

Justice Performs the Ceremony In His Own Way. Jack Crawford in N. Y. World. In the early days, when the ship of justice was endeavoring to push its way down the rails of the Pacific railroad, the proceedings in the courts of justice were peculiar. The courts were scarce as they are in these days, and justice, not being provided in the traditional scales, performed the duties of a gnatcatcher. At that time the Indian service and for a time the government land and who lived in a constant danger of attack from Satan's army, the Sioux.

THE WEDDING.

days after his installation into matrimony appeared before him to bid, Jimmy was in a quandary. Never seen the marriage ceremony before, he determined to worry the officiating priest as he best bidding the couple to stand before his beloved fellow citizens, these days now appear before you to inquire the holiness of matrimony, according to the laws of this court. If you know any cause why they should not be married, you want to speak at this stage of the game, or corral on the subject forevermore.

STAINING WOODS.

How Cheap Pine Can Be Made to Resemble Expensive Woods.

Brackets, moldings and many articles of furniture may be made of pine and other light woods, and then so stained as to closely resemble the most expensive articles of their kind. Dyeing and staining make the soft woods tougher and harder. Many of the so-called mahogany, cherry and ebony articles sold are made of some common wood, and stained the exact imitation of what they are supposed to really be. I have seen cheap poplar, pine and other woods turned into fine walnut, mahogany and ebony corner cabinets, footstools, writing desks, wall sockets, moldings, etc., with a little stain and varnish, and sold two hundred per cent. above cost. Staining wood is very simple, and in a short time any intelligent person can learn how to do it.

THE ALASKANS.

Peculiarities of the Alaskan Silets and Omaha Indians.

Mr. W. H. Dall's address to the Anthropological Section of the American Association was of "The Native Tribes of Alaska." Passing by the details in it which are chiefly of interest to specialists, we are informed that the tribal limits of the western Inuit, geographically considered, are very mutable, and constantly changing in small details. This arises from the fact that the geographical group which we have called a tribe among the Inuit is not a political organization headed by a chief or chiefs, but simply a geographical aggregation of people who have by possession obtained certain de facto rights of hunting, fishing, etc., over a certain area. The jealousy of adjacent groups keeps the imaginary boundary line pretty well defined, through fear of reprisals should it be violated, but under the influence of the whites, with their trading posts, the boundaries are becoming violable with impunity, and are falling into oblivion. Hence the geographical names distinguishing the groups are ceasing to have any serious significance. The degree of civilization which the Aleuts have attained is very promising. The people are not scattered over the archipelago except in their hunting parties. Notwithstanding the nominal division into groups, they are practically as much one people as those of two adjacent English counties.

The Rev. Mr. Dorsey gave an account of the peculiarities of the language spoken at the Siletz Indian Agency, in Oregon, the population of which is made up of a consolidation of more than twenty tribes. The Indians are all more or less civilized, some of them taking newspapers, are very polite to strangers, and in many respects resemble the Ainos. In their language the verb varies with the position of the object. They can not say "that man," but must say "that man walking," or sitting, or standing, etc. There are three sets of cardinal numbers, human, inhuman, and inanimate. All their villages have local names, as "the people of the ash-trees," "the people by the hill," "the people of the canyon," etc. A man must marry a woman from another village, and his children belong to the village of their father. They will not mention the names of the wild-cat, field-mouse, and some other animals, before their children, lest they bring sickness and death upon them. Five is the mystic number among them.

Miss A. C. Fletcher described the sacred war-tent of the Omahas, in which the sacred and ritual objects are stored. These objects are held in great reverence, and are under a special keeper. Among them is the sacred shell, a large Unio, which is contained in several leather pouches, one within the other, and in which are placed strips of the inner bark of the cedar, and a scalp. In the tent is also the sacred wolf-skin, and two bundles covered with tanned skins. One of the bundles contains bird-skins; the other contains various deadly poisons. There are besides a staff of cedar and one of iron-wood, a small pipe-stem, two war-pipes, tobacco and a scalp. The sacred shell must never touch the ground, for, if it should, a devouring fire would come from it. If any one but the keeper touches any of the objects, he will be afflicted with grievous sores, but the evil may be averted by going through certain ritual ablutions. All of these objects have been given, with the consent of the chiefs, to the Peabody Museum of Archaeology.—Popular Science Monthly.

