

THE EUGENE CITY GUARD.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1887.

Grover Cleveland.

S. F. Examiner.

Although bankrupt in issues the Republican party is suffering from an embarrassment of riches in the matter of Presidential candidates. Their quality may not be all that could be wished, but their number is bewildering. The partisans of Blaine, Sherman and Allison urge the attractions of their several favorites, with superior loudness, but the admirers of Conkling, General Sherman and General Sheridan are not silent as to their merits. The outlook for a fierce struggle within the party that will have its effect after the convention meets and makes its choice is very promising.

While clashing ambitions divide the Republicans, keeping alive old hatreds and breeding new ones, peace, good will and the most cordial harmony prevail in the Democratic party. There is but one Presidential candidate. It is agreed that Mr. Cleveland shall be renominated. No better proof of the excellence of his administration could be furnished than this unanimity of Democratic sentiment.

From present appearances the renomination and re-election of Cleveland seem to be inevitable. Backed by a strong and united party, he is stronger than it, and were he not half so popular with the Democracy as he is; the plainest dictates of political expediency would compel the party to accept him as its leader. The causes of his strength are obvious.

Cleveland has made a good President. He has shown as Chief Magistrate the same simplicity, good sense, frankness and integrity which made him a good sheriff, a good mayor and a good governor. Under all the varied conditions of his remarkable career he has been his own master.

Taking office as the representative of a party which had not given a President to the country for a quarter of a century, he confronted administrative difficulties vastly greater and more complex than would have faced a Republican successor of a long line of Republican incumbents. Yet the two years and a half of his occupancy of the White House have witnessed far less political turmoil and bitterness than marked the three months of Garfield's sway. After all that has been said of the hunger of the starving Democracy and its lust for place, no such storm has raged on the question of patronage as the country was wont to see when one Republican President went out and another came in. This decent quietude has been owing almost wholly to Cleveland himself. Democrats, being human, are quite as fond of offices as their Republican fellow citizens, and had the president been weak, or eager to conciliate any element, a fury of contention for the prizes of victory would have distracted the Union. But there is no weakness in Cleveland. Down came his foot, and it has stayed there. The stamp crushed many corns—some California bunions, too, it must be confessed—but where is the sensible and disinterested Democrat who will not own to-day that his party has been enormously advantaged by the President's determination to stand by his civil service reform pledges?

And where is the lobby? Where is that band of eloquent, opulent and persuasive gentlemen employed to "explain things," which for years was as prominent a feature of Washington as Congress itself? Gone! The railroad corporations no longer treat with the United States Government on the footing of a co-equal authority. Their representatives find themselves reduced to the standing of ordinary citizens. Investigations into the affairs of the land-grant railroads ordered by Congress have ceased to be shams. Observe the caliber and spirit of the men appointed by the President who recently sat in San Francisco as the Pacific Railway commission. And who fears that, should a vacancy on the Supreme Bench occur, it would now be filled with a creature of corporate wealth?

When before has the public domain been so well protected by executive power? The land-grabbers in the Territories, the cattle ranchers with their illegal fences keeping settlers from the free prairies, the crocheters upon the Indian reservations—all these, astonished by an order to quit, sent to Washington protesting deputations who stood for hundreds of millions of money and were further astonished when the deputations were dismissed with a stern injunction to obey the order or bear the consequences. Mistakes have been made, but there has been also a frank and manly readiness to repair them. Criticism upon injudicious appointments has been answered by the withdrawal of the objectionable appointments. But criticism which has not had truth for its basis and sincerity for its motive has found the President a rock. He has opposed dignified firmness to clamor, and those who have in this way matched their strength against his are not perceptibly ahead up to date. The justice of this observation will be the most appreciated by those ferocious heroes of the G. A. R., who deem the Union and its treasury theirs, and ask the country to rank Cleveland as a rebel for refusing to permit demagogues to swell the pension list—already larger than those of all the first-class European powers combined—by bilking upon it a multitude of men in no need of such help. The warmest applauders of the course of the President in this regard are the self-respecting soldiers who have wounds and scars to make merchandise of them.

The independent vote which made Cleveland President will remain with the Democracy and make him President again. His work commends him to the people. They see in him a man of unmovable stubbornness in holding to what he believes to be right, and so far lifted above the passions of partisanship that, while governing with a just concern for the interest of his party, he never forgets that he is the Chief Magistrate of the whole republic. His popularity is solid, for it is not due to the arts of a politician or to deeds of exceptional brilliancy, but rests on the esteem of the sensible and patriotic masses for a President of demonstrated capacity and sober worth.

