

The Same Old Dodge.

The Oregonian is happy! That journal suspected all the time that the sorrow expressed by the Southern people at the death of Grant was not real. And that it has exposed their want of sincerity the more credit is due it, since it was the most skillful mask and the widest delusion that ever ruled. Indeed, it was so much like reality that it deceived even the dead hero's family, his most intimate friends, and the feigned sympathy and thousand messages filled with this counterfeit tenderness, deeply touched the mind of the dying man, and he expressed the conviction that the bloody chasm of years was spanned and that there was peace in the land once again. But this is all false, and proven so, if the Oregonian speaks the truth. For that paper reproduces a bitter attack upon Gen. Grant from a Mississippi paper named the Meriden Mercury and the Oregonian asserts and asseverates that the Southern country newspapers, are publishing articles of the same tenor, but the Oregonian did not and does not re-publish any other one of these taken from any other Southern paper, city country, and for this reason, that no such articles have appeared, with but one other exception. Every sentiment that can be tortured, twisted or made to appear in the obscurest sheet, in the most retired portion of the South, re-appears with telegraphic speed in the columns of Republican newspapers, and it may be noted that the supply never equals the demand, and Republican editors are driven to their wits' end, and they have not far to go, to devise bloody shirt literature. Even to asserting that ten millions of people have acted the parts of hypocrites, because the Meriden, Miss., Mercury, expresses views differing from their opinions on the same matter. By the same line of reasoning it could be proved that the people of the Pacific Coast are in favor of unrestricted Chinese immigration, but the testimony of a single newspaper would be worth little to a man who thinks once in a while.

The truth of the matter is this: The ability and honesty, displayed by the president, the thoroughness of his measures, and the general excellency of his administration, are favorably impressing other Republicans, and the organs are alarmed lest they should join the Democratic procession, and so the organs face to the past, afraid to express themselves on the vital questions of the day, a party in favor of everything to catch votes and nothing else.

The Northwest is undoubtedly rich in many other things besides gold and silver. Mines of coal, copper, marble, etc., have been discovered, and now comes the news that a discovery has been made in Payallup valley, W. T., about fifteen miles east of Tacoma, which promises to revolutionize the oil trade. Experts from Pennsylvania have arrived on the ground and pronounce the indications as the best they ever saw. The oil so far found is known as "amber," and burns in a lamp readily without being refined. It is of the highest known grade. It is estimated that the borers will consume thirty days time in sinking the well 1,500 feet. There is already considerable excitement over the affair in Tacoma and oil inspectors are out in every direction. Verily our country is developing fast.

Acting Commissioner Walker, of the general land office, has declined to issue any more patents to the Northern Pacific railroad, pending a decision fixing the legal status of the road in this regard. He follows the rule laid down by Commissioner Sparks in relation to the California & Oregon and the Oregon & California railroads. The question at issue, briefly stated, is that the road was not completed within the time required by law and that until congress takes definite action in one way or the other, no steps should be taken to place the matter beyond the power of the legislative branches of the government to protect public rights.

Russia calls out 250,000 recruits for its army and navy this year. This is one of the little news items in which John Bull will find an interest. The French manufacturers are delightfully inconsistent. Because Austria retaliates and in turn levies a prohibitory tax on French products, the Gauls are irate. They don't like their own medicine. Miss Rudolph, a niece of Mrs. Garfield, has been chosen professor of Latin in the Kansas state university.

A new quartz ledge has been discovered on Hay creek, near Prineville, by a man named Epperson. Several years ago Mr. Epperson, while shearing sheep for Van Houten Bros., picked up a piece of quartz from this ledge, and last year brought it to Portland where he had it assayed. It showed both gold and silver, and he was induced to return and make further investigations. On his return he took out 100 pounds of rock and sent it to Crane & Son, assayers, of East Portland, who found in the highest grade ore $1,000 to the ton, while the lowest assay showed $20 gold and $16 silver to the ton. The result of the test was so flattering that Mr. Crane immediately went up and has located considerable ground on the new discovery. The ledge is about two feet wide and can be traced for several miles on the surface. Ground is being located everywhere in the vicinity of the new mine, and Hay creek is assuming the appearance of Virginia City in early days.

The Philadelphia News is responsible for the story that Col. Burr, the Philadelphia journalist, who is getting up a book on Gen. Grant, recently wrote to Dr. Newman asking him to furnish an account of the Grant death-scene. The request was made before Gen. Grant died. Mr. Burr enclosed a check for $250 as a liberal payment for the work. Dr. Newman retained the check and replied to the letter, saying that he would be glad to do the work, and that it would be time enough to talk about the pay when the work was done. The bland assumption that the check was a retainer staggered the projectors of the Grant book. Since they learned that the doctor was not present at the death scene they are not particularly anxious to have the imaginative parson recount the historic scene. The doctor, however shows no sign of returning the check.

