THE "BROTHER JONATHAN"

Found at Last.

Crescent City (Cal.) Record. On Sunday, the 30th day of July, 1865, the ill fated steamer, Brother Jonathan, was wrecked off Point St. George, a short distance from Crescent City. She was on her way to Oregon, but in rounding the Point, the wind being so strong that but little headway could be made, it was concluded to run back to this harbor for shelter until the wind-storm abated. While coasting to this port the vessel struck a sunken rock which tore in her bows, and in a short space of time she sank. As soon as she struck all was confusion on board. It was seen at once that the vessel would be a total wreck, as her foremast had gone through her bottom, the fore yard lying across her deck. One ship's boat after another was launched, each in turn being either crushed against the vessel's side or swamped in the heavy sea. Finally the captain's boat was seized by some of the crew, and notwithstanding the order of their commander to the contrary, was successfully launched and shoved off from the vessel. It was the last boat on the ship, and those in her knew that they were taking their last look upon their friends and companions. But human life is dear, however lowly it may be, and we can hardly blame them from securing it to themselves in preference to their superiors. The boat contained 16 persons, and those in the water who were shrieking and imploring for help were shoved away, and we are told that one, who had his hands on the gunwale of the boat was struck and made to let go, sinking beneath the waves never to rise again. This boat of persons, consisting of the third mate, several of the crew, one China woman, a white woman and her little boy, reached Crescent City in safety, between 4 and 5 o'clock in the evening, about two hours after the vessel struck. While on their way down, Mate Patterson, who was in charge, informed us that every time the little boat was lifted upon a huge wave he would take a look at the vessel, but when about half a mile away she went down and was lost to view entirely. Upon arrival of the boat at this place, which was the first intelligence of the wreck, a boat was manned and started for the scene, but no trace of the vessel nor any human being could be found; all had perished in the angry waters.

Since that time not a summer has passed but there has been parties searching for the wreck, as the vessel was known to have had a large amount of treasure on board, besides a valuable cargo of merchandise. Several times persons with but little experience in such matters thought they had found the wreck, and divers were procured to go down for a confirmation of their belief, but nothing of the wreck has been found until recently. Captain Peter Gee, of San Francisco, who is well acquainted with the coast, after learning all the particulars of the wreck, possible, concluded that he could find it. He has therefore been up for several summers making as thorough a search as it was possible to do, but until recently has been unsuccessful. Last summer he was almost certain he had located the exact spot, but bad weather prevented a more thorough search. About three weeks ago he came up and he now informs us that he has succeeded in finding the vessel. She lies in 33 1/2 fathoms of water, south about two miles from North West Seal Rock, where the new lighthouse is being built, and is some two miles northwest from Jonathan Rock, named so from the fact that it has been supposed by most persons that this was the place where the vessel went down.

Where the Brother Jonathan was found is a rock not laid down on the chart, which has been known to boatmen about here for a long time, and which has been named by them "Saddle Rock." At low tide there is some three or four feet of water on this rock and at high tide about ten. About 300 feet north west of this is where the wreck was found. She had evidently struck this hidden rock, and as she filled with water side off, as she naturally would, and floated a short distance with the current before going to the bottom. And now, after so many years of search for this wreck, it is doubtful if anything can be recovered, or any intelligence gained as to its condition or what it contains. She lies in about 300 feet of water, and we are informed that 18 or 25 fathoms is as deep as any divers on this coast care to go down. However, Captain Gee says that there are other diving apparatus in England, and that it is possible that one may be procured that the depth of where the Brother Jonathan lays may be reached. If this can be done, what a sight will be witnessed by those who succeed in reaching and exploring the recesses of this vessel that has so long been hidden from the sight of man. There were, we believe, over 300 passengers on board this ill-fated vessel at the time of her going down. Forty-three bodies were recovered in this vicinity, and a few, probably not more than a dozen, found on the coast, outside the boundary line of Del Norte county. It was very rough and a greater portion of the passengers were sick and in their staterooms. There has been no evidence that the vessel has ever broken up, in fact, everything goes to show that she has never went to pieces, as no vestige of her hull has ever come on the beach. It is altogether probable that many persons were drowned in their rooms and that their bones are still there mingling with each other in the motionless waters of the mighty deep.

