

THE EUGENE CITY GUARD.

SATURDAY.....MARCH 13, 1886.

Sayings of Gen. Hancock.

Public men may with profit study these sayings of Gen. Hancock:

The bayonet is not a fit instrument for collecting the votes of freemen.

The army should have nothing to do with the election or inauguration of Presidents.

Power may destroy the form, but not the principles of justice; these will live in spite of even the sword.

The great principles of American liberty are still the lawful inheritance of this people, and ever should be.

It is a vital principle in our system that neither fraud nor force must be allowed to subvert the right of the people.

Public office is a trust, not a bounty, bestowed upon the holder; no incompetent or dishonest person should be intrusted with it.

Free institutions while they are essential to the prosperity and happiness of the people, always furnish the strongest inducements to peace and order.

All classes of our people must share alike in the blessings of the Union, and are equally concerned in its perpetuity and the proper administration of public affairs.

Woe to us whenever it shall come to pass that the power of the magistracy—civil or military—is permitted to deal with the mere opinions or feelings of the people.

"It was down in Virginia," says a veteran in the Lewiston Journal. "I was placed on guard over a barn and was taking it easy when a lieutenant came along, probably to see what his guard was doing. I ought to have saluted, but I didn't. Soon I saw a large, nice-looking man coming toward me. He wore a nice uniform, and I noticed as he approached that he wore a lieutenant's straps. I wasn't going to pay any further attention to him, but when he came quite near to me I saw there were two stars inside those straps. I jumped up and presented arms as quickly as I could, for I saw it was Major General Hancock. 'Never mind that for me,' said he with a wave of his hand. 'I don't care anything about it, but always do it for the little fellows.' He passed on. I suppose the lieutenant had reported me, and he came down to see about it."

Between President Cleveland and the Democracy there has never been a disagreement at all to be compared with those which existed between the Republican party and every one of its presidents. And it is the undeniable fact that what slight differences there have been between Mr. Cleveland and his party are disappearing so rapidly that by the end of his term they will probably have vanished altogether.

The speeches at the recent Revenue House banquet have carried a realizing sense of these truths home to the Republican editorial mind. Hence these chafing editorial comments: "Let the galled jade wince." If Republican success in 1888 depends on Democratic divisions it will never come.

Republican leaders are rushing into Michigan to take part in the canvass in that State. Michigan was once a state that the Republicans could safely allow to take care of itself, but their present activity indicates that this is no longer the case. It is to be hoped that the Democratic leaders will not fail to make the most of the opportunity thus shown to them. The northwestern States do not belong in the high tariff column, and courage and activity on the part of Democrats in Congress will assure their adherence to the Democratic party.

The President has appointed to succeed Fred Douglass, as Register of Deeds in the District of Columbia, Mr. John C. Matthews of Albany, N. Y. Mr. Matthews is a colored man of fine education and ability, with a large law practice. We met him in the campaign of 1876, and were impressed by his excellence and soundness of character. The President has done the right thing in making the appointment.—S. F. Alta.

Mrs. Hendricks has been elected a director of the Hecla Mining Company of Montana. It is a large and profitable silver mine, in which her late husband was a heavy owner.

Senator John F. Miller of California, died in Washington last Monday. He was a fairly able statesman, and as a soldier did good service in the late civil war.

Mary Bleeker, relict of ex Governor Horatio Seymour, died at the residence of Roscoe Conkling, at Utica, New York, at 9:30 Monday morning last.

Unvarying chorus of the Bell Telephone conspirators: "Whatever happens, so much the worse."

From the Missouri Church News.

[By the Episcopal Bishop of Missouri.]

Inquiry is often had to the tenure of the office of rector. The office of rector by the canons bears on it no limitation as to how long it will run. The assumption is that it has been entered upon, on both sides, deliberately and with full knowledge, and does not therefore have in it any suggestions of termination or renewal. The contract as to compensation made at the outset also runs with the office. It is for so much a year. It belongs to the vestry, the guardians of the temporalities of the parish, to arrange as to the method in which the amount shall be raised, whether by pew rents, pledges or otherwise. But because the amount is so much for the year, and with the vestry lies the power of deciding how to secure the amount, this does not imply that with them, one party to the contract, lies the power of abrogating or changing it. This requires like any compact, common consent.

But, as the condition of the parish may change, and make what was once possible afterwards impossible, or as other matters of difference may arise which one party alone can not settle, the canons of the Church provide the means by which such differences may be adjusted fairly. The law referred to may be found in Title Second of the Digest of the General Canons, Canon Four.

