The San Francisco Post says: The question of the prompt completion of the California and Oregon line, from Delta to the Oregon state line, depends materially upon the rapidity with Central Pacific Railroad is taken up. At present there is a depression in railroad securities, and the general public are somewhat inclined to abstain from investing in them. The probable result, so far as indications go, will be that little railroad building will be done this year. The road from Delta

Delaware and Rhode Island, the smallest States, are noted for their transmission of political place and power from sire to son. They believe in blood, and take on trust the son of the man who has served them well, rather than new aspirants for place. Senator Thoulas F. Bayard of Delaware, is the successor of his greatgrandfather, Senator Bassett; his grandfather, James A. Bayard; his father, James A. Bayard; and his uncle, Richard Basset Bayard, Representative Nathan Fellows Dixon of Rhole Island, is the son of a Representative and grandson of a Senator of the same name. In the Senate of the Thirtieth Congress Senator Henry Dodge of Wisconsin, sat side by side with his son, Augustus C. Dodge of Iowa.
