Another Mining Excitement.

[Coquille City Herald.]

A mining excitement, bordering on the days of '49 in California, is one of the inevitables for this port in the near future. Since the first settlement of this part of the coast by whites it has been known that black sand gold could be found all along the coast of Coos county, and indeed it has been extensively mined in many places, but not until very recently has a process by which over 5 or 6 per cent of the gold could be saved when found, though hundreds of trials have been made. It is claimed now that at least 95 per cent of the gold is saved by one of the new processes. Agents representing seven companies are scouring this part of the coast, and some purchases have been made and many new mines located. Of those disposed of we have only the figures of one, where four men sold six claims which they held between them for $249,000. An offer of $130,000 was made for another, but at last accounts a sale had not been effected. In the former, holes had been bored over the entire claims, and the poorest sand found to run 60 cents per cubic foot. Mines of marvelous richness have been discovered that would have paid largely by the old process of working, but would have lain dormant only for the impetus given prospecting by the new process.

This sand is not only immediately on the coast, but for three or four miles back inland in many places. The parts have been beach at some time in the past, as is evinced by the fact that in driving tunnels large logs of fir, cedar and redwood are encountered. The deposits are at various distances from the surface and are in strata which vary in thickness and richness as well. Hundreds of mines will be located in the vicinity of the mouth of the Coquille river in the next eight weeks. Prospectors and agents are arriving daily and instituting search between Cape Blanco and Coos bay.

The Other One.

[Detroit Free Press.]

"I'd like, you know—I'd like to draw $10," she said, as she pushed her book into the savings bank window.

"Certainly."

"Would it—that is—"

"O, it won't bust the bank," said the cashier.

"Then I'll—I guess I'll draw it."

He picked up the book and was quite absorbed for two or three minutes. He finally handed it back with a smile, and she uttered a little scream as she received it. It was a pocket diary and he had opened it at:

"July 13.—Fred called as usual this evening, but went away without proposing. I must give him a hint."

"Yes—ah—you know!" she stammered, and clutching the book she made a rush for the door and never came back.

Sugar and Protection.

"Protection" furnishes the American farmer and mechanic with granulated sugar in New York at 6 1/2 cents a pound. In Liverpool the Englishman receives American sugar of the same quality for 2 1/2 cents, or nearly two-thirds less per pound. If the sugar dealer and sugar refiner in this country can afford to ship sugar across the ocean and sell for one-third what he receives at home, who obtains the sweet end of protection, the refining monopolist or the consuming toiler? Protection, thou art a mockery!

Cure For Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, belching, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching and effecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address the Dr Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by Osburn & Co and W S Lee, of Junction.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chills, Corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or so pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. For Sale by E R Luckey & Co.

Railroad Work Resumed.

[Ashland Tidings.]

A correspondent at Hazel Creek, Cal., kindly sends us the following under date of Sept. 7th:

Work has actually been resumed on the railroad above Delta. All is bustle and activity at that place. The construction cars that have been switched off at Redding since work was suspended, have been sent to the front. Wm. Mangas, assistant superintendent of the grading force, has arrived there with a crew of blacksmiths and wagon-makers, and has built a shop in which the men have begun the work of repairing the large number of wagons and dump-carts, which have been stored away since the work stopped last year. A force of men are also at work repairing the living and office cars of Sisson & Crocker and J. S. S. rowbridge.

James Sobie, chief of culvert construction, is making preparation for building more stone culverts. He bought a lot of horses last week, and wants many more. His headquarters will be at Delta for the present.

Wm. E. Marsh, with a party of civil engineers, is camped near the end of the track, and is engaged in replacing the locating stakes that have been knocked down.

It is stated on good authority that within ten weeks the road will reach Slate creek, as the distance to build is only about a mile and a half, with one short tunnel to penetrate. This distance will cut off five miles of mountain road for teamsters, and its completion is quite essential.

Chief Engineer Hood was here today on his way to the Oregon line. He has just started two engineering parties out from Delta to begin locating the road from Lower Soda Springs to the State line. Judge Underhill, the right-of-way agent, is securing the right of way from a few settlers along the line.

The Ignorant Hop Vine.

[Belfast, Me., Journal.]

These hops are a curious vine, by the way. I always supposed that a hop vine and a baby knew how to creep without being taught. The baby may, but the hop vine does not. It can't shin a pole any more than a codfish, unless it takes lessons. It is like a kitten—it don't get its eyes open for some time. It comes up out of the hill and lies sprawling on the ground until it is taken by the nose of the neck, so to speak, and wound around there. After that it will seem to catch on and learn why it was put into the world, and will then shin up the pole like a little man. It is not half as intelligent as a bean.

