LATEST TELEGRAPHIC REPORT.

Synopsis of Measures Introduced in the National Legislature.

SENATE.

The Chair laid before the Senate a communication from the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, with the draft of a proposed bill to authorize the supplying of standards of weights and measurements to the Territories.

A resolution offered by Mitchell, was agreed to, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to inform the Senate whether Alfred B. Meacham, late Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the State of Oregon, was at any time declared a defaulter on his official bond as such Superintendent, and if so when and how much, and whether any money had since been paid him by the United States.

Frye presented a petition from various organizations of Knights of Labor of Maine, praying that the territory known as Oklahoma be opened to settlers.

Chase introduced an amendment to the Civil Service Act. Its object is to prevent Congressmen from selecting or recommending appointments to office.

Hale introduced a bill to authorize the President to appoint a commission of seven experts, skilled in investigation, production and use of metallic substances and other structural materials, to execute tests and experiments on iron, steel and other materials used in the construction of bridges, buildings and mechanical structures, and deduct useful rules therefrom.

Blair reported favorably from the Committee on Woman Suffrage a joint resolution to amend the Constitution so as to extend the voting privilege to women.

VanWyck introduced a bill designated to prevent rulings of the Commissioner of the General Land Office from having retroactive effect. It provides that any entry heretofore made under the land laws of the United States, and in conformity with the rules, regulations and decisions of the General Land Office at the time entry was made, shall proceed to patent, notwithstanding any subsequent reversal or modification of such rules, regulations and decisions; provided, however, that entry shall have been made in good faith and that no charges of fraud shall have been brought in connection with it.

The Chair laid before the Senate a letter from the Attorney General asking for an additional appropriation of $50,000 for jurors of the United States Courts, and $135,000 for witnesses.

Frye, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported favorably the resolution declaring it to be the opinion of the Senate that Congress ought not to provide for a joint commission of Great Britain and the United States in relation to fisheries.

The Chair laid before the Senate a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury in relation to the "conscience fund." The first item to the credit of the fund was made in 1827, and the fund now amounts to $229,740.

Maxey introduced a bill to make Houston, Texas, a port of entry.

Dolph introduced a bill to extend the limits of the port of Portland, Oregon, so as to include all that portion of the east bank of the Willamette lying opposite the city.

Cameron, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported favorably his bill authorizing the President to appoint from civil life an assistant Secretary of the Navy, at a salary of $4,000.

Blair, from the Committee on Education and Labor, reported favorably Frye's bill to provide for the appointment of five persons to investigate the alcoholic liquor traffic.

The Dakota bill was passed by a vote of 32 to 22. Voorhees was the only Democrat voting in the affirmative. The bill divides the Territory of Dakota on the line of the 46th parallel of latitude, and provides for admission of the southern portion as a State under the title of "Dakota," and the organization of the northern portion into a separate Territory, under the name of "Lincoln."

Dolph introduced a bill appropriating $4,297 for the relief of Mrs. Kate Hathon, of Lake county, Oregon, for deprivations committed by Modoc Indians in 1872.

Dawes reported favorably the bill introduced by Dolph, providing that twenty acres on the Umatilla reservation, next to the town of Pendleton, Oregon, be surveyed, appraised at its full value, and sold to W. S. Byers, R. G. Thompson and J. Barnhart. The land embraces the mill race and water head of the mill owned by these three men.

HOUSE. The bill increasing the pension of soldiers' widows from $8 to $12, was passed. Yeas, 197; nays, 66.

By King—Appropriating $3,000,000 for closing gaps in levees of the Mississippi river and strengthening and giving permanency to the same.

By Hermann—To establish the Crater Lake National Park.

The following committee reports were submitted:

By Cobb, from the Committee on Public Lands, to forfeit the Atlantic and Pacific land grant; House calendar.

By Hatch, from the Committee on Agriculture, to enlarge the powers and duties of the Department of Agriculture; referred to Committee of the Whole.

By McRae, from the Committee on Public Lands, to protect homestead settlers within railroad limits; House calendar.

