the President in a letter, wherein he boldly and frankly expresses himself, as determined to uphold his constitutional rights. He will forward them them his reasons for removals, as they have no right to know, the sole consti were purely a legislative body, and in antly. conclusion he appealed from the American House of Lords to the American peop'e.

It seems that no moderation on the President's part can mollify the Republican senate. After one year in office President Cleveland has made so few changes that were all these nominations confirmed four-fifths of the Federal offices would be in Republican hands. This moderation is all the more remarkable when it is considered that for twentyfour years all Democrats were completely and utterly ostracised and exnot be a single Republican office holder in the nation to-day, not one. But he will go his way, the officers ap pointed by him will retain their places, and many Republican office holders are doomed to walk the plank un til tfle just equilibrium is reached between the parties in officeholding.

The President's letter concluded as follows:

"Every pledge which I have made by which I have placed a limitation on my executive power has been faithfully redeemed.

Of course the pretense is not put forth that no mistakes have been committed, but no suspension has been made except it appeared to my satisfaction that the public welfare applications for suspension have been denied, and adherence to the rule laid down to govern my action as to such suspensions has caused much irritationand impatience on the part of these who have insisted on more changes in office. The pledges I have made were made to the people, and to them I am responsible for the manner in which they havebeen redeemed. I am not responsible to the senate, and am unwilling to submit my actions and There are no grounds for the allegation professions influence me in dechining to submit to the demands of the senate. I have constantly refused the displeasure of political friends, nor yet have I willfully broken faith with the people for the sake of being false to them. Neither the discontent of party friends, nor allurements constantly offered of confirmation of appointees, conditioned upon an avow al that suspensions have been made on party grounds alone, nor the threat proposed in the resolutions now before the senate that no confirmations will be made unless the demands of that body be complied with are sufficient to discourage or deter me from following to better government for the people.

The stories of suffering among the cutta. laborers in the region of which Pittsburg is the center continues. The most heart sickening destitution is seen on every hand, and thousands of men, women, and children are on the vergeof starvation.
