A. S. CURRIE.

They are Not Alike.

The Republican press is widely quoting against Mr. Cleveland an alleged remark of Professor Porter of Yale College, to the effect that "Mr. Cleveland is doing precisely as we should have expected a Republican President to do." If this be true, then the Republican organs have no reason to find fault. But it is not true. Why should Dr. Porter expect a Republican President to do as Mr. Cleveland is doing? There has been nothing in Republican administrations to justify any such expectations. No Republican President has ever undertaken to put his administration on a business basis. Not one has paid any attention to the demand for a reformed civil service. Mr. Arthur, especially, ignored it. During the brief administration of Mr. Garfield it was never thought of. It was incompatible with Hayes' idea of rewarding the rascals who pillaged for him the Presidency. No Republican Executive has ever recognized more than half the people of this country as entitled to any consideration at the hands of those who administer the government. None of Mr. Cleveland's predecessors since the civil war has treated this country as a united land in which every section and class had equal rights and privileges with every other section and class. Yet all these things have been the aim and, so far as it was in the power of any man, the achievement of the present Democratic President. He is no copyist. He has acted up to his own high convictions of duty; and hardly any contrast could be greater than the contrast between his administration and those of his Republican predecessors. What he is doing, judging from our experience in the past, is just what a Republican President might be expected not to do. For one we fail to see a single point of resemblance; nor do we believe a single one exists.—S. F. Examiner.

Perpetuating War Memories.

A Democratic family living near Harder, Arkansas, have on hand "since the war" the following well-named progeny: Their oldest daughter, 15 years old, is called Ann Elizabeth Dixie Shirley. Then comes Benjamin Kirby Smith General Hardee Shirley, aged 13; Robert Enos Napoleon Bonaparte Leo Wilkes Booth Shirley, who is nine years old; John Thomas Emanuel Forest Champion Gatewood Shirley is seven years old, while Joseph Wheeler Zolicofer Stonewall Jackson Sam Hildebrand Sterling Price Shirley is five years old. The family ends with Mary Virginia South Carolina Florida Georgia Alabama Louisiana Shirley, who is three years old. The father's name is plain Elisha, and the mother's name is Harriett Susannah Maria Jane Shirley.

Cure For Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, flatulence, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Egan's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching and effecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address the Dr. Egan's Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by Osburn & Co and W. S. Lee, of Junction.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. For Sale by E. R. Luckey & Co.

The North and the South.

At the Grant memorial services in St. Johnsbury, Vt., Judge Rector, of Austin, Texas, who chanced to be in town, was introduced as representing the South and as a Confederate soldier, and was greeted with applause. "On a great national occasion like this," said Judge Rector, "it seems to me proper for one born and reared in the South and educated in a New England college, to join with you in commemorating the life and virtues of General Grant. Modern civilization does not crown or sanctify the achievements of Alexander, Caesar or Bonaparte. Success must come to this age in garments of justice, or it will have none of it. Judge Poland has truly said, at the time of the war the Southern soldier believed in secession. While to day the South weeps for the great hero, yet if she had said at the close of the war twenty years ago, 'We believe slavery wrong and that our cause was wrong,' we should have been false, and you would not have believed us. Now, after the hillocks where your friends and our friends sleep have grown green, we can and do say that slavery was a blight and that we are glad it has gone, and you believe us. Our interests are all linked in with this great and glorious land of ours. The flag for which your fathers fought in the revolution is yours and ours, and we will stand by your side to defend it."

Why Illinoisans are Called "Suckers."

For a number of years after the opening of the lead mines at Galena, Ill., the majority of the miners, who lived in the southern part of the State and in the settlements on the Mississippi, were in the habit of going to their homes in the Fall and returning to the mines in the Spring. One day, in the Autumn of 1826, an old Missourian, who was watching a number of Illinois miners go on board a southern-bound boat at the Galena wharf, asked them where they were going. They replied: "We are going down home." "Why," said he, "you put me in mind of the suckers; they come up the river in the Spring and in the Fall they go down again." He had reference to a fresh water fish of the carp family, which has the habit mentioned. The nickname of "sucker" was at once applied to Illinoisans and has stuck to them ever since. In the Spring the miners who had remained at the mines during the Winter, would say when the shoals of suckers were seen ascending the river: "In a few days we shall see the real suckers coming up the river."

