SAMUEL J. TILDEN.
 Greystone, August 1, 1886.

Once more, O all-adjusting Death!
 The nation's pantheon opens wide;
 Once more a common sorrow saith
 A strong, wise man has died.

Faults doubtless had he. Had we not
 Our own, to question and asperse
 The worth we doubted or forgot
 Until we stood beside his hearst.

Ambitious, cautious, yet the man
 To strike down fraud with resolute hand;
 A patriot, if a partisan,
 He loved his native land.

So let the mourning bells be rung,
 The banner drop its folds halfway,
 And let the public pen and tongue
 Their fitting tribute pay.

Then let us vote above his heir
 To seek our feet on party lines,
 And wound no more a lying ear
 With words that Death denies.

JOHN G. WHITTIER.

Why Some People Marry.

Petroleum V. Nasby.

Some marry for the fun of the thing and never see where it comes in. This is discouraging.

Some marry for the sake of a good companion, and never discover their mistake. This is lucky.

Man is a fickle "critter." Even Adam, who had his wife made to order, found more or less fault with her.

Don't marry a man for his reputation. It is liable to be only a second-hand affair borrowed from his ancestors.

Many women have married men for their fine exterior. But that's all there is to an ancient egg worth mentioning. Marriage resulting from love at first sight is not generally wedded bliss on a par with sour milk. One or the other gets swindled, and often both.

Many a man has married for beauty only to learn that he paid $20 for what can be purchased for 25 cents at all druggists. This is hard.

But few people marry for pure love, and they in after years suspicion that what were at the time promptings of the fonder passion were, in all probability, but the first symptoms of cholera morbus.

The man who marries a woman simply because she is a handy arrangement to have about the house does so from a pure business standpoint, and in the end, if not compelled to support him, she has done better than many women I know of.

Four Dry Weather Lies.
 (Darville, (Ill. Commercial.)

The Mississippi river is becoming so low that the top of the banks of the large catfish stick up out of the water in the deepest places, and the islands are becoming so naked that women have refused to promenade on the banks of the river unless there is a rise. The steamboats have to grease their bottoms and slide.

[Hoxawottamie (Pa.) Herald.]
 The drouth in Hoxawottamie has been so severe since the last water-spout that the turn is almost dried up, and the gigantic carp that bit Deacon Gimp's horse's leg so bad is supposed to have gone up the spout.

[Estelline (D. T.) Bell.]
 A solemn, gray haired old man came in town one day this week and said the fish in the Sioux river were out on the banks fanning themselves with their tails. Nobody seemed to doubt him.

[Connoquenessing (Pa. News.)
 The drought in Connoquenessing creek is so severe that our river and harbor appropriation will have to be spent, it looks now, in hauling water for the channel cats.

New Pension Bill Wanted.
 New York Gazette.

Now while our Solons are dealing out pensions, and spending our surplus with best of intentions, I present, as a bird of the humblest pretensions, a few types of men whom I deem most deserving.

Give a pension for life to that man self-denying—for such Spartan virtue as this is worth buying—who can fish all day long and go home without lying, and tell the straight truth without shaking or swearing.

Give a pension to him who trades nags without cheating, and tells a good tale without over repeating, and is pious at home and he's pious at meeting—all men of this stamp need a liberal pension.

Give a pension to him, whether married or single, who is never too proud with all men to commingle; if you have any left, then the scribe of this jungle presenteth himself to your kindest attention.

On the 14th inst. Leonard Woolen, of Silverton, had his arm torn off in a threshing machine. The feeder of the machine became clogged, says the Statesman, and Mr. Woolen got on top of the separator to adjust the difficulty, and, by some unknown manner, fell on the cap over the cylinder. His left arm went into the cylinder, and was literally torn to shreds, being taken entirely off, half way between the elbow and the shoulder, and the lower part passed on through the machine. He extricated himself from his perilous position, and assisted by his comrades, walked to his house near by, where J. G. Moores corded the stump and prevented his bleeding to death. Medical aid was summoned and his arm amputated near the shoulder joint, there being barely enough flesh on the lower part of the arm to cover the end of the bone.

Parnell, speaking of Gladstone, says: "His prodigious union of brain and soul, and his almost universal culture, make him the one genius of the greatest empire on the globe." High as this estimate is it does not appear to be undeserved. Mr. Gladstone is as audacious in onset, and as confident of the future as he was spirited in the campaign just closed. His personality is a resplendent force to his adherents and the cause of mingled admiration and apprehension to his foes.

An attempt is to be made by private generosity to revive some of the lost arts in Chehalis county, W. T. A premium of fifty cents will be given by Mrs. Dr. French for the best specimen in darning, and a like premium by the same person for the best sample of bread made by a girl under 15 years of age, both to be shown at the county fair that begins at Chehalis on the 22d of September.

Bob Taylor, Democratic nominee for Governor of Tennessee, was a Union man.

Why does not Mr. Blaine demand Cutting's release!