LATE NEWS SUMMARY.

Three men were recently found frozen to death in the streets of New York city. A shortage of $10,000 has been discovered in the sub-treasury at San Francisco. Mrs. Levi Sholty was fatally shot by her insane brother-in-law at Bloomington, Ill. The City of Peking, from San Francisco to Hongkong, took 1,200 Chinese passengers. The Panama canal has been attached the representative of a New York building association. The Duke of Seville has been placed on the half-pay list for slandering the Spanish Queen Regent. Fire in a tenement house at New York caused the death of Minnie Rosenberg, by suffocation. A Wisconsin Judge has decided that there is no law prohibiting a man from burning his own house. A large cartridge exploded in a coal mine at North Industry, Ohio, killing Wm. Solenthaler and Peter Miller. During a row in a dance hall at Coral, Mich., a man named Looney shot James Maloney, killing him instantly. Arthur L. Mackay has been granted a divorce from Maud Miller-Mackay-McCormick. The latter made no defense. The schooner Virginia Dare, with a crew of fourteen, from Gloucester, Mass., is supposed to have sunk during a gale. Kate and Susie Lillie, twins, aged six years, were caught in the shafting of a mill at Shamokin Hill, Pa., and fatally injured. Thomas Quintin, a carman at the Crown Point mine, Gold Hill, Nevada, was fatally crushed by a cage being lowered on him. Two brothers named Hermance traveled the entire distance from Billings, Montana, to New Orleans (4,500 miles) in canoes. At Piedmont, S. C., James W. King stabbed his wife to death and then killed himself, falling across her body. They leave nine children. J. K. Winters killed himself at Reading, Pa., by fastening a rubber hose to a gas-burner, placing the other end in his mouth and turning on the gas. Colonel Sir Edmund Henderson, the head of the London police force, has resigned, owing to severe criticism on his conduct during the recent riots. The New Jersey Legislature has passed a bill granting $1,100 annually to every soldier (or his unmarried widow) who served in the war of 1812. The British freight steamer Saxon, which recently left New York for Jamaica, has been lost at sea. The captain and five other perions were drowned. A freight train broke through a bridge at Fisher's Eddy, New York. Conductors Raymond and Smith and two brakemen were killed, and their bodies burned to a crisp. E. L. Compton, of South Vallejo, Cal., committed suicide in a San Francisco hotel by closing the doors and windows of his room and turning on the gas. Over 50,000 pounds of powder exploded in the powder works near Xenia, Ohio, killing three men and blowing the building and machinery into atoms. The Canadian Pacific Railroad has definitely selected the head of Burrard Inlet as the site for its Western terminus. The place will be called Vancouver. Sixty Mexican outlaws attacked and robbed a freight train on the Mexican Central Railway near kilometre, Mexico. The train hands were robbed of all their clothing. The New York street car employees were successful in their strike for more pay and less hours' work. For three days the movement assumed the form of a riot, and all the cars were laid up. A gun, which is being tested at Kalamazoo, is said to have sent a steel ball through fourteen thicknesses of boiler-plate. Its inventor claims that he can propel a ball fifteen miles. The torpedoes placed in the harbor at Salonica have been surreptitiously removed. The Greek Ministers of War and Marine threaten to resign unless war is declared against Turkey, and the people are reported as anxious for hostilities. At a fair held near Paris a herd of bullocks, worried by thieves, broke loose and charged the crowd of spectators, killing three persons wounding 140 others. The thieves took advantage of the panic to pick many pockets. Working People Are often too ill to labor, but they haven't time to take medicine and lay off. Simmons Liver Regulator can be taken without causing any loss of time, and the system will be built up and invigorated by it. It has no equal as a preparatory medicine, and can be safely used when a doctor cannot be called in. In all common diseases it will, unassisted by any other medicine, effect a speedy cure.