On board of this ill-fated vessel were lost the following parties, well known in Eugene and vicinity: Mr. Samuel Luckey, wife and daughter, Miss Ollie, who were returning here from a visit to the East; also Mrs. Jerry Luckey and two sons, and her sister, who were coming here to reside. Mr. Samuel Luckey was an uncle of Messrs. E. R. J. L. Warren and Thos. Luckey, who live here.

From Camp Creek.

Oct. 5, 1887. EN. GEARD.—As "Rustler" has been rustating for some time, you must excuse him, and news is very scarce. We have had a nice shower that makes us think of gun boots and coats. Hop raises all have their crops in town waiting for some one to offer a fair price. Some are making preparations to commence plowing for fall grain. We had a death on the creek a few days since, Mr. Magnus lost his only child, after a short illness. Everything is peaceful and serene on the creek since the new road business is settled and I suppose the wrath of the axeman has cooled down without anyone being seriously injured. Cool weather is near at hand and the prospect is good for several weddings in the neighborhood. The couple that went to the circus are liable for damages for driving over fences and pulling down gates. We are sorry to say the mongolian has crossed the mountains in search of new fields for conquest. Mr. T. J. Dunten has also gone over the mountains after his band of horses. Lon Dunavan and family have gone East in search of something hard to find in Oregon, especially to be a fortune. The cowboy has lost his whip and spurs, I suppose, as he does not carry them any more. There has been two new settlers among us recently; Wm. Davis and G. K. Lambert are building new houses, and still there is room for more to make comfortable homes; let them come. Wm. Siler has also built a new house, and several more contemplate building, which speaks well for our saw mill. The old landmarks are being torn down and new ones going up in place. Some of our neighbors have the gold mine fever and talk of going into Southern Oregon this winter to prospect some gravel claims. Go ahead, boys; may you have good luck, but I don't want any of it in mine. We have just heard of the illness of Mr. Dick, which was very sudden, but hope he may soon be convalescent. We must keep on the tight side of the folks, as we are expecting to have to live here some time yet, so I must go slow. REVUELE.

Free Scholarships.

A special term of the County Commissioners Court was held in Eugene City last Saturday to award the two free scholarships in the State University to which Lane County is entitled. County School Superintendent Patterson submitted the names of 37 persons who had passed the required examination and were entitled to scholarships. Following are the names: Edgar Pengra, Miss C. Louisa Tilton, Miss Maggie Whipple, Paul Hadley, Webster Wallace, John Edmondson, G. W. Norris, Miss M. L. Norris, Miss M. E. Norris, Miss Dora Dickinson, Charles Wilkinson, J. N. Widmer, Charles E. Lockwood, Miss Mary Sheridan, Miss Leathe McCormack, Frank McCormack, Miss Lulu Bradley, Hugh Gray, Miss Nellie Snodgrass, Miss Annie Crain, Carey F. Martin, Miss Irene Bonnet, Lawrence Edmondson, Len Stevens, Eben M. Bailey, A. J. Hovey, Jr., Miss Ella Montgomery, F. S. Duma, Miss Bessie Kelly, Miss Cecile Dorris, E. E. Orton, Miss Daisy Shilton, Miss Anna Underwood, Miss May Dorris, Miss Etta Hill, Darwin Yoran, Waldo L. Cheshire. The drawing took place last Saturday, and the two free scholarships to which this county is entitled were awarded by lot to Miss Nellie Snodgrass and Carey F. Martin.

Coburg Items.

Sept. 27, 1887. Mr. W. E. Spicer, of Hubbard, is in town. Mr. Wm. Delana's house is progressing finely. Some ducks and geese are making their appearance. Mr. Ira Wakefield, of Mohawk, has located at this place. Jacob Bahr, of Mohawk, visited friends here last week. Mr. John Delana returned home from a trip east of the mountains. Coburg is taking quite a boom; four new dwellings to be erected in the near future. Mr. Fred Larso and wife are moving to the Siuslaw. The people of Coburg will miss them, but what is one's loss is another's gain. Mr. James Hilday intends building a large structure in town and keeping stoves and tin ware and in connection will keep postoffice and a barber shop. OBSERVER.

