Where Hendricks was Born.

[New York World.]

Your correspondent recently visited the birthplace of the late Vice-President Hendricks, and interviewed the oldest resident of Newton township, who knew the Hendricks family intimately when they resided at Uniontown, whither they removed from Shippensburg, Pa., in 1816. This remarkable old resident is George W. Crooks, now in his ninety-first year. His father and uncle were the pioneer settlers of Zanesville, O., coming here from Virginia in 1798.

Mr. Crooks, though feeble in health, remembers early events distinctly. He was the first white child in Zanesville and his sister was the first born in Muskingum. In 1805 the father hewed the road through the woods that afterwards became part of the Maysville pike, and built a tavern at what eventually became Uniontown. John Hendricks, with his wife and son Abraham, arrived in 1805, purchased the Redman tannery and built a rude log cabin on the side of the hill above the pike. Mr. Crooks was in the house when Thomas Hendricks was born, and Mrs. Crooks nursed Mr. Hendricks' mother through her sickness. Three years afterwards Hendricks sold his property and moved to Indiana to engage in surveying with his brother.

The cabin in which the deceased Vice President was born was of hewed logs and contained two rooms, with a stone chimney at one corner and windows of greased paper to let in the light. The old tannery is still standing, but the log house has since passed away.

When Mr. Hendricks came here to make a political speech some ten years ago, he inquired for Mr. Crooks and insisted upon his occupying a seat upon the platform during the delivery of the address.

Modern Methuselahs.

The oldest person in Indiana is Mrs. Carter, of Russiaville. She is 116.

Mrs. Nancy Allison Frost, of Marietta, Ohio, was 102 years old on October 23d.

Henry Hall, of Hampton county, S. C., died a few weeks ago at the age of 105 years.

G. W. Spring, Sr., of Worth, Ga., is now 105 years old. He is no longer able to speak.

Ned English, aged 115, of Camden, S. C., well remembers that he saw Tarleton's cavalry.

Mrs. Henry Alphonse, of Concord, Me., is able at the age of 105 to do her own housework.

Mrs. Flora Blankenship, of Corwin, Ill., has gray haired grandchildren. She herself is 113.

Pablo Mascarenas, of Mora, claims to be the "oldest inhabitant" of New Mexico. He is 107.

Mrs. Bridget Farley's 104 birthday was the occasion for recent festivities at West Stratford, Conn.

Donald McClellan, a Highlander, who speaks nothing but Gaelic, lies at the point of death, in Detroit, aged 107 years.

"Give me one more smoke out of the old clay pipe," said Rachel Varvel of Owingville, Ky., just before she died. She was 101.

No fewer than 105 descendants recently joined in the celebration of Mrs. Barbara Ritter's 100th birthday, in Floyd county, Iowa.

A book to be published on human longevity places Connecticut in front of the world in the number of long lived people. Among special instances is John Weeks, of New London, who married his tenth wife when 105 years old, she being sixteen. He died at the age of 114. His gray hairs were succeeded by a growth of dark hairs, and several new teeth appeared before his died.

A man in Syracuse collected statistics of the lives of ten thousand Connecticutians. He found that six thousand of them came from Connecticut, and that the majority of them were women. Fifty single women came up to the century mark, but only twelve bachelors. One hundred ministers lived to be 100, and only thirty doctors, ten lawyers and ten actors. A centenarian newspaper man could not be found.

A story paper's answer to a correspondent: "If you are devotedly in love with the young man and he is devotedly in love with you, we see no reason why you should not marry him. Grubs and black-heads can be removed from the face by the use of a watch-key. You ought to obey your mother in all things. Wash your face in rain water. A young lady should not speak to a man to whom she has not been introduced. Take salt for blotches. If you desire to become a good conversationalist you should read entertaining books and pay close attention to clever talkers. The dress you send is light brown. Moses led the children of Israel from Egypt. In winter always warm your feet before going to bed.—Arkansas Traveler.

The bean is supposed to be a native of Persia. It is one of the most ancient articles of food, and was cultivated in Egypt from the earliest ages. It formed the common dish known among the Hebrews as pottage, for a dish of which Esau bartered away his birthright. The Lima bean is a native of the East Indies; the common pole kidney bean comes from India, and the scarlet flowered varieties are from Mexico, South America and the West Indies.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.
