SENATOR T. F. BAYARD.

Thomas F. Bayard is a member of one of the most famous families in the State of Delaware. The first American Bayard was Nicholas, a brother-in-law of Governor Peter Stuyvesant, and a rigid Huguenot. The statesman who now most conspicuously honors the family, is one of its several members who have served their country with distinction in the Federal Congress.

He was born October 29, 1828, was educated at the "Flushing" School Wilmington, and as a boy aspired to become a merchant. But with youth came the more generous ambition which has borne fruit in his popularity to-day.
In 1851 Mr. Bayard was admitted to the Bar. He opened an office and in a few years commanded remunerative practice. Up to 1869 he steadily pursued his business as a practicing lawyer, with but one break, namely, in 1853, when he served for a short time as United States District Attorney.
He succeeded his father as United States Senator in 1869, and was re-elected in 1875 and 1881. His position is that of a leader, due not only to superior ability, but unassailable integrity and honor. Senator Bayard was a staunch friend of the South during the period of reconstruction; a "hard money" man when influential men in both the leading political parties favored the payment of national obligations on other than the gold basis, and a member of the minority in the Electoral Commission. He stands in as high a position before the country today as any Democratic statesman.

Another Solter.

The St. Louis (Mo.) Volksblatt, German-Republican says: "The Volksblatt has never, down to the present time, faltered in its support of the Republican party, but draws the line at Blaire and Logan. The men were not nominated who could have united all the elements of the Republican party, and make their election sure, but just the candidates to split the party whose defeat is thus assured. One reason why the German-Americans will have nothing to do with Blaine is this. In a speech which he made in the United States Senate on March 13, 1878, against the Secretary of the Interior, Schurz, because of his effort to put a stop to the robbery of public lands, Blaine derided the secretary because he was a foreigner, and condemned with great vehemence the entrusting of the management of the public lands to such hands. The German-Americans were also severely censured, because, as naturalized American citizens, they still cherished their fatherland, and held on to its customs. The convention well knew that the German-Americans would tolerate no candidate who had in the national senate expressed his hatred of them and who had achieved his political success by a long and persistent warfare against their customs. It is therefore an assured fact that the German-Americans of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and other states in which they hold the balance of power as between the parties, cannot be induced to support Blaine. Truly, whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad.

The name of Edward Atkinson is one that commands, we believe, the respect of our cotton manufacturers.
Mr. Atkinson is one of the prominent and Blaine men of Massachusetts, and he says that the Independent movement is growing and will spread all over the country.

What Some Prominent Clergymen Say.

Father Fransioli, of St. Peter's church, says: "The nomination of Blaine and Logan was a great mistake.
Neither of them should have been placed on the ticket. They are not acceptable to the community at large.
I don't think the ticket can be elected."

Vicar General Keegan—
How do I like the nomination of James G. Blaine? It suits me splendidly.
Couldn't be better. It means the breaking up of the Republican party.

Rev. Father Gallagher, assistant pastor R. C. Church of the Assumption: "I don't like it at all. I am a Republican, but I can't swallow Blaine.
It is a mistake to that Roman Catholics are all Democrats. I presume I shall vote the Democratic ticket for the first time this Fall. I will vote as a citizen, not as a priest. I always do.
I mean I never try to influence any of our congregation. I am afraid the Republicans have made a fatal mistake. I would vote for good Republican if they put him up against Blaine, but will not vote the Republican ticket otherwise."

Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, of the Lafayette avenue Presbyterian Church, says: "It is a good time to remain silent. I expressed my views before the convention. I do not care to enter into any controversy at present. The nominees are not my men. The Democrats have the field to themselves."

Rev. J. Hyatt Smith, of the East Congregational church: "I cannot say who I will vote for, but I think that unless the Democratic party make a big blunder, as they generally do, their candidates will be elected next Fall."

Rev. Dr. A. J. F. Behrends, of the Central Congregational church: "Many gentlemen connected with my church were at my residence last evening and they talked the matter over. They all thought as I do that the nomination means defeat."

Rev. C. S. Williams, of Washington street M. E. Church—"I have been an earnest Republican since 1854, and never opposed a national ticket before, but I cannot support Blaine. I was in the wigwag at Chicago when Lincoln was nominated, and took part in Fremont's campaign here, but Blaine retires me from the Republican ranks for his election unless the Independent Republicans put up a good man. I think the nomination means the defeat of the party. It won't matter how bad a map the Democrats put up they will elect him."

Rev. L. R. Steeter, pastor of Sands street church—"I don't know whether or not it would be advisable to oppose Blaine till the Democratic nomination is made. He is not my choice, but the Democrats may do even worse."

On the very day on which Blaine was nominated John B. McCullough of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, said:
"Blaine cannot carry the full strength of the Republican party, to begin with, and his repulsive rotten record will repel the independent or detached voters.
He is an unclean man, and the people will not have him. To nominate him would be to court defeat. He stands self-convicted for prostituting the high offices he has held to build up a private fortune, of cohabiting with corruption of dishonest money. On no record would I vote for him." McCullough is now supporting Blaine with enthusiasm.

Mr. Blaine was a "peace man" also.
He hired a substitute when he was drafted, and after the war was over collected the amount that it cost him from the city of Augusta. His government contract to furnish the army with rifles was too good a thing to be thrown away.

Cornelius Harrahan, the wealthiest and most influential Irishman in Rockland, Maine, who has been a Republican since 1851, and is now a Republican member of the city council, says he will not vote for Blaine under any circumstances.

The Republican party, according to the platform, is opposed to the acquisition of large tracts of the public lands by corporations and individuals." The evidence of this in the last twenty years are absolutely overwhelming.