Dexter Items.

Oct. 6, 1887. A few refreshing showers this week. Hop picking was finished in this vicinity last Saturday. Mr. Robt. Williams intends leaving Saturday for Silver Lake. Miss Harriet Veatch has gone to Eugene to stay during the winter. Miss Ella Roney, of Eugene, is visiting relatives and friends here this week. Misses Luella and Etta Handsaker left a few days since for Yaguana, their future home. Mr. W. H. McCall came in from Silver Lake after provisions recently, and returned last week. We understand that Miss Clyde Barbre will teach the fall term of school at Trent, and Miss Hortense Parker at this place. Our postoffice will shortly be removed to Mr. Jas. Parvin's, who has been appointed postmaster since the resignation and removal of Mr. S. Handsaker. Mr. Jos. Williams, after an absence of four years at Harney valley, came in a few days ago on a visit to friends and relatives. He will return to Harney in a few days. We learn that Mr. H. S. Ward has taken a claim in Morrow county, near Lexington, and will remove shortly with his family from Pettleton to Lexington, where they will remain during the winter. A grand excitement prevailed in this neighborhood last week, caused by fire which had been set in a brush pile. The wind had risen and the fire began to spread, and had it not been for the timely and willing labor of about fifty men, it would perhaps have swept over the entire valley. As it was it spread over quite an extensive territory and destroyed several thousand rails. Aside from this, no damage was done. Uno Hoo.

Cottage Grove Items.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.] COTTAGE GROVE, Oct. 6th, 1887. Mr J F Day paid Cottage Grove a visit Saturday. Miss Katie Hanson spent Sunday and Monday in Eugene. Mr. Dennis Siagle returned from Corvallis Saturday, where he has been at work. Mr. James Small and family of Silver Lake arrived at this place last Friday and started back Oct. 2d. Mrs. G. B. Chrisman and Miss Ella Leonard were visiting at this place Saturday and Sunday last. A number of persons have been hauling grain from the Siuslaw valley to this place, during the week. Public school began here Monday under the supervision of Mr. Rufus Callison assisted by Miss Sadie Meyer. Mrs. Dr. W. C. Sehbred of Livingstone, M. T., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Stouffer of this place. Miss Charles, late of Indiana, now of Cottage Grove, commenced teaching in district 48 last Monday, on what is familiarly known as Silk creek. Mr. H. Long, road supervisor, is having a quantity of lumber hauled for bridges on Silk creek, which appropriation was made by the county court. We understand a long felt necessity. VERUIT.

DAMAGING CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

—EX GOVERNOR WHITEAKER, collector of internal revenue, has removed his office and forces from the postoffice building to the new and elegant quarters in J. P. Mann's building on Morrison street near Fourth. In the rooms evacuated, which are to be occupied by the postoffice, Postmaster Roby was shocked to find a lot of empty bottles. It is claimed that there are 500 bottles, and "Pap" Stroud owns up to five dozens, but hints that they are relics of the previous republican occupants of the office. What is to be done with the bottles is a question. If they were full there would be no trouble in getting rid of them, but no one wants a lot of empty bottles, except, perhaps, the old junk man.—Oregonian.

INVESTIGATING.

—Tuesday, the commissioners appointed by the President to investigate into the building of the different wagon roads in Oregon, aided by the government, arrived in Eugene. They at once commenced examining witnesses, nearly all of whom testified to the constructing of the military road in a good substantial manner across the mountains. They left Wednesday at noon to travel over the entire road and to take testimony.

OVER PLENTIFUL.

—Mr. G. G. Smith, proprietor of the Acme cannery, on the Lower Siuslaw, informs us that the run of salmon in the river now is immense. He said that the three canneries had more fish than they could pack, and were compelled to restrict each boat to a certain number.
