SCROFULA

I do not believe that Ayer's Sarsaparilla has an equal as a cure for Scrofula, Humors, It is pleasant to take, gives strength to the body, and produces a more permanent result than any medicine I ever used. —E. Haines, North Lindale, Ohio.

I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for Scrofula, and know, if it is taken faithfully it will thoroughly eradicate this terrible disease. —W. F. Fowler, M.D., Greenville, Tenn.

For forty years I have suffered with Erysipelas. I have tried various remedies for my complaint, but found no relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After taking ten bottles of this medicine I am completely cured. —M. C. Amesbury, Rockport, Me.

I have suffered, for years, from Catarrh, which was so severe that it destroyed my appetite and weakened my system. After trying other remedies, without relief, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, in a few months, was cured. —Susan L. Cook, 909 Albany st., Boston, Mass.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is superior to any blood purifier that I ever tried. I have taken it for Scrofula, Canker, and Salt-Rheum, and received much benefit from it. It is good, also, for a weak stomach. —Millie Jane Peirce, S. Bradford, Mass. 11

Literary Life.

The bold dime novelist stretched and yawned, and said: "I have done a good night's work; the rosy morning has not yet dawned, and I've finished my tale of 'The Deacon's Dirk'!" He has murdered his aged uncle in bed, and taken a dozen bags of gold, and a rich man's daughter and merrily fled to sea to become a pirate bold. In chapter I he has cut the ears off seventeen desperate mutineers; he has hanged from the yard arm about a score.

And visited a small lot more; He has rescued eleven circassian girls, and killed three traders in Indian garb; He has caused a number of shocking wrecks; And painted vermilion a lot of decks; And four times he has escaped from jail By carving the keepers in pieces fine; And the ultimate chapter would turn you pale, For the deaths must average two per 'line. And I think I have got this thing down fine, And business is bad if this book can fall, And his wife stole into the room just then, As a wail was heard from the room in the rear—

And she said: "Will you wipe your gory pen, And take a spell at the baby, dear." —Puck.

Business is Business

N. Y. Sun. "I want to place a column ad. in your paper," said he to the editor, "calling attention to my special brand of 'Old Raven' whisky."

"All right, sir," responded the editor briskly. "I will be at your service in a moment."

Then he went to the speaking-tube and whispered to the foreman: "Kill that editorial on 'The Curse of Rum'!"

Slavery in Brazil promises soon to be a thing of the past. The parliament of the empire is now considering a bill providing for the final stages of emancipation and it will pass. It declares all slaves registered under the act of 1871 to be free. But they must serve their masters two years more, being paid, however, and being cared for. Moreover, they can redeem themselves for about $200 each. Slaves 50 years old or more need not thus serve their masters, and if one of a married couple happens in some way to free himself the other also becomes free. The registered number of slaves now in the empire is about 1,200,000.

Mr. Monocel, who has passed years in Nicaragua either as representative of the United States government in surveying a canal route or as the promoter of the short cut through the Isthmus, was interviewed in New York recently, and was as confident as ever of the feasibility of the Nicaragua route. Of the Panama canal he remarked that since the beginning of the work in 1881 it had advanced about 15 per cent, as to quantity, but not as to quality. This slow progress was due both to natural obstacles and to bad management. Should the Panama canal ever be completed, the obligations of D Lesseps' company would be, he held, in the neighborhood of $800,000,000.

WEDDING NOTICE ALLEGATION.—A young lady was married last month and a newspaper account of the event was headed: "Joined in July." "Attached in August," has been the fate of those who married this month. Likewise, some will be "Spliced in September," "Orange-flowered in October," "Nuptialized in November," and "Doubled in December." —Portland Telegram.

Lehman Blum, of Pendleton, having resigned as a member of the state board of agriculture, Governor Penney appointed in his stead J. B. Keeny, of the same place.

The New Hop Market.

