

PRESIDENTIAL AUTOGRAPHS.

How the Presidents of the United States Signed their Names.

We reproduce below in fac simile the signatures of all the presidents. They are taken from historical documents in the possession of Mr. Ed. W. Bok, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

George Washington. What firmness and dignity is expressed in the signature of Washington.

John Adams. The above autograph is taken from a letter of John Adams while he was vice-president.

Thomas Jefferson. Thomas Jefferson's hand was just such a one as a young man acquires in college.

James Madison. Madison was another college graduate, but his "flut" was firm and plain.

John Quincy Adams. John Quincy Adams' chirography was as graceful and formal as copper-plate script.

Andrew Jackson. Andrew Jackson subscribed himself as if, "By the Eternal," he meant it.

Martin Van Buren. The above signature of Martin Van Buren's was written a few months before his death.

William Henry Harrison. Harrison wrote in a cramped, ungainly hand. His education had been neglected.

John Tyler. Tyler wrote but little, and judging from his autograph it was hard work to accomplish that which he did.

James K. Polk. James Knox Polk considered that a few characteristic flourishes would add impressiveness to his signature.

Zachary Taylor. Stern and bold like its author is the chirography of Zachary Taylor.

Millard Fillmore. One year before his death in 1874 ex-President Fillmore indited the above.

Franklin Pierce. Pierce wrote in an old-fashioned, dignified way. He did not spare paper.

James Buchanan. Staid and formal was the writing of Buchanan.

Abraham Lincoln. Honesty and homeliness characterized the handwriting of Abraham Lincoln.

Andrew Johnson. Painfully labored was Johnson's penmanship. For a man who was apprenticed to a tailor at the age of 10 it is all that could be expected.

U. S. Grant. Gen. Grant writes in a bold, firm, decisive, rapid way. As a boy he wrote it U. H. Grant.

Rutherford B. Hayes. Like the scratches of his favorite hens does Rutherford's pen make tracks over the paper.

James A. Garfield. A clear, bold, business-like writer was Garfield. He was a rapid writer, attending personally to much of the voluminous correspondence which accompanied his busy life.

Chester A. Arthur. Ex-President Arthur writes rapidly. From the start to the finish of his signature his pen never lets go of the paper even to cross the "ts."

Grover Cleveland. The President's manuscript is positively painful to decipher. The style is sharp and incisive. He writes with lightning rapidity and with little regard for the reader.

FIXING UP A "FRAUD."

An Elephant is Being Bleached for Exhibition as a "Sample."

Professor de Spotte undertook to explain the bleaching process. "The first difficulty to be overcome," said he, "was to get the black hide perfectly clean of dirt and scales."

The above autograph is taken from a letter of John Adams while he was vice-president. He was precise and methodical in his letters, as he was shrewd and sagacious in business.

Parisian Children. After watching the endless "march past" of the children on the Champs Elysees, day after day, for half a year, I am convinced that no civilized country can muster a finer host.

The English Government has decided to abandon the proposed increase in the tax on spirits, and will meet the existing deficit from the treasury of $9,000,000 by the issue of exchequer bills.

The Iowa Democrats and Greenbackers have agreed on a fusion ticket. The Democrats nominate the Governor and Judge of the Supreme Court, and the Greenbackers the Lieutenant Governor and Superintendent of Public Instruction.

There are over 4,000 daily papers published in the world. Of this number the United States has 1,200, Great Britain 302, France 363, the German Empire 883, Chili 64, British America 67, Mexico 45, Brazil 68, Peru 15 and Ecuador 2. Of the 18,000 weekly papers in the world the United States has over 10,000.

Edward Finch, aged 75 years, his sister, aged 80, both white, and a negro boy aged 15 were murdered near Moncure, N. C. The throats of all were cut. It was evident that all had been knocked in the head with an ax.

A merchant in Berlin, having fallen in love with an opera singer, purchased two dresses and sent them to her to make her choice, saying he would call to know her decision.

A Discreet Decision. A merchant in Berlin, having fallen in love with an opera singer, purchased two dresses and sent them to her to make her choice, saying he would call to know her decision.

There is little meaning to be attached to the expression, "The average life of a rail," because so much depends upon the amount of use to which it is subjected.

LATE NEWS SUMMARY.

Foreign and Domestic. The new census of Iowa cost $175,000. The mackerel fisheries are proving a failure this season.

