HOP HOUSE BURNED.

Loss $3,000.

Last Sunday evening at 6 o'clock p m, the hop house of Mr Jas Campbell, of Camp Creek precinct, was burned to the ground and the contents contained therein, consisting of about 8000 lbs of ps lready dried. Mr Campbell was attending the furnace when the fire first started and when he noticed it he ran up stairs and opened the r to enter when the flames burst upon him, burning one of his hands and face quite badly. The gentleman was knocked down by the flames, and by hard work managed to crawl out of danger, thereby probably saving his life. The loss, including the hops and dry house, will amount to at least $3,000, upon which there was no insurance. It is the supposition that the fire caught from matches being accidently dropped into the green hops by the Chinese while picking, and then being ignited by the intense heat in the dry house. There was no chance of a spark reaching the hops from the furnace. A day or two prior to the first a whole block of matches was discovered as the hops were being emptied on the floor. Several hop house were burned in Washington Territory two or three years ago in the same way, and now they furnish cicar lighters for smokers and prohibit the car-rying of matches by pickers. Mr Campbell had about one half of his corp harvested, and he is busily engaged in saving the balance, Messrs Siler and McClean having kindly given him the use of their dry houses. His neigh-bers and friends throughout the county sym-pathize with him in his hard luck, and wish him better success in the future.

LANE COUNTY FAIR.

Again we call special attention to the coming County Fair to be opened in this city Sent 25th, and continuing three days. The list of awards is liberal and well arranged, and the plans for its complete success well matured, and with a certainty of a general disposition on the pa o the citizens of the county to exhibit whatever of curiosity or merit they may possess. This annual comparison of the products and resources of our county will be made of great value to all our people, and the days thus spent will be the most enjoyable occasion of the year. The Association has prepared a fine track for trials of speed and stables and stalls for the exhibition of all kinds of stock in the western portion of the city, where every neces-sary facility will be afforded for the care and safety of animals. Bring what you may have safety of animals. Bring wast you may have ready without extra preparation, and everyone should bring something. Mr Rhinehart is making large additions to his buildings where the pavilion exhibits will be placed, and extra efforts will be had to afford the most perfect facilities for the proper display of each article placed on exhibition. As the time is short, we arge upon all to call at the drug store of F M Wilkins and secure a list of premiums offered and prepare at once to take part in the exhibition. The very low prices of season tickets should secure the attendance of every person in the county.

As soon as the passen ers have alighted, the train backs up to receive and dis. charge freight. Mrs Withrow was a passen-ger from Portland to Amity, and was some-what slow in setting from the car, she had packages in both hands and the child toddled ahead of her. Just then the train started to hack, and the bump threw the child from its feet over the end of the platform upon the rail. Having both hands full, the mother could not catch the child in time to save him. The wheels passed over both legs above the knees, the members being held from entire se-paration only by a few sinews. Drs. Goucher and Turner of McMinnville, were summoned, made amputations and gave all relief possible. They think the chibi cannot recover, though he was alive when the train passed down yes Mrs Wm Withrow, of time city, left Wednesday morning cene of the accident, to furnish any help in her power.

The Markets.

PORTLAND, OR, Sept. 18, 1884.

Hors-We quote the following from Coch' ran & Co's circular, dated at San Francisco September 12th: The market continues very dull and prices are, in a measure nominal. There have been no sale of consequence in this market since our last report. New York market is in much the same condition as our own; browers are holding back from making any purchases, hoping thereby to create an auxiety on the part of growers to put their grop on the market at present wer prices, but the indications are their game will not work. Reports from hop growing districts in New York State show that growers are preparing to hold by storing their hops, and when necessary getting advances to pay cost of picking, etc., fully believing that owing to short crops in New York and England, later on they must go higher. One fact is a moral certainty, that the hops will all be needed for the brewing season of '84 and '85, and 'ere long brewer will be forced on the market to buy. The reports of the crop in England and Germany are unchanged. New York dispatches show that their crop is disappointing them all, many yards yielding less than half a crop.
