BOTTLED SWEETNESS.

Facts About Rich and Delightful Perfumes, Natural and Pictitious.

Choice perfumes may be considered as belonging to three classes-the socalled "bouquet" perfumes, those that are the simple odors of the flowers whose names they bear, and those that by delicate art employ such combinations and blendings of various odors as together simulate perfectly the perfume of some particular flower, the real odor of which is so evanescent and delicate that it can not be caught and fixed by any process yet known to science. Of the first of these, the representative one that most readily occurs to my mind at present, is the "Edina." The inventor of that perfume was no less than nine years in bringing it to perfection, and when it was done he was so justly enthusiastic over it that he declared that "in it art was glorified and nature eclipsed!" All these bouquet perfumes are made by various blendings of the results of the enfleurage process-the extracted odors of violet, jasmin, tuberose, rose, orange flower and cassie-together with musk, oil of rose, oil of ylanglang and ambergris as a fixateur. One or another of these may be left out of a special blending, but that is the open field for selection. The enfleurage process consists in exposing clarified grease, The machinery erected in the Iron taken their odor from them. That is Mountain mine, in Shasta county, at a done by manufacturers in the valley of the Var, in the south of France, where vast fields of sweet-smelling flowers are grown for this purpose. Alcohol afterward takes up all the perfume from the grease, and the perfumed alcohol is what is used in making the extracts for the toilet. It is in the grease form that try. Other fixateurs than that which I have mentioned are employed, such as gum benzoin and gum tolu. The prov-ince of ambergris is to blend and develop perfumes, to give them a homo-genity, as it were. Its natural smell is not pleasant, being more like that of a damp cellar than anything else. It is found in the spermaceti whale, is an indication of an abnormal and unhealthy condition of that creature, and is supposed to be a product of indigestion. Nevertheless it is a requisite for the per-

Doubtless the nicest art of the perfumer is shown in the perfect simulation of the odors of certain flowers, the real perfume of which can not be caught. such a flower, for instance, is the lily of the valley; yet there is a perfume named after that flower, the entrancingly sweet order of which is the perfect reproduction of nature's work, so far as the smell goes. The reproduction of such a simulant perfume is sometimes the work of years. It can only be carried on when the flowers themselves are in perfection for purposes of comparison, for a scent can no more be accurately remembered than it can be analyzed. And even when the time is propitious the artist compounder must often lay aside his work for days together, because his olfactories grow weary, temporarily vitiated and unreliable. Two of our most delightfully sweet flowers that grow upon our continent, the magnolia and the tea olive of Georgia and Alabama, have never yet been perfectly simulated in perfame, though they have been the subjects of almost countless experiments. Again and again the exact odors have been caught and lost again the moment that the necessary fixateurs for retaining them were added ons, $\psi$ doz, $2.50 Limes, $\psi$ 100, $1.50; pineto the aicoholic compounds. LINCOLN'S SIMPLICITY.

Shaking Hands with the Soldiers After the First Battle of Bull Run. Without attempting to record with any degree of consecutiveness the occurrences that followed each other like the quick reports of a Gatling gun, I will illustrate the simplicity of Abraham Linoln's character, and the singular lick Portland. Reeves was brought to East of what we recognize as discipline, that obtained in those days, by an incident mmediately after the battle of Bull Run. It was either the day after the battle of Bull Run, or the day succeeding that, a bright, beautiful day in the latter part of July, 1861, when General Me-John Gilhaus, a farmer living about Dowell's troops were drawn up some distance from Washington, that Presiient L'ncoln and Secretary of State expired prior to the battle of Bull Run, but with an esprit that was characteristic of the times, they decided to remain, and did so, sharing in the great drawn fight, known throughout all time as the dent, standing in his carriage, Mr. Seward and General McDowell not far off, addressing them, thanking them for the loyalty which led them to remain rather than return to their homes, complimenting them upon their gal-lantry under fire, and, in the name of the Nation, assuring them of the respect and regard of their fellow-citizens. That's all very well. Imagine the scene that followed. Drawn up in double line, face to face, stood the troops. Leaving his carriage, the President of the United States started at the head of the line, and, with a God bless von to each, shook hands right and left with every man until he reached the end of the first company. Turning at the end of the second, he did the same with them, and so on through hundreds and hundreds. There was a narrow line there between the sublime and the ridiculous, but Lincolndidn't cross it, and although under ordinary circumstances such procedure would be absurd and indefensible, under these circumstances he did precisely the right thing at the right time, and nine-tenths of these men whose time had already expired re-enlisted for three years or the war.—Joe Howard, How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

As general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use snything else, and have nevel been disappointed in the effect produced, it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.
