THE ALBANY MURDER.

Full Particulars of the Same as Related by the Witnesses.

We take the following account from last Saturday's Albany Democrat:

Wednesday evening, near the residence of D. P. Mason, on the southeast corner of Ferry and Fifth streets, in Albany, Charles Campbell, of Albany, while walking south along Ferry street, in company with Mattie Allison, was shot by Wirt W. Saunders, formerly one of the editors of the Benton Leader, of Corvallis. Campbell was taken to the residence of Gen. W. Burkhardt and about 9 o'clock was removed to his father's home in the eastern part of the city, where he died at 6 o'clock Thursday morning.

A coroner's jury was called by Geo. Humphrey, Esq., consisting of Thomas Monteith, J. H. Burkhardt, John Bryant, G. F. Simpson, S. T. Jones and A. L. Churchill. The testimony of Dr. Maston, Mr. Doherty, C. H. Stewart, the first ones present after the shooting, Mr. Hoffman and Mattie Allison, was taken. The testimony of Miss Allison, a life-long resident of Linn county, tells so nearly the whole particulars of the unfortunate affair that we give alone her version of it, which is in keeping practically with the rest of the testimony taken.

MISS ALLISON'S STATEMENT.

Miss Mattie Allison, on being sworn, made the following statement:

I started home twenty five minutes past seven. I passed by engine house. I had been getting insulting letters and wanted to know who they were written by. I went past engine house, and between Mansfield's and court house I met Campbell. He was in disguise, but I knew him. In front of court house I met him again. I said, "Are you the gentleman who wrote the letter?" He said, "I suppose we are even now." I said, "I guess not; you have been doing everything you can to ruin me." He had followed me everywhere. We went along quarreling. At Mason's we met Saunders. I was on left side.

Saunders said, "What do you mean by insulting Mattie in this manner?" Campbell put his hand back and then Saunders fired. I said, "Don't fire again." Campbell dropped. He said, "I am going to die. Does this come from you?" I said, "I suppose it does." Saunders asked where he was shot. He said, "In my bowels." I said, when asked, we will take him to my house. My mother said he should not be taken there. Meeting was by appointment between Captain Saunders and me. I once went to Corvallis with Saunders. He said he had heard how Campbell had been talking about me. I told Saunders how Campbell had talked about me and that he let me alone for some time, and that if Campbell ever did it again I said I could not stand it. Saunders said, "Make me a promise, tell me when he does it and I will come down and have a talk with him and tell him how the land lays and he will never bother you any more." I got this letter from a man desiring to meet me. Got it Tuesday morning. Sat down and cried. I wrote a letter to Saunders; told him I was going to have trouble; told him I wished he would come down. He came down. Got here at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. Showed letter to him; told him I believed Bud Johnson wrote the letter. Told him he had better see Bud and tell him I believed he was the one who wrote it. He said yes had better write to Campbell and tell him you will meet him. Of course I knew it was Campbell. Said I was afraid. Campbell had threatened to shoot me. He said he would be around to meet me and would walk up and demand what he meant by his conduct. (Shown letter.) This is the one I wrote. Saunders made copy and I copied nearly. Think Saunders stopped at Revere House when he came down. I did not know for sure about his being armed. Of course I thought he was. He always carries one. Did when I went to Corvallis. There were no shots, but he only fired one. The other was accidental.

I wrote Saunders Tuesday morning and he came down that evening. I expected they would have words, but nothing more. I never said there would be trouble. Knew Campbell would kill me if he got a chance. Shooting was 25 minutes of 8. It was not very dark or light. Met Saunders last night not quite 7 o'clock. Think it was near Blain's. Nothing said about my appointment with Campbell. He went back with me to store. Said he had sent his buggy home and by whom. Heard Saunders say the shooting was accidental at the time. He dropped pistol and told me to pick it up, but I would not. Mr. Campbell was on right side and Saunders in front of me, so near I could nearly touch him. I never dreamed of shooting. It was done so quick I hardly knew how it was done. Nothing was said about Saunders between me and Campbell. Saunders told me he and Campbell had played cards together in Harry Noel's saloon. I asked Campbell who wrote letters, and he said Mr. Johnson. Object of appointment was to find out for certain who wanted this meeting. I thought there would be some slapping or something like that, but never dreamed of anything else.