THE BIG LOTTERY PRIZE.

How Fortunes Fell to Californians in the Last Drawing of the Louisiana Lottery.

Jacob Marzoff is a jovial German, who came to California in the early days, and finally settled down as proprietor of a little saloon at Black's Station, Yolo county. For ten years "Jake's Saloon" has been a well known resort there. About a year ago C. C. Howx, who, spent most of his time prospecting in the neighboring hills, although with little success, suggested to Jake that they might "strike it rich" by investing in the Louisiana State Lottery. On Jan. 1, 1885, the two started in together to buy five $1 tickets every month for one year. They were lucky in the first drawing, and continued winning small prizes amounting to over $200. Just before the last drawing they decided to quit buying tickets altogether when the year was over.

Howx went into the hills, Jake tended his saloon, and neither dreamed of the good fortune in store for them. When the news came over the wires that some one at Black's Station had drawn one-tenth of the capital prize, $150,000, the little town was excited with curiosity as to who was the lucky man. Jake went down into his well-worn pocket-book, and was overjoyed on seeing that one of the tickets which it contained was number 69,255. His partner was immediately notified of the bonanza they had struck. He returned to town and when the money was collected soon after, through the Bank of Woodland, it was divided between the two. Both have altered their resolution in regard to buying tickets and will continue investing on a larger scale during the present year.

A happy-looking, handsome man stepped out of the office in the produce store at 437 Eleventh St., West Oakland, and pleasantly greeted a Call reporter, who had inquired for Columbus R. Lewis. Mr. Lewis is another participant in the good luck that fell to California in the December drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, having won one-tenth of the $150,000 prize. He is a widely-known citizen of Oakland, and resides with his family in a cosy home at 1453 Brush street. He came to California in 1860, and has been a produce merchant across the bay 14 years. He has not been at all flurried by the receipt of his big Christmas present, and is as methodical in his business as ever. He began buying lottery tickets many years ago, and has continued doing so off and on ever since.

By experience he grew to accept the outcome of each drawing philosophically, and he calmly heard the news when told that the coupon No. 69,255, which he held made him $15,000 richer than he had been before.

San Francisco also kept up its run of luck in the Lottery, Henry Adams of 427 Geary street having won $1,000 in the last drawing.—San Francisco (Cal.) Call, January 10.

WORK OF FUNNY MEN.

We are in receipt of a little book, which in richness of humor and grotesqueness of illustration, may be said in the language of the West, to "take the cake." It is simply drawing it mild to say that it contains some of the best examples of American humor ever published; and the contributors, who are well-known in the field of letters, have really excelled all former efforts. The illustrations by comic artists are also in direct harmony with the text. "Bill Nye" tells his experience with a cyclone. R. K. Munkittrick, of Puck, rhymes funnily on the four seasons. Mr. H. D. Umbstaetter, the originator of the book, describes his wrestle with a grilled bone in "merrie England," and "M. Quad," of the Detroit Free Press, gives some quaint aphorisms of "Bruder Gardner's." The book, in fact is not one to be glanced at and laid aside and forgotten, but can be taken up with pleasure at any time. Its title is the St. Jacobs Oil Family Calendar and Book of Health and Humor for the Million or 1886. It is published by The Charles A. Vogeler Company, Baltimore, Md., the proprietors of St. Jacobs Oil—a remedy which is universally known as the only cure for rheumatism and all bodily pains, and which has been endorsed by leading men in every country in the world. Red Star Cough Cure, the new twenty-five cent remedy for throat and lung troubles, which is also being manufactured by this house, has received the endorsement of legislators and boards of health on account of its freedom from dangerous opiates and its prompt efficacy. The book is distributed in large cities by carriers and in small towns by druggists. When there is any difficulty in obtaining it, a stamp sent to The Charles A. Vogeler Company, will ensure a copy by mail.

