Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. F. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:
"I was 24 years old, New York, May 10, 1868.
My name, J. C. AYER & Co., Gentlemen:
Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorder. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.
Yours respectfully,
F. WILDS."
The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Peck's Bad Boy.

His Pe Practices on a Bicycle.

"I should think your pa would learn, after a while, that he is too old to fool around as he did when he was a boy," said the grocery man, as he got away from the boy.

"That's what I told him when he wanted to try my bicycle," said the boy, as he broke out laughing. He saw me riding the bicycle, and said he could do it as well as I could, if he could once get on, but he couldn't spring on it quite as spry as he used to, and he wanted me and my chum to hold it while he got on. I told him he would get hurt, but he said there couldn't no boy tell him anything about riding, and so we got the bicycle up against a shade tree, and he put his feet on the treads, and told us to turn her loose. Well, honest, I shut my eyes 'cause I didn't want to see pa got tied up in a knot. But he did.
He pushed with one foot, and the bicycle turned sideways, then he pushed with the other foot, and the bicycle began to wiggle, and then he began to push with both feet, and pull on the handles, and the front wheel struck an iron fence and as pa went on top of the fence the hind wheel seemed to rear up and kick him, and pa hung to the fence and the bicycle hung to him, and they both went down on the sidewalk, the big wheel on pa's stomach, one handle up his trouser's leg, the other handle down his coat collar, and the other wheel rolling around back and forth over his fingers, and he yelling to us to take it off. I never saw two people tangled up the way pa and the bicycle was, and we had to take it apart, and take pa's coat off and roll up his pant to get him out. And when he got up, and shook himself to see if he was all there, and looked at it as though he didn't know it was loaded, and looked at me and then at my chum in a sort of nervous way, and looked around and scringed as though he expected the bicycle was going to slip up behind him and kick him again, he wanted me to go and get the ax to break the bicycle up with, and when I laughed he was going to take me by the neck and maul the bicycle, but I reasoned him out of it. I wasn't to blame for him trying to gallop over an iron picket fence with a bicycle, 'cause I told him he had better keep off of it. I think if men would take advice of boys oftener they wouldn't be so apt to get their suspenders caught on amiron picket fence and have to be picked up in a basket. But there is no use of us boys telling a grown person anything, and by keeping still and letting them break their bones we save getting kicked. It would do some men good to be boys all their lives, then they wouldn't have to imitate. Hello, there goes the police patrol wagon, and I am going to see how it rides on the back step," and the boy went out and jumped on the hind end of the wagon, and then picked himself up out of the mud and felt of his head where the policeman's club dropped on it.

AN Egg Factory.

"Do you mean to say that you made that egg without the assistance of a hen?" asked a reporter of a Newark egg manufacturer.

"Yes," he replied, "and if you wish I will show you something of our process. Come."

He led me through a room in which there were stored boxes upon boxes of eggs, and into another large, cool room in the rear. Everything was clean and neat. Several strange-looking wooden machines, totally unlike anything I had ever seen, stood in different parts of the room. Six or seven men were operating the machinery, which moved noiselessly and with great rapidity. I followed my conductor to one end of the apartment, where there were three large tanks or vats. One was filled with a yellow compound, the second with a staroxy mixture, and the other was covered. Pointing to these the proprietor said: "These contain the yolk mixture and the white of egg.
We empty the vats every day, so you can judge of the extent of the business already. Let me show you one of the machines. You see they are divided into different boxes or receptacles. The first and second are the yolk and white.
The next is what we term the skin-machine, and the last one is the sheller, with drying trays. This process is the result of many years of experiment and expense. I first conceived the idea after making a chemical analysis of an egg. After a long time I succeeded in making a very good imitation of an egg. I then turned my attention to making the machinery, and the result you see for yourself. Of course, it would not be policy for me to explain all the mechanism, but I will give you an idea of the process. Into the first machine is put the yolk mixture—"

"What is that?" I asked.

"Well, it is a mixture of Indian meal, corn starch and several other ingredients. It is poured into the opening in a thick, mushy state, and is formed by the machine into a ball and frozen. In this condition it passes into the other box, where it is surrounded by the white, which is chemically the same as the real egg. This is also frozen, and by a peculiar rotary motion of the machine an oval shape is imparted to it, and it passes to the next receptacle, where it receives the thin filmy skin. After this it has only to go through the sheller, where it gets its last coat in the shape of a plaster of paris shell, a rife thicker than the genuine article. Then it goes out on the drying trays, where the shell dries at once and the inside thaws out gradually. It becomes, to all appearances, a real egg."

"How many eggs can you turn out in a day?"

"Well, as we are running now we turn out a thousand or so every hour."

"Many orders?"

"Why, bless your soul, yes. We can not fill one-half our orders. All we can make now are taken by two New York wholesale grocers alone.
We charge $13 per thousand for them, and they retail at all prices from 12 to 30 cents per dozen. We sell only to wholesale houses. I suppose plenty of those eggs are eaten in Newark as well as in other places. They are perfectly harmless, and as substantial and wholesome as a real egg."

"Can they be boiled?"

"Oh yes," and he called one of the men. "Here Jim, boil this gentleman an egg."

"Can they be detected?" I inquired, while the bogus egg was being boiled.

"I hardly think that anybody would be likely to observe any difference unless he happens to be well posted; as they look and taste like the real thing.
We can, by a little flavoring, make them taste like goose or duck eggs, of course altering the size. They will keep for years. That one you have just eaten was nearly a year old. They never spoil or become rotten, and being harder and thicker in their shells, they will stand shipping better than real eggs. We calculate that in a few years we will run the hens of the country clean out of business, as oleomargarine has driven out butter."—New York

OREGON AND WASHINGTON.

Ninety thousand feet of logs were recently put into Coos Bay in one day.
T. H. Dickey, who has been residing at McMinnville for a short time, fell dead there last Saturday evening.

Another cabbage four feet and ten inches in circumference, and weighing thirty-three and one-half pounds, is at Hillhurst, W. T.

McMinnville supplies duck hunters with a shooting ground within the city limits. The postmaster can shoot ducks from his office.

Wasco county, Oregon, is constructing a canal to supply water to 60,000 acres which now is destitute of water for farming purposes, although the soil is of excellent quality.

On the last steamer went an order to the California electrical works for an electrical fire alarm for the use of Astoria fire department. The apparatus consists of ten boxes, three gongs, two repeaters, four miles of wire, an electrical battery, insulators, brackets, etc.
The cost for the whole will be in the neighborhood of $1,000.