About 3 o'clock I got answer to letter in postoffice. Captain Saunders was at store when I showed him letter. Told me to meet him. Said I was afraid to meet him, as he would as soon kill me as turn his hand over. He said, "You go and I will be around somewhere if anything happens." I told him which way I would go, by the court house. I could not see anything of Saunders before time of shooting. Do not think they had ever had any difficulty before yesterday. Saunders was at house after shooting. He seemed to be sorry and regretted it. He had not known what he was doing. The reason Saunders took interest in me was because he expected to marry my sister. They are engaged. He has been over to the bay. He took interest in me same as if he were my brother, and this was the reason he took my part. When Campbell left here some weeks ago I never wrote to him to come back.

At the time of the shooting the language used by Saunders was "what do you mean by slandering Mattie and writing her these insulting letters." Campbell said: "You son of a ---, I had just as soon shoot you," or something that amounted to that, as nearly as can remember. Campbell had an umbrella. He put his right hand back by his side. Don't know under which arm the umbrella was. Saunders did not say anything after what Campbell said, but pointed his pistol in front of me and fired. He only fired once. Did not see Campbell fall. Saw him on the ground first after shooting. I put my hand on Saunders' arm and said: "Don't shoot again." Pistol fell. I looked around and saw Campbell lying down with Saunders beside him. Campbell said: "I am going to die." Saunders said: "Oh, my God, don't say that, for I did not mean to do it." Saunders asked him where he was shot and he said in the bowels. Campbell asked me if I was the cause of that, and I made the remark that I guessed I was. He asked me if I could forgive him for every thing he had done against me. Dr. Maston was the first one there.

MATTIE ALLISON.

Thos. Monteith, Jr., testified that Miss Allison was in the store of Monteith & Scitensbach Wednesday, when she said to him, something is going to happen and I am afraid my heart will break. Yesterday after the murder she was again in the store and begged him for God's sake not to mention what she had said.

The jury mentioned above rendered a verdict that Charles's death was caused by a gunshot wound received at the hands of W. W. Saunders and that they find and have reason to believe that the said W. W. Saunders and Mattie Allison are guilty of the crime of killing the said Charles Campbell.

The letters referred to were one from a Mr. Blankfellow to Miss Allison, requesting to meet her, and her answer consenting to do so. It is not necessary to give them.

The murder has caused intense excitement here, both parties being well known in this part of the state. Mr.

Saunders was arrested at Mrs. Allison's residence by sheriff Charlton soon after the murder, and Miss Allison yesterday noon, and they now are in the county jail. Campbell was shot just below his heart by a 45-calibre revolver, the ball going through his bowels.

At the preliminary examination, held in Albany last Monday, Saunders and Miss Allison both waived examination, and were held in jail to await the action of the grand jury on the charge of murder, without bail.

A Foolish Wife.

Last Sunday evening Dr. Bailey was called to the bedside of Mrs. Masters, wife of W. E. Masters, of the Exchange saloon of this place, says the Hillsboro Independent, who had attempted to destroy herself by taking morphia. He found her in a stupor from which she occasionally aroused herself, having taken the poison about two hours before. He gave her an emetic and at once administered antidotes. She bought about six grains of morphia at Eagleton's drug store and attempted to take all of it, but Mrs. Jenkins who came in just at the time, intenteonally spilled out about half of it. She told Mrs. Jenkins that she was in the habit of taking it for pain she had in the stomach. The doctor does not consider her yet out of danger. Domestic trouble is said to be the cause.

The Astoria and Winnemucca Railroad company want authority to build railroad bridges across the Willamette river, south of Oregon City, and across such other streams and sloughs as it may be necessary to bridge along the line of the railroad, or any of its branches. This measure is supported by the War Department, to which all of this character are referred for examination. The chief of engineers says that upon a thorough examination it is believed that the provisions of the bill are ample for the protection of the navigable interests concerned, inasmuch as the width of the draws, height and location of the bridges are made subject to the approval of the Secretary of War, but until his approval has been received they cannot be built.

The mayor of a city in Minnesota the other day in a talk to workmen, related a bit of personal history. "I was the son of a carpenter, and forty years ago I worked at the trade myself," said he. "And I worked for a dollar a day. That was considered splendid wages. They put in rather more hours per day then than now. The daily programme was something as follows: Get up at daylight and work until breakfast; work from breakfast until noon, when there was an intermission of one hour; then work until supper at 6 o'clock, and from 7 o'clock until 9, piecing out the way by the aid of candlelight."

Explorers to Queen Charlotte's islands, in their report to the British Columbian government, state that they found resources of timber, arable land, coal and fisheries enough to support a million souls. The islands will probably be colonized.

Wilkes county, Georgia, is greatly excited over the discovery of $20,000 in silver coin on a plantation in that section. The story of a Confederate treasury train that was robbed near that place during the war is revived by the discovery.
