It is one of the most remarkable of phenomena that the first bank ever established won a success unequalled in later times. The Bank of Venice had its origin in 1171, from a forced public loan raised to fit out a fleet, and is the first appearance of a public funded debt-Every citizen was obliged to contribute the one hundredth part of his possessions. The persons assessed were then organized as a chamber of loans for their common protection, and for the receipt of the yearly interest of 4 per centum. Subsequently - its creditors were permitted to transfer their claims to others, in whole or part. The Government, finding that these transfers were in demand, reduced the rates of interest until no interest was paid. Af. terwards it sold cash inscriptions of credit on its books. Those inscriptions cost gold, but were not convertible into gold. As a matter of fact, although termed a bank, its issues were government paper, and its business was carried on solely for the benefit of the public treasury. This bank is still one of the foremost financial institutions in expenses of said sale. I will sell the above the world. For two bundred years the Bank of Venice stood alone.
