard a passing teamster address his cattle, and he sang out "Whoa!" the first exclamation he had made during 213 days.

"Ah, me!" sighed a South Side christian the other day, while discussing heavenly affairs in the midst of his family. "Rev. Mr. Thompson has gone off on Beecherism. He is a good preacher, too, and I am sorry for this." "Well, I have always thought that he and Mrs. Jones were entirely too intimate, and that it would end in something like that," said the dear wife, as she left the room to see about supper.—Chicago Weekly.

The Tuscarora Times-Review says: "During the last trip but one from Elko, a mare in Mr. Yates' team gave birth to twin colts, one a horse and the other a mule. Last Saturday, when the team was here again, the colts were along and were both being suckled by the mother."

All the Judges of the Supreme Court except Justice Strong, are said to be infidels. A Judge of the Supreme Court, however, is never appointed for his religion, nor even his knowledge of law, but for his politics.