A rector elected and settled upon may not resign his parish without the consent of the parish or its vestry; nor may such rector or minister be removed by the parish or vestry against his will, except as is afterwards provided in the canons. In case of a wish on the part of the rector or of the parish to bring about a dissolution of pastoral relation, and the parties are not able to agree in respect to it, notice of such desire and disagreement may be given by either party to the ecclesiastical authority of the diocese in writing.

In case of such differences which may not be satisfactorily settled by the cordly judgment of the Bishop alone, or which he may decline to consider without counsel, the Bishop, acting with the advice and consent of the Standing Committee, or with that of the clerical members alone, if both parties assent to such limitation, shall be the ultimate arbiter. The canon then goes on to state the means by which such judgment and the terms of it shall be made effectual on the side that refuses the result of the arbitration.

Of course the implication in the procedure is that the choice of rector shall be taken with such care that process like this shall not be likely to occur, and also that differences shall be managed by good sense and good feeling, before the situation becomes acute. It is also to be noticed that the parties named in the canon are able to begin procedure as the rector or minister on the one hand, and the parish or vestry on the other. This last does not contemplate a discontented faction or committee.

One way of "elevating, dignifying, and ennobling American labor" is shown by a dispatch from the Providence special of March 5th. "The recent aggressive action on the part of Labor has put the entire body of Rhode Island textile manufacturers on the defensive. Yesterday a formal meeting was held, at which every textile manufacturer in Rhode Island was represented, and all pledged themselves to the extent of five per cent. of their capital for the purpose of defending their interests. The sum thus pledged amounts to about $1,000,000." The fund is probably for the purpose of supporting pauper labor and to throw the workmen out of employment.

And to these plutocrats, the manufacturers, the farmers and the very workmen of all sections contribute $750,000,000 annually. The manufacturers get the highest price they can obtain and by means of their organization have reduced the wages of labor to the low est notch. We rather opine that the protection they give the laborer is like the wolf gives the lamb.

The New York Tribune inquires with a sneer, "What is the Democratic Administration opposed to, anyhow?" The question can be briefly answered: It is opposed to protection extended to public thieves; as in the star-route larcenies; it is opposed to the destruction of free government by the perversion or corruption of the public will; against extravagant expenditure and needless taxation; against the prodigal squandering of the public lands on railroad corporations and syndicates, and against legislation discriminating in favor of capital and against labor. It is, in fact, opposed to nearly everything that the Republican party favored through a quarter of a century of greed and corruption.—S. F. Examiner.

Ex Senator Thurman is a daily visitor at the Department of Justice. Although the Solicitor General is to conduct the suit against the Bell Telephone Company, the judgment of Mr. Thurman will be deferred to, and, to all intents and purposes, he will have charge of the case.

It is said by the knowing Republicans that the name of Hon. J. G. Gray will be presented to the Republican State Convention as a proper candidate for State Treasurer. Mark our prediction: He will be sold out and J. C. Fullerton of Roseburg will receive the nomination.

Portland is to be provided for by Congress with a new $350,000 Custom House. It will be a good thing for the city, but what the Government wants with a new building there, is an unfathomable problem.

C. W. Fulton is the slate nominee of the Republicans for Congress. He has no special qualifications for the place, and can best serve his country at home.

Ex-Senator Claflie, of Colorado, died in that State last Tuesday. He was one of the richest men in the Centennial States.

Heavy strikes by the laboring classes in the Eastern States. We suppose the present high tariff is partly responsible for these outbreaks.

The N. Y. Tribune says that M. Jacquet, one of the commissioners appointed by the French Government to inspect the Panama canal, said, "I here can be no doubt that the canal will be finished. So much money has already been spent on it that it cannot be given up now. It is surprising that Americans make a great hubbub out of the Chagres river. I have schemes proposed for controlling the Chagres river and I have not yet made up my mind which is really the better. One contemplates building a great dam at Gamboa, and the other provides new courses or levees of the upper and lower Chagres. I believe both plans for controlling the river are feasible, and the expense would not be so great as represented. I am not yet prepared to say when the canal will be completed, or what the total cost will be."

Attention Farmers! And land owners. You are invited to call and see our patent combination wire fence. This is the strongest, prettiest and cheapest fence in the world. It is composed of five two-strand cables of the best galvanized steel wire firmly interwoven with pickets at a uniform distance apart. The pickets are supported in such a manner that breakage is impossible, and they cannot be driven or pulled out. This is the fence for the farmer, as it costs about the same as a plank fence and will last ten times as long and will turn all kinds of stock, from a chicken to the largest animal. This fence takes up no more room than barbed wire and cannot injure the stock. It comes from the machine in rolls containing about 160 feet. An ordinary team of horses can haul from 100 to 150 rolls, thus saving much time and expense in getting it on the land. Our yard fencing is unsurpassed for beauty and durability.