Ninety years old, and for sixty years filling the chair of history in the University of Berlin, Professor von Ranke still works about eight hours a day, from 8 to 12 and from 6 to 10. He dictates now to an amanuensis. A friendly physician forbids his leaving the upper story in the house in Luisen strasse, where he has resided for the last forty years. His habits and ways of life are very simple. His little cot reminds one of the equally simple couch of the duke of Wellington. He says that, after he completes his present work on universal history, he "intends, if it please God, to write recollections of my own life."

The peasantry of south Germany has been thrown into a state of consternation over the sudden and inexplicable departure from the country of the rooks, which for centuries have made their abode there. Flocks of rooks, which nested in the spire of the Ratisbon, Bavaria, Cathedral, recently departed and have not returned. The general evacuation by rooks is generally regarded by the people as heralding the approach of the cholera.

A Republican journal in Iowa very properly says that the Republican party of that State cannot be a whisky party and a temperance party at the same time. It must choose one or the other side. A man cannot ride two horses at the same time, each going in an opposite direction; he must fall off or split.

32,700 head of stock have been shipped east from points between Wallula and Spokane Falls this season.

The Yaquina Railroad.

Linn county would probably be benefited by accepting a proposition from the officers of the Willamette Valley & Coast railroad. It is made in what seems to be a fair spirit and would redound to the benefit of not only Albany and Linn county but to the entire state, if its promises are carried out. It will be observed that the company asks for $50,000 from the people of Linn, but it does not ask it all in money. At least one half would be taken in rights of way, water powers and depot grounds, and as the company does not ask for anything except security for subscriptions until it has earned them, the proposition is certainly fair and should be well considered. It is for residents of Linn county to subscribe certain sums set opposite their names, one third payable when the road shall have been completed to a point opposite Albany, at least within one mile of the city limits, and temporary means of crossing established, one-third when a combined railroad and wagon bridge shall have been commenced and $10,000 expended upon it, and the balance when the bridge is completed; the subscription to aggregate the sum of $50,000. It is essential that Albany have the road, and the promised car shops.

Queer Shaving Cups.

New York Sun.

A young man in want of a shave recently went into a little barber shop in Harlem, sat down in a chair, leaned back and was about to shut his eyes to keep the lather out when they fell upon array of wonderfully decorated shaving cups. On one was the picture of a hearse flanked by two upright coffins; on another was a dummy engine standing on a section of the elevated road; and others displayed pictures of a milkwagon, a tombstone a saw or a trowel. The barber explained that the hearse and coffin cup belonged to an undertaker with an eye to business, who had got enough custom from his novel advertisement to pay his shaving bill for the next ten years. An engineer on the elevated road owned the cup with the dummy engine on it. The other cups belonged to a milk dealer, a stone cutter, a carpenter and a brick layer. The barber said he had an order for a cup, from a neighboring shoemaker which would eclipse all the other cups. It would contain a tiny photograph of the shoemaker on a swinging sign bearing his name and the legend, "Repairing Neatly Done."

A single lot in Birmingham, Alabama, recently sold for $12,000, or as much as the entire town plot would have brought a few years ago. This remarkable growth and rapid enhancement of values is not owing to any temporary boom, but is wholly attributed to the establishment there six years ago of iron manufactories, which have brought with them other manufactories. This is a single illustration of what one branch of productive industry may accomplish in building up and giving a healthy, prosperous growth to a city.

Mr. Whitney reported last week that 6,000 melons had already been shipped from this valley to the Willamette, in car load lots, and probably 1,500 had been sent in smaller lots, making 7,500 altogether sent out of the valley up to that time—and the prospects are that more than twice as many more will have been shipped before the close of the season. For the first year's exportation this is a pretty good showing. The melons are said to have brought the producer from 25 cents to 40 cents each, net.—Athland Tidings.

Less noise is made about the Coeur d'Alene mines than when they were first opened, but all reports unite in representing that a great deal of gold is being taken out by large companies. Those familiar with the country say there is no show for men without money, but that those who are willing to put in capital make a great deal of profit in developing claims.—S. F. Chronicle.

A Milwaukee editor committed suicide because he was in debt. It is an unusual thing for an editor to be in debt that he could not stand it.
