MURDERED FOR HIS MONEY.

One of the Most Cold Blooded Murders Ever Committed in Linn County Comes to Light at Harrisburg.

Albany Herald, March 29.

Last Friday the Herald published a dispatch from Harrisburg stating that Schuyler Ford, a young man 21 years of age, a stepson of Peter H. Wigle of Harrisburg had disappeared from that vicinity about a month ago, and nothing has been heard of him since. He had purchased a lot in Coburg upon which he had built a house to run a saloon, and for which business he had bargained of J. H. Butler of that place for a stock of goods. When last seen he had upon HARRISBURG, March 27-Schuyler was missed from this vicinity about five weeks ago, was found in the Willamette river to-day, two and onehalf miles below Harrisburg at Inbody was in a fair state of preservation and could be identified by close observation. One side of the head was broken, also the lower jaw-bone was broken, being undoubtedly the result of direct force or violence. There was found on the body a warranty deed to a lot he had purchased in Coburg, Lane county, also numerous letters from his relatives and friends. His watch was on his person, the chain being broken off and gone. As yet there is no clue to the mysterious affair, but agents. Now, if each of these claims a serious fact is established almost behad been severally presented in conmidst fiends in the shape of men that gress, they would have passed unchal-lenged and President Cleveland would will murder a human being for the sake of a small gain. Dave Wiggins, of North Powder, a blacksmith by trade, and a former resident of Baker City, on the 26th of last November, outraged Armeda Gardner, his own sister-inlaw, a girl fourteen years of age, and who is so crippled and deformed that she was unable to go about her home only upon her hands and knees. She was a pitiable object to behold. The unfortunate girl was living at the time in the household of Wiggins, and the beast, after accomplishing his devilish work, through threats of murdering her frightened the poor girl into silence until now. The discovery that she was soon to Commission is a sinecure as it has been become a mother brought out the true facts run, and thumbscrews ought to be put and caused the arrest of Wiggins.
