Tidewater Items.

April 30th, 1887.

Hurrah for the 17th of May. Oh, Cupid, give us a rest.

Mr Neeley has been in Eugene attending the circuit court.

Mr Bjeldane has come back from Astoria. He has come and how glad she will be.

Sawmill men are still coming but the only trouble they are all going.

Mr Whisman will soon be able to come to tidewater with his wagon.

There is no earthly reason why a captain's daughter and a Maine merchant can't hitch.

Miss Potter, who is to train the rising generation in Florence arrived the 20th. We wish her success.

A question of interest to the people of Florence? Who is the Tidewater correspondent?

Mr Tait has gone to Eugene and we anxiously wait while he gets his breath and mends his collar.

School commenced the 18th inst in Dist. No 28 with twelve scholars in attendance.

Bergman & Co are erecting a building which is to be used for a store and they also intend to build a cannery at Florence.

Mr Wells and Mr Ferris have made the county road passable for wagons and we are ready to welcome both pleasure-seeker and business man.

Mr Weatheron and Mr Morris are now traveling through the world each with a better half and we congratulate them and wish them long, happy and untroubled lives, but had we known what was to be, as well as what is, we would have told them to beware of cowbells, tin horn, brass trumpets and the like.

A saloon at Florence has been talked about but we have heard nothing of a remonstrance and don't like to offend any one by saying one ought to be circulated, but it seems sometimes as if we might attain to a high degree of enlightenment without the public sale of liquors in our midst.

Should any of the students of the State University visit us this Summer and then wish to describe tidewater people and country in the columns of the Oregonian, we advise them to confine themselves to the truth and follow in the footsteps of their illustrious predecessor of last year. It wasn't pretty for that gentleman to say that we are dependent for a livelihood on the money that travelers spend in this country when he is voluntarily connected with those who do not spend as much as honesty would have compelled them to spend.

SOCIETY SAT.

A Card.

ED. GUARD.—In the case of the State of Oregon vs Ellis Eastwood a motion was filed to set aside the indictment against him on the ground that two of the names of the grand jurors presenting said indictment, to-wit: Jasper Wilkins and C. M. Brattain, were not taken from the last preceding assessment roll for Lane county in accordance with the provisions of Sec. 921, Title 2, Chapter 12, Civil code. Upon my attention being called to the matter I find that the name of Jasper Wilkins appears in conjunction with his father's and brother's, and that the name of C. M. Brattain as returned by the Sheriff should have been C. E. Brattain. This motion was not based on the ground that these gentlemen were not taxpayers, for it is well known that both are leading farmers and are possessed of considerable property on which they pay taxes, but as above stated, the ground of my motion was that their names did not appear on the roll as required by said section. I make this statement that all may know that there was no intention to cast any reflection on either of these gentlemen and to correct any erroneous impression that may have been formed by persons present at the time the question was presented to the court.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have not yet returned from The Dalles.

Several young men from Goshen attended church at Pleasant Hill Sunday.

Dexter and Pleasant Hill get mail three times per week, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Those inquisitive persons who desire to know the why and wherefore of so many comforts, rugs, chair ties, etc., at a certain residence in the village, are more likely to obtain reliable information from the young man of Pleasant Hill.

Our genial merchant, Mr. J. W. Matlock, returned home Saturday from a few days sojourn in the vicinity of Florence and Acme. He tells some thrilling stories of six inch trails around some of those mighty precipices.

That was indeed a heavy gun let cracked at us last week.

Right well was the charging done, Under the supervision of a sneak: That bombast equalled dynamite, Lengthy insinuations were his ball, Exasperated in the fight, Great lies from his pen did fall, Everlasting remorse and shame

Is due this cowardly knave; Some lowly acts connected with his name, Are sure to follow him to the grave.

Let us now in conclusion say, If you desire the opinion of his "betters," And a fact that we can prove just any day, Read down from the top the initial letters.

The good Templars' proposed picnic has fallen through with. We suppose they've concluded a picnic each Saturday night is sufficient.
