"Crito" Again Makes His Bow.

EUGENE, March 17, 1884.

Good morning, Mr. Editor, I am delighted to be with you again in the most beautiful village—truly, the Queen of the Willamette. It's such a comfort and pleasure to find all my old companions and friends living and well. It makes one feel happy and homelike to see you all so neat and cozy. What wonderful improvement since I greeted you last! Prosperity and thrift must have been among you! May your shadows grow longer!

Just think, the first to greet me as I landed from the cars was that smiling countenance and bonny companion, Wesley, the Witty. A walk from the depot to the St Charles with our dear old friend, Wesley the Witty was sufficient to gather all the good news about our companions of the Royal Star Chamber. All alive, and well, an—

"Yes," said Wesley the Witty, "and holding big meetings in the inner chamber." "There," said Wesley the Witty, pointing far down the street as we moved along, "do you know him? the lone one near the pump?"

"Certainly," said I, that is truly Rodney the Silent; the silent statesman of a lonely street corner.

"Yes," said Witty, "he is a big member of the star chamber now!"

"How is that?" said I.

"Oh!" responded Wesley the Witty, "you have not been here since the resurrection and treaty?"

"Resurrection and treaty?" said I.

"Yes," said Wesley the Witty, "the resurrection of John of Springfield, and treaty negotiated by Rodney the Silent, between Jim the Gimleter, of the Royal Star Chamber, and John of Springfield."

"No," said I.

"Then you must be informed," said Wesley the Witty, "for a wonderful combination has been formed by Jim the Gimleter."

"How is that," said I, "has John of Springfield been outgeneraled and vanquished by such a small instrument?"

"Vanquished!" said Wesley the Witty, "he has been captured and is now a prisoner in the Tower of the Royal Star Chamber. Jim the Gimleter is the smartest political general I ever saw, except Bill Watkins, and Bill is the best in the whole State."

"What is the combination for?" I asked.

"For," said Wesley the Witty, "to beat the people and elect John of Hippie. That strategic move captured John of Springfield after the resurrection, and silenced the opposition of Rodney the Silent."

"And then I am to understand that the two great leaders have united to cheat the people, and elect John of Hippie either to Congress or the United States Senate?"

"Yes," said Wesley the Witty, "that is the point of the treaty, and the main object of the political battle now approaching. John of Springfield found that he could not succeed with, out the aid of two or three leading lights on the other side, so John of Springfield dispatched Rodney the Silent to the Royal Star Chamber to make a treaty with Jim the Gimleter and his clan.

You mentioned a "resurrection," I don't exactly understand the meaning of that term."

"Oh, yes," said Wesley the Witty, "I must tell you all about that. There is something wonderful connected with that resurrection. It was a political death and resurrection. I forbore the whole thing, just as it happened."

"Strange," said I, "How did you do that?"

"Well," said Wesley the Witty, "I had a prophetic dream. It was wonderful and true. The madame declared I was as dead for an hour, and must have been entirely out of my body, and must have been walking with me next week I will tell you all."

"With pleasure," said I, and so this chapter ends with the promise of that prophetic dream next week.

Carro.

An Eastern paper says that the Democrats of the East are subscribing money to aid the Oregon Democrats. The collector is said to be that eminent Christian Statesman, Stephen W. Dorsey, who "saved Indiana" in 1880 at an expense of $500,000. We hope that in the transmission that it may not be sent amiss, as the Republicans of this State have always had a barrel with which to "aid Oregon Democrats," so called.

We have heard the name of Senator W. R. Blyeu, of Linn county, author of the Mortgage Tax Law, mentioned quite frequently in connection with the nomination for Congress. He possesses the confidence of the people and would poll a large vote in the interior counties.

Democrats should remember that the primary meetings will take place April 5th. Let there be a large attendance.

In this issue will be found two communications in relation to the action of the City Council awarding Marshal Attebery $242 extra for services rendered during the past eleven months. While we do not agree wholly with the views of our correspondents, we still think that it is a bad precedent, and one that is not just to the city. If the Council thought the salary too low, it might, with all consistency, have fixed the salary for the ensuing year. But to award any officer back-pay snacks, to say the least, of favoritism. It is admitted that Mr. Attebery has made a good Marshal, but when he was elected, he was aware of the compensation allowed.

We have reliable information that Hon. W. D. Fenton will not be a candidate before the State Convention for Congressman. If the Convention should nominate him for Supreme Judge, however, he will accept the nomination. Mr. Fenton is one of Oregon's first lawyers, and would make an able judge.

A woman doesn't consistently use profane language, but the way she says "gracious!" when she slips down is full of subtle meaning and inherent force.
