HER YOUNG MAN.

BOSTON, Febrbary 7, 1887. Mr Nye: I have enjoyed your writings ever so much, and noticing that you have given a great deal of advice free, I thought that possibly you would tell me the best method of getting rid of an impertinent young man whose room is much preferable to his company.

Hoping that I do not intrude on your val-

Yours truly, You do not say why you wish to get rid You do not say why you wish to get rid of the young man, nor do you state what is the matter with him; whether he is a poor conversationalist or toe fluent in that him; whether the first two joints of his finger and thumb are yellow with eigarette stains, or what his leading characteristics are. Possibly he has fatty degeneration of the thinker.

However, you say he is an impudent young man, and I infer you have gone through the preliminaries of gentle scorn and such things as that. Now, what shall we do to make him fully understand that you do not want him to remain?

you do not want him to remain?

Perhaps you have such a thing as a younger brother about the house. If so bring him in and let him toy with the young man a few hours. You can excuse yourself while you ostensibly put on your other dress, and if you delay long enough you can cause the young man a great deal of intense suffering. You can take the right kind of younger brother, with inflamma-tory hair and white eyes and warts on his thumbs and season cracks in the backs of his

I have also been the boy.

There are other indignities which you might heap on an impudent and persistent young party who don't know enough to go

I have known young men who have infested a house that way to be eradicated by means of very sad music. They do not die in the house and console you, you might do as you think best about allowing him to do so. If you think that he is simply practicing on you so that he can gracefully embrace, you might induce him him to crawl under the divan by the hundreds of all sorts, sizes and col-for over two weeks. Of course, there are other and more radical-methods of accomplishing the result you wish, but these are the ones more common in the best of society. I naturally supposed that you wanted the methods used in the

that you wanted the methods used in the best society, or you would have gone elsewhere instead of coming to me.
Should you finally wish to be more severe, however, you can invite a young girl to be present during the young man's stay. I would suggest that this young girl be a fluent talker on the subject of clothes. If you both keep the talk going pretty well while the young man looks at the album or gazes with a fived stars through the telescope that with a fixed stare through the telescope that sent, and it refuses to go where it is sent.

If you could get him away by himself, it would be well enough to ask him if he loves you. That's the way I would do. The quicker a matter of that kind is disposed of the better. Ask him in a manly way if such is the case, and if he really does love you, and has reason to believe that you were paying attention to him all this time, you cannot in honor desert him now. Sometimes a girl marries a man to get rid of him. I have known several cases of that kind. I once knew of a young woman who married a person in order to get rid of him and it worked so well that he isn't at home

Getting rid of a man is a very simple process if you are really in earnest about it. Some girls marry and feed their victims with broad that they have made themselves that is a rounded way of getting rid of a

Do not be discouraged. Let me know kow you get on with the suggestions made above, and I am confident we will succeed. Have you ever tried wearing a large tall hat, with a stuffed bluejay on it, to the theatre, and sitting in the seat just in front of him. Try it if you have not done so al-ready, and if you do not get rid of him, as well as a great number of law-abiding city-

Mr. Cannon, of Soda Springs, committed suicide Thursday last at 10 a. m. by shooting himself in the head with a shotgun, says the Appeal. Since he was run over by a wagon last fall he has been confined meat of time to his bed, and in a despondent moment on Thursday he told his little girl to bring him the shotgun, and she unthoughtedly complied with his request. In a moment atterwards his sufferings were rashly ended. An inquest was held by Thomas Scott, J. P., and a verdict rendered in accordance with ready and willing to pay losses promptly.

HENDRICKS & EAKIN,

Whose Ox Is Gored ?

[Oregonian, 1882.]

"Is it a fair hit that President Arthur makes in his veto of the river and harbor bill when he says the more objectionable a bill when he says the more objectionable a bill of this sort becomes the more support it gets in Congress. That is, the more heavily it is loaded the surer it is of a big majority. Every member wants large sums for his dis-trict, whether it has any rivers and harbors that can be improved with benefit to comthat can be improved with benefit to com-merce or not. Very dear to the heart of the Senator and Representative is the improve-ment of local duck ponds and tadpole creeks. At least half the sum appropriated in every river and harbor bill is thrown away. The vetoed bill was the largest "grab" of the kind ever passed. Oregon's share in the bill was less than half her proportion as a con-gressional district, and still less in proportion to her actual commerce; so that the veto, so far as our state is concerned, was less meri-torious than the veto of the whole bill, "taken by and large."

[Oregonian, March 5, 1887.]

1. The failure of the President to sign the river and harbor appropriation bill passed by congress is a hard blow to the Northwest. The hope of the country was centered upon this measure, and the disappointment at its failure will amount to positive chagrin. bill was in the way of carrying out a settled policy of the government.

2. The President, who has never visited the regions specially interested, and who knows nothing of the needs of the country in the matter of river and harbor improve-ment, in defeating this bill assumed to be wiser than the engineers, congress and the people together.

wiser than the engineers, congress and the people together.

3. If it is proposed to take up the statesrights doctrine and to abandon the policy of aid to public works, let the fact be announced so that we may know what to expect. The country is tired of professions forever contradicted as to performance; tired to the professions are all the professions for the country is the performance; tired to the professions that we have results are disappointment. of a policy whose results are disappointment and chagrin.

[Oregonian, March 7, 1887.]

A Republican President would not have ignored the river and harbor bill. Oregon probably had an instinct of this sort when she didn't give Mr. Cleveland her electoral

If so, let your selections be of a sacred and melancholy nature, soaked with unshed tear. Should be undertake to draw near The last three licenses to sell whisky die and induce him him to crawl under the divan after something or other, and then while he gently backed out you could administer a severe reproof to him by means of a fence board. Some use a picket, but you will find that a fence board will hurt worse, and so give better satisfaction.

Another plan would be to avoid laughing at his funny anecdotes. Wait till he gets through with the anecdote and looks up in your eyes for a twinkle of merriment. That is the time to refrain from twinkling. Wait ing of hair, especially among the colored is the time to refrain from twinkling. That is the time to hang on to your silvery laughter. It will give him a pained expression of countenance, and you will see him soon after looking at his watch. The Agricultural College. The college building association, which is a corporation organized to erect a college on the farm near Corvallis, in performance of the conditions in the act of 1885, permanently locating the Agricultural College here, met last night. A contract for 600,000 brick was authorized to be executed, the delivery to be made half on July 1 and the balance August 15 next. It was determined to proceed in the work without regarding the action of the Methodist trustees. A committee consisting of the lawyers of the board, with a fixed stare through the telescope that hasn't any picture in it, you will soon have his pachydermic pelt on the fence.

But there is a bare possibility that this young man is in love with you, and would think it humorous even if you were to fill him full of fine shot. In that case, I do not know what yoh ought to do. Love is a strange missive. It goes where it is not sent, and it refuses to go where it is sent.

If you could get him away by himself, it would be well enough to ask him if he loves you. That's the way I would do. The discussed whether to call a meeting of citi-zens to give expression to the public feeling about the church's action, but it was finally thought best that such a call ought to come from the citizens rather than the board. Such a meeting will no doubt be held next