New York, Sept. 6.—The Commercial Bulletin represents concerning the hop crop that the English crop, according to the best advices, will be light, so far as fine quality is concerned. Quotations in this market are as follows: Pacific coast crop of 1886, best, 14 (15) lbs; common, 12 (13); crop of 1885, good to prime, 6 to 10; Germans of 1885, best are quoted at 14 (15) lbs; and common to good at 10 (11) lbs; New York state crop of 1885, seedlings, 20 to 25; crop of 1886, common to good, 12 (15) lbs; crop of 1885, best, 8 (10) lbs; medium, 6 (7). The Oneida Union of September 3 represents that for several days hop pickers by the wagonload have been moving southward, while very much larger numbers have been pouring into the valley by hop trains of the Ontario & Western. Many of the growers will not allow pickers to dive into their best hops before next week, as the vines continue to look bright and healthy, and the hops are improving each day in quality. As yet there is no deprecation of concern reported. The only complaint is concerning a light sprinkling of red rust, causing little damage further than to slightly injure the looks of the sample. No contracts are being made of late for above 20s or less than 18s. There is very little doing in the market at present, all operations being continued with the utmost caution.

A Story of Natural Gas.

Two hundred years ago in China there was just such a craze about natural gas as we have in this country to-day. Gas wells were sunk with as much vim and vigor as the celestials were capable of, but owing to a gas explosion that killed several millions of people and tore up and destroyed a large district of country, leaving a large inland sea, known on the maps as Lake Foo Chang, the boring of any more gas wells was then and there prohibited by law. It seems according to the Chinese history, many large and heavy pressure wells were struck, and in some districts wells were sunk close to each other. Gas was lighted, as soon as struck, as is done in this country. It is stated that one well with its unusual pressure, by inclination or back draught pulled down into the earth the burning gas of a small well, resulting in a dreadful explosion of a large district, destroying the inhabitant thereof. The same catastrophe is imminent in this country unless the laws shall restrict further developments in boring so many wells. Should a similar explosion occur there will be such an upheaval as will dwarf the most terrible earthquakes ever known. The country along the gas belt from Toledo through Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky will be ripped up to a depth of 1,200 to 1,500 feet and flapped over like a pancake, leaving a chasm through which the waters of Lake Erie will come howling down, filling the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and blotting them out forever. —Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

He Did His Best.

In the spring of 1877 a young man, the son of a quite prominent New York divine, arrived in Fargo, Dakota. He had $2,000, which his father had given him with which to start west, and grow up with the country. Four weeks after his arrival he telegraphed home for money enough to buy a return ticket. It was promptly sent and a few days after the young man walked into his father's house in New York, finding his paternal relative in his study, preparing a sermon. The old gentleman regarded him anxiously over his spectacles, and seeing that he appeared to be in good health, said, somewhat severely: "My son, I fear that you did not make good use of your opportunities in the West." "I did the best I could, father."

"Were you robbed or anything of that kind?" "Oh, no."

"Then I must say emphatically that you have been a very unfaithful steward. If I had been in your place I could have done better with that $2,000 than you did."

"I am positive that you couldn't have," replied the young man, firmly. "I held a royal sequence, the best hand I ever heard of in the game, and put all my money on it, but when it came to the show-down a big fat man across the table had five aces and a revolver and took the pot. I never played poker in Dakota before and didn't know anything about that, so I don't see how I could have done any better." —Dakota Bell.

Paying to View the Field.

"I declare," said a gentleman who had just returned from a trip through the south, "it's an outrage; that's just what it is."

"What's an outrage?" said a man with a bad limp, who had just come up. "Why, this thing of fencing in the battle-fields and making a man pull out his pocket-book before he can look at them. I even had to pay a quarter to view the battlefield of Lookout Mountains, a piece of scenery that ought to be national property."

"Is that what they charge now?"

"Yes."

"They've reduced the price, then, since I was there."

"You don't say so? What did it cost you?"

"Why, sir, it cost me as good a leg as any man ever stood upon, and I've had to stump along on corks the best I could ever since. A quarter! umph! you got off cheap."

It is commonly supposed that the only persons who are eager for war are officers who are anxious to win fame or a higher rank. That women should ever derive an advantage from war and the preparations for war does not readily occur to the imagination. Yet there is a firm in Berlin that employs 200 girls who would be thrown out of employment if war preparations should cease. They manufacture little bundles of antiseptic dressing material, with which all German soldiers are to be supplied in future so that they may be able to dress their own wounds in the absence of a surgeon. Fifteen thousand of these packages are made every day. As the work calls for the greatest cleanliness the girls are all dressed in white linen cloaks and are forbidden to bring victuals or anything else into the room where they work. —The Epoch.

One of District Attorney McGuinn's friends asked him what was the most striking thing he witnessed while among Victorians? He answered that the fact that a United States twenty dollar bill was worth its face, while Canadian scrip, their own money, was discounted two per cent. —Welcome.
