A MARVELOUS STORY
 TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.
FROM THE SON: "25 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.
 Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the enclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.
Ayer's Sarsaparilla
 Yours truly, W. M. Phillips."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of
Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
 Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sore. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the Sarsaparilla in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect - being now able to do a good day's work, although 78 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882.
 Yours gratefully,
 HIRSH PHILLIPS."

Six Miles Under Ground.
 For years the existence of a large opening in the hillside near Dunbar, Fayette county, Pa., has been known, yet nobody seemed anxious to explore it, probably on account of the cold water and narrow entrance to be passed before getting into the main entrance. A short time since a party of gentlemen from Pittsburg succeeded in passing through the narrow passage, which is about 50 yards long. They were surprised to find themselves in a spacious cavern with solid limestone walls leading straight into the center of the mountains. When they had followed this for a few hundred yards they came to a large room where the water was dripping from the ceiling and trickling down the sides of the room, and had formed what is known as dripping limestone. These formations were hanging from the ceiling in long pointed sticks like icicles. Some were as white as snow; some dark brown and some as transparent as glass. The sides of this room were decorated in every conceivable shape and form. The sight the explorers declared well worth the trouble and risk of getting lost in numerous passages, with which the hill is literally honeycombed. After wandering around for some time, the explorers finally came to the main passage again and went on and on into the center of the mountain. The explorers were determined to find the end of the cave, and so pushed on until the sides began to narrow and the ceiling began to slope until there was just room enough for the water to pass through. There they gave up the search. When they returned to the mouth of the cavern the sun was just sinking in the west, and they were surprised to find that they had been in the bowels of the earth the entire day. The explorers think they must have gone nearly six miles underground. The cave is in the solid limestone rock, and the locality has been noted for the past few years as a Summer resort on account of the cool, refreshing water that flows from the cave in a never failing stream.

Petrified Wood.
 The petrified forests near Holbrook, A. T., have been purchased by a company. They have commenced the shipment and manufacture of the petrifications into tablets, tiles and various ornamental articles in building and finishing. In this connection the Prescott Miner has the following: "Governor Tittle informs us that while in San Francisco he inspected an establishment recently started for the cutting and polishing of petrified wood taken from the wonderful forests of petrifications existing along the line of the Atlantic & Pacific in this territory. The parties engaged in this work state that the petrified wood is rapidly driving California onyx from the market as a material for mantels, etc., as it is susceptible of a much finer polish and is also more permanent and lasting than that of the onyx. Several companies have already been formed for the purpose of getting possession of portions of the forests by pre-emption, thus promising to further push the manufacture."

A Clever Squire.
 'Squire Patterson, wearing an air of deep concern, approached his friend, Farmer Glover, and, without speaking, leaped on the fence and sighed
 "What's the matter, 'Squire?"
 "I don't know what this country's comin' to. What would you think if your daughter should run off and marry an ignorant hired man?"
 "Oh, I don't know, 'Squire; but I would not take it to heart if I were you. I would try to think that it happened for the best."
 "Would you forgive the girl?" asked the 'Squire.
 "Yes, I believe I would. There's no use in holding out you know. When did it happen?"
 "Just awhile ago."
 "Who performed the ceremony?"
 "I did."
 "What! Then you could not have been opposed to the marriage?"
 "Oh, it makes no difference to me," replied the 'Squire, "for, you see, it's your daughter instead of mine."

Ex Empress Eugenie.
 Of the ex-Empress Eugenie, London Truth says: "Her old vivacity has died out. If it had not, she would try to subjugate it, for she ascribes to her impetuous disposition the culminating error of the Emperor's reign, and another event for which she will mourn as long as life and consciousness remain to her. She has the generosity to admit the errors of judgment into which she was hurried, and which were attended with disastrous consequences, both for her family and for the nation over which, by an astonishing freak of fortune, she became the sovereign. The Empress still thinks aloud, and talks often and rapidly of what is on her mind. She still bears any mental tension, unless in religious exercises, and has not the resources of music, embroidery, knitting or sewing, which enabled Marie Amelie to beguile the tedium of a residence at Claremont. Her infirmity prevents her walking as much as she wishes. She lives altogether at Farnborough, in the past, and among objects reminding her of the departed glories of the Emperor and of her ill-starred son, of whom she can now speak without falling into paroxysms of grief. The inner woman is chastened by affliction, and the outer woman faded; but she is more interesting, perhaps, than when she had the prestige of beauty, a throne, and (externally) the most brilliant court in Europe."

A Symbol for a Saving Bank.
 A man from Texas noticed that the usual sign over the doors of savings banks was a beehive.
 "Is a beehive the regular sign of a savings bank," asked the stranger of a native, whose acquaintance he had made.
 "Yes," was the reply, "most of the saving banks have the beehive for a sign on account of its appropriateness. The depositors of course are the bees. They are off at work collecting honey, which they deposit in the hive for their use in winter. The owner of the hive is, of course, the president of the saving bank. When there is as much honey in the bank as he needs, he robs the bank and skips out with all the available assets. The bees, or depositors, buzz around a good deal, but most starve and freeze to death during the winter."
 "But who are the drones?"
 They are the clerks, who are relatives of the president or directors, who draw big salaries, but never do much work.
 "Who is the queen bee?"
 Oh, she is the female friend of the bank, and usually accompanies him to Canada.

He Didn't Care to Wait Any More.
 Just before he reached he consulted his watch and the bells at the same time struck three. He gazed up and down, looked into a store window and wore away five minutes. Then he turned to a boy trying to play marbles all alone and on the grass and cautiously asked:
 "Bub, have you seen a lady standing on this corner within a few minutes?"
 "Yaas, she was here about ten minutes ago."
 "And where did she go?"
 "Down that way. Man come along and she went off with him."
 "Did, eh?"
 "Yaas, but you needn't feel bad. I heard the man say he'd come back with a shotgun and shoot blue blazes outer some one. If you'll wait he'll certainly come back."
 A car was passing and the man only made three jumps to reach it, and as he sat down the passengers noticed that he appeared like a man suffering great anxiety - lost his dog, perhaps.
 -Detroit Free Press
 "You don't really love him, my dear?"
 "Well, perhaps not; but it's my first chance and I may never get another."
 "Never mind if you don't. Wait until you find a man after your own heart."
 "That's just what's the matter, mamma. Charlie has been after my heart for eighteen months and I guess I'd better let him have it."