Italy's Peculiar Laws.

[New York Sun.]

Among the things which thirty-five years ago went to make up the crime of high treason in Italy was the possession of a Bible, which was in the list of revolutionary and forbidden books, and for a man to own it was to subject him to prison, the galleys, and even to death. Now Bible depots are established in every Italian city, and itinerate vendors circulate the book freely. In a conspicuous store in the Corso, Rome, a whole window is filled with copies of the Italian version of the Scriptures. The New Testament can be purchased for 5 cents, and a separate Gospel for 2 cents.

It may shock a very general and deeply seated belief to say so, but it must be said that John Lawrence Sullivan is not in all things a typical Bostonian. When the truly representative child of the Hub gets any spare cash his first impulse is to rush to a book store and purchase the latest Concord thesis on "The Whyness of the Wherefore." But when John finds himself the possessor of any superfluous wealth his first impulse is to rush off and get beastly drunk. There is a good deal of work remaining for Boston to do on John.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The latest estimates place the total yield of wheat this year in the United States at 192,000,000 bushels, which is 130,000,000 bushels less than the average crop of the last five years. Why doesn't the price of wheat raise?

Almost Escaped.

[Pendleton Tribune.]

John Lowery, the jailer, upon entering the jail on Monday morning last, discovered some iron chips upon the corridor floor and knew at once that some of the prisoners had been making an effort to escape. After making some search he found that John Atkins and John Riley, occupying a cell together, had with a little chisel, made from the spring of a knife, cut the heads from three rivets, and with a punch—which it is supposed was left in there by the men who put in the cells—punched them out. They bent the sheet iron in with a bar of iron, which they had wrenched from underneath the sink, but the hole made was not sufficiently large for them to crawl through, and, it is supposed, they abandoned the job for the time through fear of being discovered by the jailer in the morning. They tried the iron back to its place, replaced the rivets and concealed the tools, but had neglected to clean up the chips, that had fallen in the corridor.

A Novel New York Industry.

[New York Tribune.]

A young man entered a Wall street office recently and wanted to make a contract for furnishing the office with clean towels. When asked about his business, he said: "I represent a company organized for this work alone. We undertake to come into any office once or twice a day, as may be required, and to furnish one or any number of towels at regular intervals by the year for a stipulated price. This work is usually done by janitors, the occupants of offices supplying their own towels. It is unsatisfactory in most instances. The janitor has so much else to attend to that he forgets or neglects this duty very often. We supply our own towels and make contracts by the quarter or year. We have met with decided success, and in many cases have found the janitors glad to be relieved of the work. The occupants of offices receive us well."

About two hundred newspapers come to the White House daily. Under former administrations they were nearly all paid for, the expense often coming to as much as $3,000 per annum. Col. Lamont as soon as he took charge of things, reduced the subscription list nearly seventy-five per cent. But there are just as many papers as ever. The editors seemed determined that the President shall read their opinion of him, and if he doesn't choose to pay for it they will furnish it free. Col. Lamont also discharged the exchange clerk, who had been drawing a salary of $150 per month. The Colonel does the exchange reading himself, and his experience as an editor comes in good play. He is able to get through the lot quite rapidly. The scrap book idea that was carried on so extensively under previous administrations has not been entirely abandoned. The important articles are preserved in books labeled: "Tari," "Finance," "Appointments," "Personal," etc.

Five hundred and fifty-one immigrants passed through St. Paul during August for points west of Spokane Falls. In the same time 130 first-class passengers bound west passed through St. Paul, making the total departures from that point for the Northwest 690. Arrivals of first-class passengers and immigrants at Portland by the Oregon Short Line were about 600; by steamer from San Francisco about 1600. The whole number of arrivals for the month were 2890; in July 2500, June 3190, May 3100, April 3000, March 2000, February 1000, January 400—a total of 17,990 for the first eight months of 1885.

Silver was quoted lower last week in London than at any time during the last fifty-two years, with the exception of 1876, when one day it was quoted at 46 1/2 pence. The rate one day last week, expressed in gold, was 47 1/2 pence. The gold bugs say this shows a decline in the value of silver, when the fact is that it merely indicates an appreciation in the price of gold. An ounce of silver to-day will purchase more of any commodity than at any time for the past fifty two years.
