

THE VISITING DOG.

Animal We Have Known and Not Appreciated. The most interesting and least appreciated animal is the dog that visits. He is usually a colored animal, two hands high and twenty-six inches long, with a pink nose. His ears droop and his tail curls over his back, and his whole appearance is admirably suited to the requirements of his occupation. He appears to have been brought up expressly for visiting purposes. He is not like other dogs. He is a special dog, as it were, being an odd break it would be impossible to repeat.

I can't find the keyhole," he responded with a smile. "You poor dear!" she said, innocently. "I have the man come and fix it this very morning." Needless to remark here that she was a young and inexperienced wife indeed. Washington Critic.
