An Excellent Appointment.

The telegraph last Wednesday afternoon brought us the good news that President Cleveland had appointed Hon. John Whiteaker, Lane county's most honored Democrat, to the position of Collector of Internal Revenue vice J. C. Cartwright, suspended. The appointment gives general satisfaction to all classes and parties in Lane county and the State of Oregon. His immediate friends in this section especially rejoice over the appointment as they are aware of his sterling integrity and great ability in administering public trusts, as well as his generous, social nature. He has served the State in many positions of public trust, and has faithfully served and truly represented the people. He was the first Governor of Oregon under the State Constitution and governed in an admirable way. He has served many terms in the Oregon Legislature, and as President of the Senate he gained the reputation of being the best presiding officer in the State, and it is safe to say that if a Republican president of equal ability and determination had presided at the last Oregon Legislature, that the disgraceful scenes of the closing session would not have occurred, and a great shame saved the State. In 1878 he was elected to Congress by a good majority and accomplished much for the State in the two year term, and won for Oregon the largest appropriations ever given.

The appointment of such a man by Cleveland is proof that the offices of the State are to be honestly and competently administered.

The extent of misinformation and the capacity for ignorance of some people are astounding. To ascribe the decline of the American mercantile revenue to the civil war is the performance of a Great Republican Statesman. A terrific blow was struck at our navy, doubtless, but a few figures will show that in a time of profound peace our marine has suffered more than when Confederate cruisers were on every sea. In 1860 of our imports and exports American ships carried 66 5-10 per cent; in 1870, 35 6-10 per cent; in 1880, 17 4-10 per cent; in 1882, 15 5-10 per cent. The decrease is greater, it will be seen in the decade 70-80, than in the war decade, and is fast waning, and Republican legislation is responsible for it. They "protect" American shipping and it vanishes from the seas; they "protect" ship-building and it falls into decay; "the first maritime power of the globe, the people who are bound to rule the seas as the Romans were to conquer the world" have chained their commerce with fetters and forbidden it to grow; they renounced the immense profits of the world's commerce and the proudest position in history, the place that gives its fullest ray of glory to the world empire of England, whose splendor did renown in this direction is the envy of Europe and the cause of the coming wars; more than that England levies eighty millions in freight money every year on this country. And yet Republican machine men, the automotons of politics, parade this country and assure the masses that the "British gold" is the potent, moving lever that actuates the hater of feudalism and the lover of freedom of commerce. And the scribbler with more earwax than brains assures the farmer that if the Republican party had taken certain steps, which they have not, that their wheat would not have to be shipped on English ships at an imminent danger. And one of those measures would result in a crushing retaliation, and the necessity of the other and its success is not obvious indeed, our great marine of other days was not subsidized in its origin. So long as the American has to pay twice as much for the same ship as the Englishman so long will England retain her mastery of the seas, and the opulence which she draws from that source.

The president has appointed C. S. Schenck of Portland Appraiser of Customs at that port, and John Holson of Astoria Collector of Customs at Astoria. The appointees are good, capable men and will make efficient officers. It is becoming apparent that the Democratic party won an election.

The Turkish soldiers are armed with what is probably the finest military rifle in the world—the Peabody-Martini-Henri. These guns to the number of 600,000, were manufactured a few years ago in this county, where Turkey buys nearly all of her supplies.

Grant's Magnanimity.

A New York dispatch to the Philadelphia Times gives an interview with Gen. Grant. The sentiments contained in this letter are those he acted on immediately after the war. That he was a great general is to his praise, but that he should stand with the South in those days of madness should win him the gratitude of every citizen who loves justice and moderation. That he should win praise from his political opponents, from those who do not now commend his administration as a model one, is due to a belief in Gen. Grant's honesty of purpose and integrity of his intentions. No one but a narrow and jaundiced mind could object to these views, and we think that Gen. Grant would not. To such persons, the views held by Gen. Grant in the interview would be very repugnant to them if they were not his views. He said:

"I tried to do my duty to my countrymen of the South. They were fighting for a principle which they thought was right, but which we did not, but I always looked upon the as citizens of a common country. I believe whenever it was in my power I treated them as such. I never liked to think of them even as prisoners of war. I preferred to encourage them to go to their homes under parole. I can say that I never, even in the midst of duty, had any other feeling than that which one citizen should have towards another."

History will dispel the calumny that Democrats had nothing to do with the suppression of the civil war. The quickness, promptitude and celerity with which troops went from New York State has often been noted, and it is almost certain that the turning battle of the war, Gettysburg, was saved to the Union arms by the hurried reinforcements sent to that battle field by the Democratic Governor, Horatio Seymour. A late correspondent says that both President Lincoln and Secretary Seward at one time were of the opinion in the year 1864 "that the cause of union and loyalty could best be served by uniting the country upon Horatio Seymour as the people's candidate for the Presidency." The correspondent further says that letters are in existence to prove these assertions and further adds: "There was no man in the land whom Abraham Lincoln preferred to Horatio Seymour."

An Illinois postmaster wants to resign as being a Republican he cannot conscientiously hold office under a Democratic administration. He is anxious, however, to secure the appointment of his wife, who has always been a consistent Democrat to fill the vacancy.

The Illinois legislature appears to be no nearer the end of the senatorial contest; than it was three months ago, and some of the Illinois newspapers are wicked enough to wish the whole legislature to die and thus end the contest.

A North Carolina negro having heard that ex-Gov Jarvis had been appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Brazil told a friend that Gov. Jarvis had been appointed an extraordinary preacher to the penitentiary in Brazil.

The general tenor of the news from Europe is decidedly warlike. It now looks as if some of the other European powers would be drawn into the fight, in which case wheat would take a mighty boom.

Gibraltar is thus mentioned in all Spanish official documents. "Our most loyal and noble city of Gibraltar, in the Campo of Gibraltar, the city of Gibraltar being in the temporary occupation of the British."

The mines of Virginia City, Nevada, paid $100,000 in wages during the month of March. The bonanza mines are evidently not worked out yet.
