The Lady and the Terror.

One of the delightful days of last week a young lady well known in the exclusive first circles of San Francisco society for unrivalled personal charms and elegance of accomplishments, was driven around to make a congratulatory call upon a married lady friend who was happily convalescing from that occasional sacred event in the lives of wedded ladies, which, far from being sickness, is the perfect culmination of their health. She was shown into the parlor, and for the few minutes required to arrange for the reception in that room where mother and child were doing as well as could be expected, was left with no other to entertain her than the only son and heir of the house, Master Charles, then in his fourth year. But Charles was fully equal to the situation, and promised to grow up into an ornament of society that will never be abashed by beauty, however brilliant, into the painful negative of "no conversation." After some unessential preliminary remarks, Master Charles approached nearer the visitor, and lowering his tone into confidential, he asked: "Miss—, oo dot a baby?"

The young lady gave one swift glance around to assure herself there was no other bearer of this pertinent question, and replied:

"No, Charlie, dear, I have not."

"And did oo never have a baby?"

In spite of the youth of her eager interlocutor her handsome eyes drooped before his ingenuous gaze, and her pretty face flushed as she replied:

"No, Charlie, I never did. Is not this a beautiful day?"

"And ain't oo never doin' to have no baby?" persisted Charlie, declining to enter on the temptational side track of the weather.

"My boy, I can't tell. Tell me the names of whom those are the photographs."

"And don't oo want a baby?"

"Why, Charlie, what a close questioner you are. If you are not careful you will grow into one of those newspaper interviewers, and then what will your poor mamma think of you?"

"Because," continued Charlie, utterly refusing to be switched off. "I know where oo can get one. The doctor brought my mamma one, and he keep it in his ofith. You juth go down Eighth three evertho far, and den oo do up a lot of thairth and thath where he teeps 'em. And they're awful cheap too. My papa hathn't paid for my mamma's yet, but he's doin' to."

"Well, Charlie, I'm sure I'm much obliged to you for your full direction, and I'll know where to go."

"Oh, Mith—, oo needn't do. I'll tell my papa juth ath thoon ath ever he tums home that oo want a baby, and he'll det one for oo, and—"

"That young lady seized that little boy by his two shoulders, and leaning over so as to look full into his eyes said, with an impressiveness lent by sudden terror:

"See here, Charlie, listen to me. I don't want any baby yet, and if you say anything about it to your papa I'll never, like you any more, at all, never, never, never. Now, will you promise?"

"Well, if oo don't want a baby I won't, but I t'ot everybody likes to have babieth. I do."

The interview was here terminated by the entrance of a servant to usher the visitor into the presence of the convalescent lady.

Why He Did It.

He killed the noble Mudjokivis, With the slain he made his mittens. Made them with the fur side inside; Made them with the skin side outside; He, to get the warm side inside; He, to get the cold side outside; Put the inside skin side outside; He, to get the cold side outside; Put the warm side fur side inside; That's why he put the fur side inside, Why he put the skin side outside, Why he turned them inside outside.

Texas Etiquette.

Omaha girl—I suppose you know the Blanks, who moved into your section some years ago?

Texas belle—Oh, we don't associate with that family any more.

"You don't?"

"No, indeed! The last time my father met Mr. Blank he cut him dead."

"Wasn't Mr. Blank surprised?"

"Indeed he was. He didn't know pa carried a bowie."—Omaha World.

Philosophy Out of the Question.

Dilly, with his thumb in his mouth—Ow-oh-oooh! Blank the hammer—blank, blankety, blank it!

Filtrap—My dear sir, don't swear so. Accidents will happen, and we must learn to take them philosophically.

Dilly—Blank philosophy! The blankest fool in blankingdom knows philosophy won't apply to a mashed thumb.—Detroit Free Press.

Inquirer (Sunday a. m.)—Can you direct me to a place of worship, sir? I'm from Portland, Maine, and a stranger in the city.

New York citizen—It's pretty hard getting it nowadays, but I guess if you oo over and whisper my name—Cooney—in Con Driscoll's family entrance keyhole he'll let you in.—Puck.

NELLY HILL.....EDITOR.

"I am coming; I am coming."—H. C.

"Extra sessions" are this week in fashion. Rev. Parker visited the University last week.

Sam L. Simpson will write the class tree poem.

Miss Minnie Luckey visited the society Friday.

J. L. Tait, University poet, is visiting here.

Helen Douthit is teaching at Cottage Grove.

Mr. McClain and Forward are sick this week.

Miss Emma Ashley has recently joined our society.

We are thankful to several for help with the column.

I want this kept quiet, but Miss L. Murch is very temperate in eating.

Geometry class finished Wednesday and took up Higher Algebra.

Prof. Hawthorne has some hopes of yours truly learning how to spell.

Miss Maud Saunfairs will attend the commencement exercises this year.

Edgar Hawthorne has been spending his time conjugating nouns this week.

Mr. Prael has stopped school to accept a position as book keeper in Astoria.

Y. W. C. A. will meet at Leathe McCornack's Friday evening at half-past six.

The ex-sergeant-at-arms of the Lauroans has the thanks of the Eutaxian Marshal.

The graduating class will ask the regents to put up more wires in the auditorium.

Are those peanut shells in the society room the same ones left there from last open session.

The composition of Mr. Frank McCornack was an extra good one, read at rhetoricals.

Miss Ada Coburn of East Portland, a former student, will attend the commencement exercises.

It was a mistake in last week's column about Senator Mitchell. He was unanimously elected.

Mr. Potter very kindly consented to give us an item, to-wit: "It has been raining this week."

Miss Liana Holt was elected Secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Dora Scott.

The Geology class are now studying the fossils of Oregon, that is such as Prof. Condon has gathered.

Mr. W. Gifford Nash has gone home to have his feet doctored but will return as soon as possible.

The seniors are very noisy or have immense feet, for two of them can disturb a class of thirty.

F. C. looked at the Phrenologist the strongest, but when he came around the backed out most unexpectedly.

Misses Mary McCornack and Maggie McClung will leave the Boston Conservatory of Music about the last of June.

F. R. Neil, of Jacksonville, and Ellsworth, of Bishop Scott Grammar School, will attend commencement exercises.

Pat's health has been improving ever since St. Patrick's Day. He wore so much of his natural element that he has been well balanced since.

The surveying class are engaged in measuring the campos. Taking the instruments for camera obscura it was thought Messrs Ellis and Vezie had started as artist tourists.

Three largest classes in school are Pres. Johnson's Aesop's Fables, Prof. Condon's Ancient History, and Prof. Hawthorne's English Literature.

L. McC. is destined to be an old maid. Even now she can't stay to society without her tea. Although our Eutaxians will do everything for helping their members they hardly want to go to brewing tea.

The seniors met and organized Tuesday and elected officers as follows: President, Frank Moore; Sec., S. S. Spencer; Class Tree Orator, B. C. Johnson; and to read the Class Tree Poem, Miss Jessie McClung.

It was a mistake last week that the new schedule was convenient for the students. It is not; the boys have to be out so late at night and get up so early in the morning that they are compelled to take naps
