The New South.

The Southern States were once un, der Republican rule. We wonder that no Republican speaker or editor ever refers to that halcyon period, to its leg. riches. How would a cabinet like acies of debts on every State, county, city, road and school district, to the schools, colored and white, that were ard. never inaugurated, to the fields lying waste and the towns decaying.

We wonder that they never men tion the giant strides of the New South which date from 1878, in commerce, manufactures and agriculture, to the schools, colleges, churches and semina ries for colored as well as for white, to great public improvements and economical governments. We say, is it strange, that we prefer the New South.

We wonder that Republican editors never mention these facts, we are surprised that they never refer to the census figures. In their efforts to raise inveterate hostility between neigh bor and neighbor, colored and white, betwee kinsman and kinsman of the North and of the South they appeal always to passion and prejudice, never to facts or reason.

Wade Hampton expressed the sentiment of the Southern people the othor day when he said that aside from the question of honesty, there was but one reason why he was rejoiced at the election of Cleveland and that was because it would give the South the opportunity to disprove the calumnies so freely circulated by men whose interests are to perpetuate race jealousious, division, discord, a Solid South and a Solid North for the country and office for themselves.