—A little boy in Warrenton visited his aunt in the country not long since. One day at the dinner table the lady complained that a jar of favorite preserves had mysteriously disappeared from the pantry. Each one present disclaimed any knowledge of the fact, except the little boy, who remained studiously silent. At length he was asked if he knew anything of the missing fruit, when he replied: "My pa don't allow me to talk 'bout the tab.e."—Warrenton (Ga.) Clipper.

GERMAN POTATOES.

New Yorkers Who Buy Them at the Rate of Five Cents Per Pound.

It may seem incredible to some of our readers to learn that potatoes are imported from Germany into this country, than which no other portion of the globe has more agricultural advantages, but such is the case. Whether the potato grown in German soil possesses any particular virtue not inherent in the American-grown tuber is a question we are not able to answer, but we do know that certain classes of people of the world over deem imported food of every sort far superior to home products. In England and France, for instance, the label of an American house claims the first consideration of the epicure in search of something extra nice, and from our foreign correspondents and personal observation we learn that everywhere in Europe American goods are found on sale in immense quantities. On the other hand, it seems perfectly natural, when we consider the vagary of human nature, to find German potatoes and a thousand other articles we might name in the New York markets, with plenty of purchasers in the bargain.

The particular German potato we have in mind has only lately gained a prominent place on our list of imports. A few years ago the receipts were from twenty-five to fifty bags yearly. Last year over one thousand bags of German potatoes were sold in New York City alone, and this season the sales have already reached that figure, showing a remarkably rapid increase in their consumption. Noting this increase, and desiring to find out the cause of their popularity, we called upon an uptown grocer, who serves a very particular class of trade, and asked to see his German potatoes. He displayed his samples upon a plate which held a dozen or more tubers the size of a large walnut. We were surprised to learn that this was the average size, and that in spite of the seeming disadvantage in this respect, the German potato was a favorite on the tables of several of his wealthier customers. He sells them by weight, at five cents a pound, and buys them at three cents by the single bag, or two and a half cents a pound in ten bag lots. The bags will average about one hundred pounds. Curious to know whether they were bought for any special object, we were informed that they are considered the finest potatoes for salad, and are principally used for that purpose. Peeled and broiled in lard or butter, whole, without slicing, they make a specially attractive dish. Boiled and served in their peel, and eaten with a little butter and salt, they are delightful. Cooked this way, the potato should be broken apart with the hand, and not cut with a knife.—Metropolitan Grocer.

THE JERICHO ROAD.

Why Young Men Should Never Travel It Under Ordinary Circumstances.

So you have got yourself into trouble, my son? Gone a little wrong, have you? Yes, well, that means you know that you have gone clear wrong, because there is only one kind of right and one kind of wrong. And you've had such a hard time getting back that it's made you a little bitter and cynical, and you think all the world is rather hard and pitiless and especially severe on you? Well, I wouldn't feel that way if I were you. I don't think I ever did feel that way, and I know more about it than you do. I've been further down on the Jericho road than you. Went down there to let my beard grow. Great towns for toots, from away back. It's a bad country. Never heard of but one good woman in Jericho, and she didn't move to good society. But, my son, it isn't society's fault that you got into trouble. You knew what the Jericho road was when you went down that way. You knew there was a curse on the town. You were safe enough in Jerusalem; why didn't you stay there? Don't feel bitterly toward all the world because you fell among thieves and got cleaned out. It is a kind, good natured, forgiving old world, if you give it a chance to be forgiving. True, it doesn't always look that way to a fellow in trouble, because then the fellow is apt to look at the wrong people. You found on the Jericho road, say six or eight thieves—that is, half a dozen professionals and the two amateurs who passed by on the other side—and only one good Samaritan, and naturally it seems to you that the heaven of good is utterly lost in that great mass of rascality and hypocrisy, but bless you, my son, in the great, honest living world, in the world that is trying to do right and trying to lead men to better things than Jericho excursions, in the only world that really loves and cares for just such young fellows as you, in the real world of men and women who deal with the young men all the more gently when his smarting wounds are deepest, the one good Samaritan outweighs a regiment of these villains who beat you, and robbed you, and passed you by on the road to Jericho. Never mind the priest and the Levite, my son. They were going down to Jericho, too, you remember, that's the kind of priests they were. And one closing word, my son. Unless you are smarter and stronger than the thieves down Jericho way—and I guess may be you are not; very few men are—why, you keep off that road. You stay in Jerusalem, and you'll have more money and less headache.—Burdette, in Brooklyn Eagle.

