LANE COUNTY FAIR.

SATURDAY, Oct. 3d.

This was certainly the big day of the Fair, there being at least 5000 people in attendance. The parade of all stock took place at 1 o'clock, p. m., and was witnessed by a very large crowd.

The total receipts for the Fair were $1,513 50 which will pay the expenses.

THE RACES.

The first on the programme was a trotting race one mile, two best in three. Premiums: 1st, $40; 2d, 25. The entries were: Bellfounder, Dr. T. W. Harris; Lady Mack, J. W. Stewart; and Diamond, Geo. W. Gill. The last named was the favorite in the pool selling by large odds and she won in two straight heats; time, 3.11 1/2 and 3.19 the other two horses each winning a second. In trotting off the tie Bellfounder won in 3.07.

The next was a running race, one mile dash, free for all. Premiums: 1st, $40; 2d, $25. J. C. Yates entered Coalburner, James Aiken entered Sam Tilden, W. W. Boker entered Rosa Wooton. Tilden won the race in 1:58. Coalburner 2d, Wooton 3d. Coalburner flew the track or else the result might have been different. Thus ended the racing for the Fair.

Changing Geography.

Makers of educational works are occasionally reminded that geographical statements sometimes require change to conform to existing facts. Patagonia was lately wiped out, and in other parts of South America existing conditions at direct variance with the text books. An American merchant, Bowers, formerly of Boston, but now residing in Buenos Ayres, recently got a contract to furnish the schools of the Argentine Republic with text books.

He ordered many thousands of the latest issue of the most revised geography from the most enterprising publishers in New York. When the books came he looked them over and immediately shipped them all back. Why? Because these modern geographies represented the Argentine Republic as it was fifty years ago; and the people would have been insulted had they seen what was said of them. In the first place, that country was called the "Argentine Confederation," and stands as such upon most of the maps. The geographer did not know, probably, that a bloody war had been fought to determine that that the Argentine Republic was not a confederation, but a nation with a big "N." It is like calling the United States "The Confederate States of America." Then again, Buenos Ayres was put down as a city of 75,000 inhabitants, when it has 400,000, and is as proud of its growth and greatness as Chicago. There was not the sign or mention of a railway, when the Argentine Republic has as good and extensive a railroad system as Kansas or Minnesota.

The Chinese in the various coal mines about Seattle have been discharged. A large and enthusiastic anti-Chinese meeting was held at Seattle on the 28th with delegates from labor societies all along the sound. Resolutions passed call upon citizens to immediately discharge all Chinese in their employ and declare determination to rid the territory of Chinese slave labor.

"I was never exactly buried alive," said an old clerk recounting his experience, "but I once worked a week in a store that did not advertise. When I came out my head was almost as white as you now see it. Solitary confinement did it."

Summing up the political situation in New York, a Jersey City headliner wrote: "It Looks Like Hill." The editor is now down on his knees to his readers because an e was substituted for an i in the last word.

Cure For Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, flatulence, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanquet's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching and effecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address the Dr. Bosanquet Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by Osburn & Co. and W. S. Lee, of Junction.

General Forrest's Poker Stories.

[Nashville American.]

I was sitting in a room in the Maxwell House with General N. B. Forrest several years before his death.

"General Forrest," I asked, "it has often been said that previous to the war you were a terror at the poker table. How much did you ever win on one hand?"

He replied: "I have played a few heavy games and many a light one: In New Orleans on one hand I won $47,000."

"And what did you hold?"

"Three kings and two nines."

I have always regretted I did not ask him what his opponent held, but I did not. He told the following story, his eyes filling with tears during its recital: "When my wife and I went to Memphis after the close of hostilities we had $7 20, not a cent more or less. We spent one entire afternoon ransacking an old portfolio hoping to find some old uncollected account, or 'I. O. U.' on which I might realize. There wasn't a thing. I said to my wife: 'Rhoda, you have always been against me and poker, I never played a game since I first knew you that your absent face was not a haunting rebuke over one shoulder. Now, I have been invited to Sneed's to a dinner to-night, and I know there will be cards. If you'll give me your blessing this once, my dear, I feel mighty sure I can come home a richer man.'

"Said she: 'Forest we've got along without that, so far as I have known, and by the Lord's help we'll so on without it.'

"Yes," said I "but the Lord has been slow of late, and seems to be getting slower; what d'ye say to this one time?" She never consented, but she didn't oppose it very strong, and I promised I wouldn't go over $7 20. It was just as I expected. Four tables were running at Sneed's, and I won enough at fifty cents ante to go in at a higher table later on. Well, sir, as I won—and I won right from the first—I just dropped the money into my hat on the floor, and when we broke up at daylight I put my hat on with the money in it, without counting it over, and went home. As I came near to my house I caught a glimpse from the outside of my wife's white figure waiting right where she had waited all night, pale and anxious, and when I went in I just took off my hat and emptied $1,500 in her lap. I felt sorry for her for she couldn't bless that night's doings; but, sir—it was a great relief to me."

CAPRICE OF A KING.—Frau Wolter, the Austrian actress, who has been playing before the King of Bavaria, gives a curious account of her experiences. His Majesty ordered the performance for midnight. With the exception of the foot-lights, the house was pitch dark. The King's arrival and departure were announced by an electric signal. He was the solitary spectator. Nobody could see him in his box, where he remained during the representation, silent and meditative. On the fall of the curtain, he sent her a nosegay and a jewel as a mark of his appreciation, which she had to acknowledge on the spot in a formal letter, dictated to her by his Chamberlain.

Boston Traveller: A son of the Governor Wise who signed John Brown's death warrant is now running as the Republican candidate for Governor of Virginia, and a son of Governor Andrew who was John Brown's friend and champion may shortly be running as the Democratic candidate for Governor of Massachusetts. As the stump orator of the minstrel stage used to inquire, "Where are we now?"
