The Shiaks and Sunis.

One of the most striking characteristics of the Afghan and Turcoman tribes, which has more than once been very skillfully utilized by Russia in her operations against them, is the extreme bitterness with which they take sides in the great controversy between the Suni and the Shiah sects, which may be called the Catholics and Protestants of Islam. The Shiaks, who are strong in Persia, hold Mohammed's son-in-law, Ali, the fourth caliph, to be the prophets only legitimate successor, denouncing his three forerunners as usurpers, while the Sunis, who abound in Afghanistan, hold a directly opposite creed. This feeling, which has made the countless Perso-Afghan wars unspeakably ferocious, is carried to such a height that an Englishman who lately begged the life of a wounded Persian was answered by one of his Afghan comrades: "Were he only an unbeliever I would spare him, but being a Shiah he must die." A stranger entering an Afghan or Turcoman camp is often met with the challenge, "What sayest thou of the first three caliphs?" and should he pronounce in favor, the crucial question follows, "What think'st thou of Ali?" to which if he values his life, he must reply, "Ali was a Kafir" (infidel).

She Named Her Favorite Plant.

"I - aw - observe that you have a fine collection of plants here," said a dude while making a call upon a young lady.

"So all my friends say," she said. "I'm vevy fond of plants myself," he continued; "I'll venchaw to say you cannot name my favorite plant."

"I think I could," she said with an arch smile.
"Pway name it then."
"The thistle." - Boston Courier.

Some time ago Prof. Virchow brought together the results of an inquiry into the relative proportions of the blonde haired, dark and mixed types among the school children of the German Empire. Since then the inquiry has been extended to Belgium, Austria and Switzerland, and embraces nearly eleven million children in its scope. In a lecture at the Berlin Academy of Science, Prof. Virchow now shows that more than 50 per cent. of the school children of Central Europe belong to the mixed type. The distribution of the purely blonde type, which contributes something over 25 per cent., and is associated with un-mixed Teutonic blood, is rather curious. It is highest in Hanover, where it forms 43 per cent. of the population, but it is very nearly as high in the extreme east of Prussia and Pomeranian districts, where history and tradition locate a preponderating Slavic element and points the completeness of the gradual industrial conquest of those regions by the Teutonic race.

Frauds by pension agents in different parts of the country continue to come to light. The Commissioner of Pensions last Tuesday directed the suspension at the Philadelphia agency of 102 pensions, which have been regularly paid, although the pensioners are dead. In some cases, the Commissioner says, persons in whose names pensions are drawn have been dead since 1871. He also directed the suspension at the same agency of pensions to seven widows, who re-married in 1881, but who have continued to draw pensions ever since. The Commissioner has asked the attorney general to bring suit against the pension agent for moneys so unlawfully disbursed.

A wealthy tobacco firm in Cincinnati suspended a few days ago, and a dispatch, speaking of the head of the firm, says: "It is not long since he was rated as worth $200,000. He went home to-night greatly prostrated, with $1 43 in his pocket, all it was said that he had in the world.

Interest in politics increases in Germany. There were 565,107 more voters, allowing for increase in population, who went to the polls in 1884 than in 1881. Of this increase, the Social Democratic party polled 248,029 votes.

Bear Track.

The following is said to be the popular song among the Russians just now:

We're coming, Alexandrovitch, at least a million more, from Kanineshaeja's Bay and Obskalagoula's shore, from Karakouski's frozen wild, from Tynskaia's plain, we're marching, Alexander, with all our might and main. From Gatmonsekino's forest, from Tschernobesko's vale, from Wassio-gourbska's blooming fields, from Olymska's dale, from Kamamajosa's village, from Meidouscariki's isle, we're coming, Alexander, the weary rank and file. From polysyllabic villages we're gayly marching down, perchance to rot in Afghanistan to gild anew your crown; we're on the Berg el Murghah and Penjshidjoh we seek, and we're headed by some generals whose names no tongue can speak. From Provinces and villages whose names before the eye look like a heap of consonant's shovelled into "pi." We - a - rol - lows and - o - f - f - s - k - i - e - s, - e - f - f - s - o - f - f - s - v - i - t - c - h - e - s, for Holy Church and Pious Czar we'll die in Herat's ditches.

A rare instance of Christian toleration is exemplified in Aarau, Switzerland, where Protestants and Catholics occupy the same church. On New Year's eve it was filled, and the whole congregation united in singing a hymn, after which the Catholic Choir executed a piece of music. The priest and pastor then alternately spoke on the religious thoughts appropriate to the close of the year, and on the good relations that should exist between Christians.

Stanford will set the Grant boys up in business again. A recent New York dispatch contains the following: It is well understood that Senator Stanford has made a provision whereby the Grants are to resume business, and that everything was arranged to the General's satisfaction. It may be that General Grant and his entire family will go to California shortly, giving up the proposed summer programme in the Catskill mountains.

Commenting on the cattle shipment from Oregon and Washington to Chicago, the Pioneer Press says: "The experiment has proved a distinct failure, the shippers finding themselves out of pocket some $30 per head. This was due to several causes, chief among which were the shrinkage in weight, the great cost of transportation, feeding, and the like, and also to the fact that the prices paid in Chicago were less than could have been obtained in the domestic market."

A newspaper is not printed especially for one person any more than a hotel is built to please one guest. People greatly displeased with something they find in a newspaper, should remember that the very thing which displeases them is exactly the thing that will please somebody else who has as much interest in the paper as they have.

The London Globe says: "The Yankees boast of putting out Vesuvius with Niagara, but they have never yet attempted to carry the boat into practice. In this respect they are far behind the simple Russians of Suoleuk. A small volcano has developed itself, and the peasants have been trying to put it out by drenching it with water."

A fire in an Iowa church was extinguished in a novel manner by a quick-witted druggist. The fire was raging in the floor under the joists, and no water was at hand. He quickly mixed up a painful of common soda in a lot of sulphuric acid and poured it down. Sufficient gas was generated to immediately extinguish the flames.

At the annual sheep shearing in Vermont the heaviest ram's fleece weighed thirty-eight pounds thirteen ounces, and the heaviest ewe's fleece twenty-one pounds nine ounces. This beats the record at any public shearing.

John Roach has not yet accepted the proposition of the Secretary of the Navy that there shall be a new trial.