—There was a connection between General Lincoln, of Revolutionary fame, and the family whence sprang Abraham Lincoln. The latter's people once lived among those of the former in Massachusetts, but migrated to Berks County, Pa., thence to the Shenandoah Valley, Va., and thence to Kentucky, where the great Abraham was born. In spite of the assertions of the writers of various histories the Lincolns were not so particularly lowly. On the contrary, they were people of the sturdy sort, and it is said that so strong is the family type that the Lincolns of Boston and of the Shenandoah Valley of this very time are as much alike as so many peas.—N. Y. Graphic.

Did you Suppose Mustang Liniment only good for horses? It is for inflammation of all flesh.

General Judson Kilpatrick used to tell the story that after his appointment as Minister to Chili he was met by an old lady who had known him from childhood, and to whose bucolic mind the gallant General's large way of stating things had some times seemed like exaggeration. "Well, Jud," she said, "I hear you have been called to the ministry. Glad to hear it. You'll make a real good preacher; but [solemnly], Jud, you must stop your lying."—N. Y. Post.

Wilhelm, the eminent violinist, is not without a grain of sense of humor of his own. The audience which greeted him at Gothenburg, in Scandinavia, was quite small, but on the succeeding day, when the artist took his departure, great crowds gathered at the depot and cheered him with enthusiasm. As the train moved off Wilhelm turned to a stander-by and said: "Next time I come to Gothenburg I shall give my concert at the station."

"We can give you stewed terrapin," suggested the waiter to a countryman, who, with his bride, was seated in the dining-room of a city hotel. TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR. For all Diseases of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Spleen. This purely vegetable preparation, now so celebrated as a Family Medicine, was first originated in the South in 1828. It acts gently on the Bowels and Kidneys, and corrects the action of the Liver, and is, therefore, the best preparatory medicine, whatever the sickness may prove to be. In all common diseases it will, unassisted by any other medicine, effect a speedy cure.

The Regulator is safe to administer in any condition of the system, and under no circumstances can it do harm. It will invigorate a flagging system, is so innocuous, never leads to intemperance; will promote digestion, dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system. The dose is small, not unpleasant, and its virtues undoubted. No loss of time, no interruption of business while taking the Regulator.

Children complaining of Colic, Headache, or Sick Stomach, a teaspoonful or more will give relief. If taken occasionally by patients exposed to MALARIA, it will expel the poison and protect them from attack. A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION. I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weaken) a flagging and assimilative power of the system. —Edward Ball, known in the West as the cowboy preacher, is a young man of intelligence, has a finely shaped head, and is said to be very sincere in his belief. He works for money, and then spends every dollar in traveling and preaching, and for religious literature to give away. In his preaching he is somewhat after the Sam Jones order.—Chicago Times.

"What is the matter?" asked an Austin doctor of a thin young man named Anderson Pye. "I think the climate of Austin does not agree with me—have got at trouble breathing with my lungs." "You would have a great deal more trouble breathing without your lungs," responded the doctor, whereupon Anderson Pye got up and adjourned; and now he tells every one that the doctor does not understand his business.—Texas Sittings.

—A man in New York has invented a water-proof cap for the small boy to draw over his head when swimming, and expects to be as rich as Vanderbilt within a few years. When a boy can go home from a swimming picnic with dry hair, he will think the day of jubilee has come; but if a New Yorker can attach a contrivance to his cap that will prevent the youthful bather from getting his shirt turned inside out while climbing over a fence, his sales will increase one hundred per cent.—Norristown Herald.

'A clean one ever lay?' 'Yes,' I said. 'Oh,' she exclaimed, 'if I had only been your washerwoman!'"—Chicago Herald.
