HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfillment of its promise.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dandruff, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS

Will change the beard to a natural brown, or black, as desired. It produces a permanent color that will not wash away. Consisting of a single preparation, it is applied without trouble.

William Henry Hunt.

GARFIELD'S SECRETARY OF THE NAVY, LATE AMERICAN MINISTER TO RUSSIA, WHO DIED AT ST. PETERSBURG, FEB. 27th.

Hon. William Henry Hunt, American Minister to Russia, and ex-Secretary of the Navy, who died at St. Petersburg Wednesday, February 27th, was born at Charleston, S. C., in 1824, the youngest of five sons of an influential lawyer and member of the State Legislature.

Mr. Hunt was brought up in New Orleans, to which city his father removed on account of the Calhoun nullification excitement, but attended school at New Haven, Conn., and afterwards entered Yale College. He studied law with an elder brother, and was admitted to the bar in 1844 in New Orleans at the age of twenty. He soon took a high rank as a profound and eloquent lawyer, and was for a time a professor in New Orleans Law School. When the war came on he refused to join in the secession movement, and was a consistent Union man. When Admiral Farragut entered New Orleans, Judge Hunt invited the officers of the navy to his house. He assisted in the reconstruction of the State, and was elected Attorney-General on the Packard ticket in 1876. In 1878 he was appointed a Judge of the United States Court of Claims. President Garfield took him into his Cabinet as a representative of the South, and when President Arthur succeeded to the Executive office he appointed him Minister to Russia.

In this capacity Mr. Hunt performed an admirable service to his country in looking after the survivors of the Jeanette Expedition, and assisting them in making their way from a remote corner of the Russian Empire to St. Petersburg, and thence to their homes. Through his efforts the good offices of the Russian government were secured in bringing the remains of De Long and those who perished with him from the western coast of Siberia to the Russian capital.

Judge Hunt was four times married. His first wife was a daughter of Commodore Ridgely. His second wife was a daughter-in-law of the late Bishop Hopkins of Connecticut. In his personal characteristics Mr. Hunt was one of the most winning of men. Handsome, learned and eloquent, he possessed all the graces of a finished gentleman. He leaves a widow, one daughter and four sons.

The following was received by President Arthur the day after Mr. Hunt's death: TO THE RUSSIAN MINISTER, WASHINGTON: The Emperor instructs you to express to the President and to the government of the United States the sincere regret which Mr. Hunt's death causes His Majesty.

I have no need to add that the Government and Russian Society are much affected by his loss. GIERK, Russian Minister Foreign Affairs. By order of Secretary Chandler the Navy Department will be draped in mourning for thirty days.

Reception Tendered Col. Hogg.

On the arrival of Col. Hogg, President of the Oregon Pacific Railroad Company, at Corvallis, a public reception was tendered him, at which he made the following remarks concerning the Yaquina railroad:

I am deeply moved by your spontaneous outburst in recognition of my feeble efforts. I am glad to have the opportunity of looking into so many old familiar faces, to extend the hand of welcome, and to thank you for the cordial greeting you have so generously accorded my Eastern friends and myself. Two years ago, or more, I had the pleasure of addressing you. Then we were on the point of long deferred hope. But we had not properly estimated our opposition. On every hand, seen and unseen, we have met with opposition, but, believing in the ultimate success of the enterprise, our friends in the east, representatives of whom are present, were only encouraged by obstacles, and boldly strengthened my efforts. Had I been compelled to resist opposition single-handed, I would have unwillingly succumbed. But you people of the Willamette Valley, Eastern Oregon, and Col. Geo. T. M. Davis, occupy a seat on this platform, have lent every assistance. The nature of the opposition I will not notice. It has been met and overcome, and the power of monopoly in this State is forever broken. We are not here tonight to boast or take to ourselves gratification over fallen foes. We are here to rejoice in our success, to extend kindly greetings, and to take courage for the work lying in our path. The thing that most interests you, myself and colleagues in the East, is the

NOW FIXED CERTAINTY that, before the end of the coming Summer, the highway lying between Yaquina Bay and the Willamette Valley will be spanned by the steel rails of the Oregon Pacific Railroad, Enroute, and now lying on the west side of this valley are the equipments for the completion of that part of the road. During the last week we have laid our first rails. We have also provided steam communication for the route between Yaquina Bay and San Francisco, in the face of sneers flauntingly thrown at us by our enemies.

It was my purpose to give you a surprise. We had purchased, equipped, and loaded the steamer Yaquina. The vessel was on the eve of sailing for Yaquina Bay, when she was damaged in the fog by a ferry boat. My secret was disclosed, for on the morrow, the telegraph flashed the news across the continent, and you read of the fact in the morning papers.

I have ever verified all promises made to you. I now make you another. On the opening of the Oregon Pacific Railroad, there will be plying between Yaquina Bay and San Francisco,

A LINE OF STEAMERS, in equipment and speed, second to none on the northwest coast.

I have been journeying for the last ten days. I left the East feeling indisposed but have been benefited by my journey. I am not intending to make you a speech, but I extend to you my hand, one and all, in cordial greeting, and I assure you, friends, I am glad to meet you. Before bidding you good night, I must remind you of one or two things; I must take the liberty to tell you of a duty you owe to yourselves and to the State of Oregon. It is he careful who occupy the seats in Congress. They are non-political so far as you are concerned. Some of your representatives stand there opposing us at every point. Two years ago without proper assistance from the Oregon delegation, but by outside influence, a bill was passed by which the House proposed to give us $60,000. The Senate Committee proposed to give to Oregon $40,000, of course for Yaquina. But the Senators from Oregon surrendered the Yaquina $40,000 for the mouth of the Columbia. Then followed an open fight on the floor of the Senate, under the influence of which Senator Slater boldly proposed and contended for a specific grant of an extra $60,000 for Yaquina. But when it came back before the House your delegate in Congress deliberately threw away for party purposes. I can prove it this by documentary evidence. This may be unpleasant, but it is the truth and the whole truth. I stand by what I have said. I did not intend to say this to-night but my feelings have carried me away.

Col. Hogg concluded his remarks by introducing Col. G. M. T. Davis, President of the Adirondack Railroad Company, and Treasurer of the Oregon Pacific. Col. Davis, in a short address stated that he could not use language to express his gratitude for the many favors extended him, since his arrival in Oregon, and paid an enthusiastic tribute to the "great personal worth, unsullied honor and indomitable will" of Col. Hogg. Being indisposed, after his long journey, he excused himself from extended remark.
