The British Crown.

The British crown is not the property of Queen Victoria, but of the nation. All the crown jewels are kept in the Tower of London. The room in which they are kept is a ground floor apartment, with somber stone walls eight feet in thickness. It is small, and in its center stands a huge iron-barred cage, oblong in shape and rising nearly to the ceiling. Within this cage is a stand, terraced topped and covered with velvet which was at one time white. At the extreme top is the crown made Victoria. Below it, and on one side, is the crown of the Prince of Wales, and on the other that of the last of the Stuarts, the four Georges William IV. One crown had served very well for all these men, but when, in 1837, the royal headgear had to be put upon a woman's head, it was, of course too large, and a new one had to be made. Besides the crowns there are in the collection the royal wand, a solid gold stick three feet seven inches in length, the royal communion service, three large founts, all of solid gold, out of which the royal children are baptized, besides numerous presents that have in times past been presented to the State by friendly sovereigns. The entire collection is valued at $15,000,000, much of which sum is represented in the rare stones that grace the crowns and scepter, the famous Kohinoor, the second largest diamond in the world, being one of them.

The frequency with which boxes of cigars were wagered during the last election, and the certainty that there are a great many mean people in the world, suggested to an Eastern dealer in the weed the idea of making a cigar box four inches high, an inch and a half wide and an inch high. In this box four rank cigars are squeezed, and the whole outfit is put on the market as a "box of cigars," and cost 25 cents. A large number of these boxes, it is said, have been sold to men wishing to pay their debts at a small expense.

Murdered by his Wife, Cooked and Fed to the Hogs.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 16.—William Druse, a farmer of moderate circumstances, living in the town of Warren, Herkules county, has been missing a month. Suspicions of murder were aroused, caused by quarrels between himself and wife. For several days it was rumored that Druse had been murdered by his wife, and his body cut up and burned, and the bones put into a swamp. The district attorney and the coroner are conducting an examination into the murder. Frank Gates, aged 14, nephew of Druse, living in the family, has made an artless confession, showing that the crime was committed December 10th, and that Mrs. Druse compelled him to shoot her husband a second time, and aid her to dispose of the body. They boiled it and fed the flesh to the hogs, and burned the bones to ashes, which were buried in a swamp. The boy says the woman cut her husband's head off and put it first in a stove. The boy acted as fireman, and had a terrible time to destroy the evidence of the crime. Neighbors, who noticed the unusual smoke and odor, were refused admittance, and papers were kept over the window. Since then the house has been repaired. Mrs. Druse and Gates are under arrest.

There must be a good deal of excitement in Salt Lake over the persistent prosecution of polygamists. Cannon, who is now on trial, bids fair to be convicted, as the prosecution has secured the testimony of one of his sons and of his third wife, while the second wife is evidently playing the same game in eluding the officers of the law which proved successful at the first trial of Clawson. If Mormon anathemas have any force, Judge Zane, who is responsible for this sudden activity in the legal machinery of the Territory, will have a dubious chance in the world to come. He is to-day more cordially hated and more bitterly denounced than any of the gentiles in Utah, but this abuse has no effect in swerving him from the strict line of duty. If previous judges had been of this composition, the vexatious Mormon problem would, no doubt, have been solved by this time.

Six per cent. is enough for any man on his money, yet there is not a mill in this city but has declared as high as 40 per cent. Just think of it. Was the workman receiving any benefit of such immense profits? No, sir; he was working along at the same old price. Now, in less than three weeks, the writer will be able to tell you, reader, just what per centage has been declared by our different mills during the last six months, and it must be borne in mind, during that period nails have been sold as low as $1.85 per keg. If a 6 or 10 per cent. dividend can be declared when nails sell at that figure, what immense profits must be made when the nails are selling at $3.40 per keg.—Wheeling, W. Va., Register.