Washington Bartlett, California's sixteenth Governor died in Oakland at the residence of his cousin, Mrs. Dr. Buckel Sept. 12th. A gradual decline in the Governor's health culminated the 23d of August in a stroke of partial paralysis, which, combined with kidney trouble, formed a complication of malady that caused his death. Deceased was in his 63d year, and is the first governor of California who has died while filling the executive chair. His burial took place Friday this week. Lieut. Gov. R. W. Waterman took the oath of office Thursday and became Governor of California. He is a Republican.

Chicago News (Mugwump): The Grand Army of the Republic men are working nobly for the re-election of Grover Cleveland. Yesterday a detachment of that organization which was parading at Wheeling, W. Va., refused to pass under a portrait of the President which was suspended across the street, but made a detour and lowered their colors as they did so.

The New York Republicans have nominated Fred Grant for Secretary of State. A case of the "son of the father."

A dispatch from Hamilton describing the opening meeting of the Ohio State campaign alludes to the speech of Mr. Powell, the candidate for Governor as follows:

The question of tariff reform was discussed at some length. The speaker favored a thorough revision and an honest reformation of the present system, and said that the tariff should be so reduced that no more revenue should be raised than the government needed. He advocated keeping the taxes upon whisky and tobacco and articles of luxury, and making clothing and articles of luxury, and making food, clothing and articles of necessity and general consumption cheaper. He closed his speech with a tribute to President Cleveland and his work and claimed that the party which had done so well with national affairs was the party to be trusted with the administration of our own state affairs.

The youthful San Francisco speculator who turned $3 into a pool ticket and the winnings of that into a real-estate transaction netting him $4,000, has a counterpart in one of the new towns of Texas. He was made a present of a sickly goat which the owner was glad to get rid of. The boy nursed it back to health, traded it for a donkey, trained the donkey to carry a child and traded it off for a horse. The horse he traded off for another and $40. He bought a lot and started in changing and trading, always with a keen perception of profit for himself, and is now, although but 17 years, worth several hundred dollars. The goat may be credited with his share of praise, but success will follow energy and shrewdness whether they start in with a goat or a mouse-trap.—Examiner.

The Kansas City Times has published answers received to inquiries sent out through Kansas and Missouri as to presidential preferences. In Missouri 270 answers from Democrats were received. Of these 251 were for Cleveland, 3 for Thurman, 1 for Wade Hampton, and the rest scattering. The Republicans sent 261 answers, of which 125 were for Blaine, 77 for Sherman, 41 for Lincoln, and the rest scattering. In Kansas 326 Democrats answered, as follows: Cleveland, 306; Thurman, 7; Hill, 6, remainder scattering. The Republicans sent 322 answers, of which 181 were for Blaine, 86 for Sherman, 44 for Lincoln and the rest scattering.

Rev. Sam. Small has turned state's evidence. In a recent sermon he said: "I was born a Democrat, raised a democrat. I studied its principles fully. I worked for it. I have spent money for it. I have drunk whisky for it. I have lied for it. I have stolen ballots for it. I have stuffed boxes for it. I did it all to tell me, and it took me within half a mile of hell."

He adds that "St. Peter has speared the party out of his mouth." We are glad that the party is rid of one liar, thief and ballot-box stuffer, and as for Peter, we advise that he keep his month and keep an eye on Sam.—Alta.

We have received at the hands of the Southern Pacific Railroad, a copy of a pamphlet descriptive and illustrative of the picturesque portion of California, adjoining the Oregon boundary. It is styled "The Shasta Book," and is gotten up in gorgeous fashion making it a thing of beauty and a joy forever. It is written in such excellent style as to make one eager to read it, and is a publication that does credit to the S. P. R. R.

The R. R. Commissioners have recommended to the O. & C. O. P. and O. R. & N. the following rates on short hauls: Over 5 miles and not exceeding 10 miles, 4 cents per 100 pounds or $8 per car. Over 10 miles and not exceeding 20, 5 cents per 100 pounds, or $12 per car load. Will the railroads open their ears, or continue doing as they please.

"An official analysis of the last census discloses that of the 17,302,699 persons in the United States then engaged in gainful work (now 20,000,000), about 95 per cent., cannot be subjected to foreign competition, and about 5 per cent. are all who can be, or rather, whose employers can."—Daniel Manning.

Cure For Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, pain and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs.
