On The Oregon Pacific.

Work is now beginning on the Oregon Pacific's extension eastward from this city. Yesterday morning nearly 1000 men left Salem, says the papers of that city, to engage in railroad work on this road, and on the morning freight train four cars of horses and mules passed Salem, billed for Jefferson, where they will be taken in charge by the contractors and taken direct to the front to do duty.

They were received in East Portland Saturday evening from over the O. P. & N. line, and it is supposed they came from the other end of the line being extended this way, as they were in cars belonging to the Union Pacific road. A force of men are now at work removing the timber from the line on the other side of the Santiam, grading and laying track. This large force of men is employed in order to complete the road in time to remove the present season's grain crop.—Wednesday's Albany Herald.

These selections interspersed with humorous and dramatic impersonation by Mr. Hood from a miscellaneous programme, powerful in character and without an equal in its charm and melody. Tickets are now on sale at the Express office. Price, $1.00. Seats reserved without extra charge.

AT YAGUINA.—We met our old Sucker friend, Samuel Handsaker, of Lane county, Oregon, on Thursday, the first time in years. He came in on the 22nd, en route for San Francisco, but because so charmed with our beautiful bay that he has concluded to go no further, provided he can "get in" here. As he is a pusher himself, and has the means and the will to aid in building up the general interests, we devoutly hope he'll find a place to suit him among us.—Yaguina City Post, July 30th.

WHEAT MARKET.—The powerful wheat syndicate in San Francisco collapsed last Tuesday. That body has been keeping up the price of wheat for several months, but at last the strain became too heavy to stand, hence its dissolution. This is quite unfortunate for Oregon. If the speculators had been able to hold the market a month longer our farmers would have been assured of good prices. It is now probable that wheat will bring somewhere between 60 and 75 cents per bushel. However, there is no market at present.

Lost in the Mountains.

A private letter informs us of a Mr. Hathaway, a druggist of Halsey, being lost in the mountains in the Blue river mining district, where he was prospecting. It appears that Friday morning, July 29th, Mr. Hathaway left the camp of Mr. Goodfellow intending to go to the McCauley camp, about one mile distant. A short time after his departure a couple of pistol shots were heard, but nothing was thought of the matter at the time. Two or three days after he started for the McCauley camp it was learned that he had not arrived. At once a party was organized and has been searching for him ever since, but had not succeeded in finding any trace whatever up to last Thursday morning. It is feared that an accident of some kind has befallen the man. When he left the camp he had a pistol and a belt of cartridges. He is said to be a cool man and used to the mountains, but is nearsighted, which would interfere greatly with his finding his way out of the mountains. His wife and brother-in-law passed through here from Halsey Thursday evening to take part in the search.

A VISION.

A careworn man slowly wended his way homeward, pondering over the problem of existence, and wondering how he should support his many needs. Suddenly the appearance floating in the air above him and just out of his reach a vision of "Pointing Hand." Shocked and startled, he instinctively passed his hand over his eyes and tried to thrust the phantom from him. Again and again, but all without avail, he tried to rid himself of its presence, but the "Pointing Hand" lunged ever just beyond his reach and nothing would induce the vision to depart. It lingered through the long evening hours, and when at last his eyes closed in slumber, he dreamed only of the "Pointing Hand." Through the still watches of the night it was ever present, and when his eyes opened in the morning it was only to behold once again the threatening, commanding phantom of the ever-present "Pointing Hand" that hung like a menace and a bidding above him, always pointing in one direction. He followed it, and found peace and rest. It was Reason pointing the way to bargain now being offered by H. S. Simon.