The New York Tribune the other day printed the calculation of the London Echo in regard to the number of grains of corn that would be on a chess board if one grain were placed on the first square, two on the second, four on the third, and so on. The Echo said that the corn on the squares would fill 1,884,875 barns, each holding 1,000,000 bushels, allowing 100,000 grains to each bushel. A clever Brooklyn correspondent, who has figured it out, says that the English paper is away off, and gives the following as the true figures: There would be 184,467,440,707,095 bushels of corn on the squares, which, under the conditions named, would fill 184,467,440 barns.

Two years ago, says the N. Y. Sun, a man bought the property on the northwest corner of Liberty and Nassau streets for $160,000, paying $10,000 down. It is opposite the old Evening Post building. Meantime the Mutual Life Insurance Company bought the Old Dutch Church so long used as a postoffice, tore it down and erected the present magnificent building. On Friday the man who owns the building on the northwest corner was offered $500,000 for the property.

Hints for the Home.

Small doses of salt will check hemorrhage of the lungs or stomach.

To relieve hiccoughs at once, take a lump of sugar saturated with vinegar.

Toothache may be relieved by the application of cotton saturated with ammonia.

The skin of a boiled egg is said to be the efficacious remedy that can be applied to a boil. Peel it carefully, wet and apply it to the part affected. It will draw off the matter and relieve the soreness in a few hours.

A writer in one of the medical journals says he has found the application of a strong solution of chromic acid, three or four times a day, by means of a camel's hair brush, to be the best and easiest method for removing warts.

Shrunk Out of a Pulpit.

"I hear you are without a preacher over in your congregation."

"Yes, he left two weeks ago."

"Had a call at a higher salary, I presume?"

"Not as I know of."

"Health failed him, perhaps?"

"No; his health seemed to be good."

"Congregation didn't like his preaching, then?"

"Well, then, he resigned!"

"No, not exactly. Fact was, he unloaded a lot of railroad stock on us at 74, and the shrinkage, together with some talk about tar and feathers, took him out just as the stock touched 52."

—Wall Street News.

The reason why high tariff means low wool is a very simple one. Our manufacturers have to use both American and foreign wools in their work. If they are prevented from getting the one they cannot buy the other. The high tariff makes it impossible for our manufacturers to buy the foreign wool at any price that will enable them to make it into goods that they can sell at home or abroad in competition with the foreigners. Hence they do not buy the American wool. Hence, also, the American wool, left without buyers, droops in price, and the foreign wools, unsustained by the competition of American buyers in their market, also drop, thus giving the foreign manufacturer the additional advantage of still cheaper raw material.—Chicago Tribune.

A bachelor dropped in the other day to see a married friend whose wife was away from home on a prolonged visit. He found him smoking desperately at a cigar nearly a foot long. "Why," grasped he breathlessly, "where on earth did you get such a preposterous cigar as that, Charley?" "Had it built by contract," was the response. "You see," continued the smoker explanatorily, "I promised my wife before she went away that I'd not smoke more than six cigars a day. Promised to a wife are sacred, you know, and I mean to keep mine if I have to get cigars as long as a lamp post."

A good story is related of an old bank burglar who was captured not a great while since by the police of an Eastern city. When taken into custody he exhibited the most thorough despondency. This attracted the attention of his friend the detective, who inquired the cause of it. "Cause enough," responded the gloomy wretch; "we can't make an honest living at the business now. The cashiers have it all their own way."

In 1866, at the beginning of the Atlantic cable service, $100 was charged for twenty words or less. Reductions followed to $25 for ten words; $10 for ten words; 50 cents per word. In 1880, during a war of rates, the tariff was reduced to 12 cents per word. Upon the opening of the Bennett-Mackay line the rate was reduced to 40 cents per word. Address and signature must be paid for.

A life prisoner in the Albany penitentiary, during his leisure moments, found the Old Testament to contain 2,728,100 letters, 592,493 words, 23,214 verses, 929 chapters and 39 books. The New Testament contains 838,380 letters, 181,253 words, 7,934 verses, 260 chapters and 27 books.
