

The Unvaraished Truth.

It is no secret that the late President Arthur and Senator Edmunds of and Mr. Arthur cordially disliked each other. The friend of Mr. Arthur was 'introduced to Blaine by a blundering thing there. fool who should have known better, Mail, the paper of Ex-Postmaster Gen. Hatton, a member of Arthur's cabinet. The reference to a feast means that Mr Arthur was grossly insulted at a sup-The Democratic House has passed The paper of Arthur's cabinet. An editorial appeared in yesterday's public domain. Mail, which would not have found a place in these columns had it first been seen by the responsible editor, who was confined at his home by sickness. The editorial referred to did not express the opinions held by the editor of the Mail concerning the disgracful episode which occurred at the uncovered coffin of ex-President Arthur, and for which Mr. James G. Blaine was alone responsible. No reasonable excuse can pro tem. be made by Mr. Blaine's closest friends for his utter disregard of all the ordinary decencies of life, in order that he might insult another. Feeling as he does on this subject, and knowing all the circumstances of the unfortunate coccurrence, the editor of the Mail could inot be expected to even indirectly apol-ogize for Mr. Blaine's cowboy behav-No gize for Mr. Blaine's cowboy behav-

of sympathy to the family did it occur to Mr. Blaine to send his effusive telegram. He invited himself to the fungerabof a man for whom he had time and again openly expressed his hatred. He must have known that he would armeet people there who did not worship at the Blaine altar, and he should have biservatrong enough and decent enough ? to at least make a show of some outward respect for the dead. Senator Edmunds secrificed quite as much as in Precognizing Mr. Blaine, in the slightest degree, as Mr Blaine could possibly have sacrifieed by the most effusive resognition of the Vermont senator.
 The whole transaction was character sistic of Blane. He no doubt regarded performances about which his admirers talk so much. He felt that he was out of the public mind for a day. A man ing in respectful sorrow, but Mr. Blaine, who whether at a feast or a funeral, never losss a chance to advertise himself, stood by the dead ex-president and, with a heart rankling with dead man's most intanato friends.
From the standpoint of common, every day decency. Mr. Blaine's conduct is indefensible, and the editor of the Mail does not aspire to appear in the elightest degree, his apologist. Honce these few lines.

Twenty-six railroad attorneys stumped Washington Territory for the Bolph forfeiture bill and for Bradshaw. That territory is at least 7,080 Republican, yet Voorhees who opposed the Dalph hill and the railroad attorneys got 2200 majority. The House opposed the hill, but even this ignorance should know that the House passed a bill forfeiting 100,000. lands forfeited by the Dolph bill, and 50,000,000 acres more Northern Pacific lands, and that the Sonate refused to entertain it.