J. V. O'Dell, of Colfax, tells of some rocks found by the Indians above his place on Snake river, which are curiosities. One of them, a stone measuring 2 1/2 x 2 feet, contains two distinct deer tracks, as natural as if taken in plaster; another is covered with what appears to be coyote tracks, as natural as if taken in plaster; another is covered with what appears to be coyote tracks, and the third bears the imprint of a human foot. The rocks are said to be of granite formation, which makes the find doubly interesting, as impressions in stone are seldom found in other than sandstone formations. The rocks are unlike any others in the vicinity, and the theory is that they have been washed down from above. Here is an opportunity for geologists to display their learning.

Under the old system of negro slavery a howl went up from the non-slave holding States, because in fixing the basis for representation in Congress the slaves were enumerated. But, by a provision of the constitution as it then existed, a slave counted only as three-fifths of a person, while under the present system of Mongolian slavery each Chinaman counts as a full "person." As he never becomes naturalized, the result is that in some of the congressional districts in California, for instance, the voting population is not near half what it is in an Eastern congressional district, and an Eastern voter finds his vote practically neutralized by a Chinaman who does not vote.

The English war ship Colossus carries 18 1/2 inches of iron as a defensive armor, is a war ship of the first class, and was never intended as a cruiser, and yet she makes 16 1/2 knots per hour a half knot more speed than the Dolphin is supposed to have attained, and it must be remembered that the Dolphin was built specially for speed, and could not stand against even the smallest vessels of the British navy. In the Dolphin this country is the proud possessor of a vessel that can neither fight or run away, for which we are indebted to the patriotic John Rouch.

The question of prohibition enters largely into Republican politics this season; but the Republican leaders have no honest desire to suppress or even regulate the traffic in intoxicating liquor, and all their moves in that direction are only made with one central idea in view, namely, to get votes.

The Grand Army propose to subscribe 10 cents per member for a Grant monument at Washington; there are 308,000 members.

The first edition of Gen. Grant's book is 150,000 copies; orders are coming in at the rate of 5,000 daily.

The Bonds Filed.

The Portland and Willamette Valley Railway Company of Portland Tuesday filed a bond with the secretary of state in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, with William Reid and Dr. J. A. Chapman as sureties. This bond is for the building of a narrow gauge railroad from Dundee in Yamhill county, to Portland, and for the construction of a wharf, warehouses, etc., on the public levee in that city. The bond is filed in accordance with the act of the legislature at its late session, approved on February 24th. This act gives to the Willamette Valley Railroad Company the public levee in Portland, on the conditions that the company build the road from Dundee to Portland. The company cannot sell the levee to any one except as part and parcel of the proposed road, and if it fails to complete the road and buildings by July 30, 1886, then the premises and rights shall be forfeited. The company is also authorized, on or before July 30, 1886, to pay to the city of Portland whatever sum shall be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to be the value of that city's interest in the premises. The act provides that the company would be entitled to the benefits of the act upon filing $50,000 bonds within three months after the act took effect. The time would have expired on August 24th. The bond accepts all the conditions of the act and binds the company to build the road. The act provides that if the company shall commence an action against the city of Portland within six months from the passage, to ascertain and have determined the amount of damages to paid the city of Portland for the appropriation of the levee, and prosecute the action to final judgment as fast as conveniently possible, and the case be appealed to the highest courts of the state, then the company will have twelve months after a final determination of the case in which to complete the road and fulfill its contract. The action is now commenced against the city of Portland, and that city will, no doubt fight the case to the bitter end.

Kindly Remembrance.

The Albany Herald-Disseminator of last week contains the following: Mr. A. P. Gaines, son of Gov. John P. Gaines, recently received through the hand of the Secretary of State at Washington and the Brazilian Minister, a communication and a photograph of a tombstone from the island of St. Catharines, off the coast of South America and a province of Brazil. It appears some English engineers were engaged in surveying for a railroad across the island and came across the graves of Gov. Gaines' two daughters, who died of yellow fever on the voyage to Oregon in 1850 and were buried on that island, and had the graves put in repair and photographed, and a description sent to any relatives in this State. In this manner this photograph and letter found their way to Mr. Gaines, at Seio.

The photograph shows the following inscription on the tombstone: Sacred to the memory of the daughters of Governor Gaines, of Oregon, who died of yellow fever at St. Catharines, while on their way to Oregon in the U. S. store ship Supply in 1850. Ground cleared up and re-enclosed by the U. S. Steamer Metacombet and Powhattan, in 1859. Tombs repaired and ground cleared by English residents in Desferro, Santa Catharina, 1883. The letter accompanying the photograph was signed by A. B. Alexander, chief engineer of surveyors on railroad work on the island.