Two men were recently publicly flogged in Baltimore for wife-beating. The excursion party of Mexican editors were received by General Grant.

A boy named Julius Larimer was killed by lightning near Fargo, Dakota. The decrease of the public debt for the month of June was about $9,000,000.

The receipts of wool at Waco, Texas, for the season aggregate over 7,000,000 pounds. Some New York parties contemplate building a $750,000 hotel at Washington.

An Indiana farmer has a twelve-pound colt which is perfectly formed and doing well. Sioux City, Iowa, by its new census, has 18,000 people, an increase of 10,000 in five years.

By an explosion in the Burly pit, North Staffordshire, England, ten persons were killed. The Welch University, located in Aberystwyth, Wales, was destroyed by fire.

Dr. R. H. Gilbert, proprietor of the Elevated Railroad system in New York, died of old age and overwork. A tornado wrecked many buildings in Leavenworth, Kansas, and wrought much destruction in the surrounding country.

Officer Bernard Murphy fatally shot Charles McKay, a noted criminal, at Chicago, who attempted to escape after his arrest. The head chief of the Utes in Colorado promises no further retaliation for the assassination of his family, and peace is said to be secured.

The steamer Italia struck a steep point on the coast of Peru and sank in fifteen minutes. Out of 134 passengers and crew 65 were drowned. At Grenada, Miss., a mob of 100 persons hanged Felix Williams and Perry McChristian, convicted of robbing and murdering a pedlar.

Typhoid fever is raging with deadly effect in Hancock county, Tenn. Whole families have been stricken and many persons have died. Copper mine proprietors in Newfoundland are erecting furnaces to smelt their ore, instead of sending it to Wales to be smelted as heretofore.

The Virginia tin mines are producing oxide of tin carrying from 40 to 60 per cent., and the best ore pays a profit of $100 per ton for shipment to England. The French army in Tonquin is being decimated by disease. Three thousand sick soldiers have been sent home, and 300 more await transportation.

At a Scandinavian ball at Yankton, Dakota, Marcus Johnson, aged about 40, while dancing, suddenly fell to the floor and expired from heart disease. At Ross Ford agency, Idaho, two Indian police were killed and a third wounded by a brace of Hannock stock thieves, who were in turn ridden with bullets.

At Howden, Ind., Mrs. Hopkins, discovering her husband to be unfaithful, killed her two children with an ax and then drowned herself in a watering trough. Fred. Schlitzner, proprietor of the American House at Lamont, Illinois, was found dead in bed with a bullet hole in his head. It is unknown whether it is a case of murder or suicide.

At Morris, N. Y., John A. Schuyler went to his dinner late, and being upbraided by his wife, caught his two-year-old child from his chair and dashed its brains out on a chopping block. The English Government has decided to abandon the proposed increase in the tax on spirits, and will meet the existing deficit from the treasury of $9,000,000 by the issue of exchequer bills.

The commercial reports throughout the country are more encouraging than they have been for some time, and afford a considerable revival of business in the fall. Eight Italians, who were excavating along the Reading and Pottsville Railroad near Mt. Carbon, Pa., were buried by the falling of a huge mass of rock and earth. Five were killed and three seriously injured.

Rev. C. E. Loughlin, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Lenox, Neb., and his sister Regina Loughlin, were both drowned in the Platte river, eight miles east of that town while on their way to the Platte church. Near Rising Sun, Ind., a farmer named Gerens killed a young man named Wood with an ax. Gerens had frequently forbidden the young man to pay attention to his daughter, but he did not heed the warning.

An infernal machine so rigged that a passing train would explode it, was found on a bridge near Salmon river, south of Plattsburg, New York. It was discovered only a few minutes before the passenger train was due. At West Union, Ohio, Joseph Ellison, a Kentuckian, who died, was buried himself by being run over by Jeff. Davis. William Fields, a farmer, told him to hush up, whereupon Ellis whipped out a revolver and fatally shot Fields.

F. L. Thorpe of Chicago, while fishing at Rideau lake, Ontario, was drugged and spirited away by detectives, who supposed him to be a bank embezzler for whose capture a reward of $5,000 is offered. Thorpe proved his identity and was released. The Iowa Democrats and Greenbackers have agreed on a fusion ticket. The Democrats nominate the Governor and Judge of the Supreme Court, and the Greenbackers the Lieutenant Governor and Superintendent of Public Instruction.
